VOTERS SPLIT OVER ISSUE IN SENATE RACE

ILLINOIS MAJORITY 1,895 ON EARLY COUNT

Crushing of Enforcement Act in Massachusetts Has Edge.

BULKLEY HAS MARGIN ON DRY FOE IN OHIO

(Associated Press.)

Early returns in the fifth national election since prohibition disclosed majorities for the wet cause in the Illinois, Massachusetts and Rhode Island referenda and both wets and drys leading in the senatorial contests where prohibition was an issue.

The early vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in Rhode Island was over 2 to 1. In Illinois it was 5,490 for and 3,585 against. For repeal of the State enforcement act in Massachusetts the vote was 19,762 for and 18,756 against. In all three States, however, the count was far from complete.

Illinois voters also rolled up majorities in the early returns of 4,528 to 3,179 for modification of the Volstead act, and 1,108 to 803 for repeal of the State enforcement law.

Bulkley Has Slim Lead.

Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio, who favors repeal of the eighteenth amendment, had a slim lead over his Republican opponent, Senator McCulloch, who said in his campaign: "I am for prohibition."

William M. Butler, Republican senatorial nominee in Massachusetts, was running ahead of Marcus A. Coolidge, Democrat. Butler is a prohibitionist, while Coolidge has declared for higher alcoholic content beverages and sale of liquor by a Government commission.

James Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), who wants the eighteenth amendment repealed, had a big margin over his Republican opponent, Ruth Hanna McCormick, who had announced she was personally dry but would abide by the result of the State referendum.

Drys Lead in Pennsylvania.

Secretary Davis was elected to the Senate from Pennsylvania over Sedgwick Kistler, Democrat. Davis stood on the dry national Republican plank, while Kistler supported the 1930 State Democratic repeal plank.

Gifford Pinchot, a stanch prohibitionist, had a 10,000 lead over John M. Hemphill, Democrat-Liberal, who had the backing of the Pennsylvania Division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, but the large wet vote of Philadelphia was still to be counted.

Another governor claimed by the drys, Frank G. Allen (Republican), Massachusetts, had a 2-to-1 lead over his Democratic opponent, Joseph B. Ely, who supported the State platform of his party calling for repeal of the State enforcement act. The wets chalked up a few gains in the early congressional returns.

Wisconsin Names Wet.

W. G. Andrews, Republican, was elected to the House from the Fortieth District of New York. He won in the primary from Representative Dempsey, regarded as a dry, and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment lists him for repeal.

In the Seventh Wisconsin, Gardner R. Withrow, Republican, also claimed by the wet organization as a repealer, won over Oliver Needham, running on the prohibition ticket.

Jesse P. Wolcott was elected from the Seventh Michigan District. Although he had no opposition he defeated Representative Cramton, a House dry leader, in the primary. He favors a referendum on prohibition.

DEMOCRATS REGAIN ONE VIRGINIA SEAT

GARBER IS DEFEATED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Democratic party failed to recapture one of the three seats in Congress won by the Republicans in Virginia in 1928, had made an apparently successful attack on another and was leading in the third, on the basis of unofficial returns from today's election.

Representative Menalcus Lankford, Republican, of Norfolk, scored heavily in his home city of Norfolk to run up a majority of 2,593 votes in the Second District over Joseph T. Deal, Democratic nominee. It was a repetition of the 1928 contest, when Lankford defeated Deal, then an incumbent. The vote in 122 of the district's 126 precincts gave Lankford 14,516 votes to 11,923 for Deal. Deal conceded his defeat.

John W. Flanburne, of Charlottesville, apparently had defeated Representative Jacob A. Garber, Republican incumbent, in the Seventh Virginia District. The Democratic nominee had a lead of 2,858 votes with only 23 of the district's 168 precincts missing—these being in rural sections. The campaign was unusual because of the attempt of Garber to furnish "rubber stamps" to his supporters after his name had been left off the official ballot through failure to file declaration of his candidacy.

John W. Flannagan, of Bristol, Democrat, took an early lead over Representative Joseph C. Shaffer, Republican incumbent, in the mountainous Ninth, where returns were slow in coming from the storm-swept sections. With 53 of the district's 260 precincts, or about one-fifth, reported, Flannagan had 8,143 votes

EARLY RETURNS GIVE MARGIN TO BULKLEY

Senator McCulloch Trails Democrat in Ohio by More Than 8,000.

WHITE AHEAD OF COOPER

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Robert J. Bulkley, Ohio's Democratic candidate for United States senator, who advocated repeal of the Federal prohibition amendment, was leading Senator George C. McCulloch, prohibition advocate, by almost 3,500 votes in the early returns.

In 675 precincts of the State total of 8,565 precincts, Bulkley had 57,190 to 48,684 for McCulloch. These returns were from a majority of the counties including blocks of fifteen or more from several of the large city counties, in which Bulkley had been conceded as having great strength.

Most of the rural dry counties were given majorities for McCulloch, but some of the normal Republican dry counties were showing a preference for Bulkley in the early returns.

The election is for the remainder of the term started by the late Sen-

LEWIS' LEAD 70,000 IN ILLINOIS BATTLE

DRY CANDIDATE BEATEN

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Riding a swelling tide of votes in the wet metropolitan area and maintaining a narrower margin down-State, former Senator James Hamilton Lewis had built up a plurality of 70,000 votes over Ruth Hanna McCormick tonight with one-eleventh of the Illinois ballots for the United States senatorship counted.

In Chicago alone the former Democratic senator, "whip" of the Senate during the Wilson administration, had gathered to himself a lead of 66,000 votes and in the 171 down-State precincts tallied at that time he was 4,000 votes ahead.

In its first election edition, the Chicago Tribune, published by the brother of Mrs. McCormick's late husband, carried the streamer "Lewis sweeps to victory" and described the result as a Democratic landslide in Cook County, with Col. Lewis leading also down-State and capturing some old Republican strongholds there.

The tabulation of Illinois votes for United States senator at 7:45 p. m. gave Lewis, 126,495; McCormick, 59,202, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent dry, 4,585. Included in these were 97,478 for Lewis and 31,693 for McCormick in Cook County.

Sanguine predictions of victory flung out by campaign managers yesterday had faded into silence today and the belief grew that the outcome of the senatorial contest, at least, would remain uncertain much later than usual.

RITCHIE'S LEAD OVER BROENING GROWS HOURLY

WESTERN MARYLAND ADDS TO HIS MARGIN

REPUBLICANS' CRIES OF "KING" UNHEEDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Gov. Albert Cabell Ritchie, seeking a fourth term on a wet platform, appeared to be piling up a greater majority tonight against Mayor William F. Broening, Republican dry, on the basis of early scattered returns, chiefly from Baltimore, than he did in 1926, when he defeated Addison E. Mullikin.

While only 20 precincts had been heard from six hours after the polls closed at 5 o'clock, the trend toward Gov. Ritchie was definite. He had a majority of 1,870 votes, about a two to one lead, and the East Baltimore wards, regarded as the strength of the governor in this city, were to be heard from.

On the basis of these returns, Democratic headquarters here predicted that the governor's Baltimore majority would read 70,000 and that regardless of what the State counties did, he was assured of holding his post.

Neither the drizzling cold weather nor the idea that the Democratic gubernatorial incumbent might become "King Albert," as the Republicans had charged during the campaign, seemed to bother the populace of Baltimore as they cheered Ritchie's growing vote.

By 10 o'clock Robert B. Ennis, president of the board o fsupervisors of elections and Democratic leader, predicted the city plurality for the governor would be at least 60,000. Tabulations by the Baltimore Sun indicated a Ritchie victory by 55,000 votes.

Vote Comes in Slowly.

While the State returns, which were coming in very slowly because of the late closing of the polls and the heavy vote, were expected to reduce this lead somewhat, Democratic leaders were elated by the early returns from Western Maryland, considered a Broening stronghold. These indicated that Ritchie had accumulated two votes to his opponent's one.

Republican leaders in Baltimore were not despondent, however, over the early Democratic gains. Edward E. Hargest, chairman of the Republican City committee, said he was still confident the mayor would triumph.

Voting was heavy in Baltimore and throughout the State, despite the adverse weather. Estimates were that 83 per cent of those registered in the

Zihlman Is Behind In Vote of County

Montgomery First Returns Give David J. Lewis Slight Advantage.

Voters in Montgomery County, Md., appeared to be throwing their ballots to David J. Lewis, Democratic candidate opposing Representative Frederick N. Zihlman for election to the House, as early returns came through last night.

The Democartic candidate was given a lead over Representative Zihlman, the Republican incumbent, in the Wheaton, Rockville and Colesville districts, while Mr. Zihlman had a slight advantage in Kensington, stronghold of the Republican and Progressive, or antiregular Democratic forces.

Preliminary figures from Wheaton gave Mr. Lewis 195 votes, as compared to 62 for Mr. Zihlman, while the Colesville count gave Mr. Lewis 120 to 55 for Representative Zihlman. With no definite figures available, early reports from Rockville showed a slight lead for Mr. Lewis there, although elsewhere on the ballot the Republicans were reported as leading.

ILLINOIS RACE CONCEDED TO J. HAM LEWIS

COOLIDGE IS LEADING IN MASSACHUSETTS

PINCHOT FAR AHEAD IN KEYSTONE STATE

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

As the returns from yesterday's elections began to take more definite form the Democrats were apparently beginning to realize their senatorial hopes at least.

The returns were still vague from the approximately 100 House seats which were in doubt, and as yet no definite evidence of the expected congressional overturn had come through. There were, however, some omnious trends from the Republican viewpoint.

The victory of J. Ham Lewis in the Illinois senatorial race over Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick was conceded both by the Chicago Tribune and by her own newspaper at Rockford, Ill., her home. It only remained for the extent of his sweep to be determined. And it also remained to be determined how many, if any, congressional candidates Lewis swept in with him.

Roosevelt Majority Put at 500,000.

Predictions in New York on the face of available returns in that State's unusual gubernatorial race were that Franklin D. Roosevelt's majority would exceed 500,000, the greatest in history. Such a sweep that embraced a majority for Roosevelt even up-State, heretofore Republican territory, of course had its dangers for Republican congressional candidates.

Representative Bert Snell, however, has already come safely under the wire, as has Walter G. Andrews, the Republican candidate in the Buffalo district, who unseated Representative S. Wallace Dempsey in the primary.

In Massachusetts, Marcus A. Coolidge, the Democratic senatorial candidate, finally took the lead away from former Senator W. M. Butler. After trailing, 11 to 6, behind in the out-State returns, Coolidge took the lead when the Boston returns began to pour in. Observers, on the face of this, looked definitely for a Coolidge victory.

Kansas Race in Doubt.

The gubernatorial race between Governor Allen, the Republican incumbent, and Joseph B. Ely, Democratic candidate, was still in a decidedly indefinite stage.

Out in Ohio, the Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial candidates, Robert J. Bulkley and George White, respectively, were definitely pulling away from their Republican rivals who had trailed them in the first

Roosevelt Crushes Tuttle, Sweeping New York State

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, was reelected Governor of New York today by a margin which threatened to rival the record Democratic plurality of State history—Alfred E. Smith's 385,000 edge over Nathan L. Miller for governor in 1922.

Charles H. Tuttle, Roosevelt's Republican opponent, who campaigned on the issue of alleged Tammany corruption and charged the governor with failing to act against it, conceded tonight, less than three hours after the polls had closed, that Mr. Roosevelt would return to the capitol at Albany for another two-year term.

In the Democratic landslide, to which up-State communities traditionally Republican contributed in numbers, several Republican members of Congress were jeopardized—notably in the silk-stocking Seventeenth District of Manhattan, where Mrs. Ruth Pratt, member of the House of Representatives since 1928, was falling steadily behind Magistrate Louis Brodsky, Democratic nominee. In this district Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist and Socialist nominee for the national House, made the race triangular, but he acknowledged defeat at an early hour.

F. H. La Guardia, Napoleonic Republican representative in the Twentieth District in New York City, was closely pressed for reelection, but was leading V. H. Aulets, Democrat.

Gov. Roosevelt's plurality over Tuttle when two-thirds of the State had reported was 570,000. That this would likely be diminished by returns from rural up-State districts was deemed likely, for 2,000 up-State districts were still to report and only 1,000 were missing in New York City, where Gov. Roosevelt was piling up his heaviest pluralities.

Robert P. Carroll, Independent dry candidate for governor, was far in the rear, but from rural districts which hours of the counting. Democratic observers on the face of available information predicted Bulkley's victory by a majority of 150,000 with White running behind him.

Although the early returns showed Senator Roscoe McCullough, the Republican incumbent seeking to succeed himself, running ahead as a general thing in the rural districts, they also showed Bulkley breaking into some of these Republican and rural counties and carrying them.

No congressional returns had come through from that State. It had been looked upon as the hotbed of the anticipated revolt.

Democrats Lead in Colorado.

Out in Colorado the Democratic senatorial candidate, Edward P. Costigan, was running ahead of his Republican opponent, George H. Shaw. Similarly, the Democratic State ticket was ahead. The outcome in Colorado, it was indicated, will be close. Democratic sources were confident of a Costigan victory by 30,000.

In Oklahoma, the Oklahoman, which supported the Republican gubernatorial candidate, conceded victory to "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Democratic contender, by 100,000, and estimated that former Senator Gore, Democratic senatorial standard bearer, would defeat Senator W. B. Pine by 80,000.

Former Senator M. M. Neely was easily maintaining his lead in the senatorial race in West Virginia.

Meager returns showed former Senator Bayard, Democrat, running ahead of Senator Dan G. Hastings, Republican incumbent, in Delaware.

Metcalf Has Early Lead.

There had been no recent returns from the Rhode Island senatorial race, the early, vague reports having given Senator Metcalf, Republican incumbent, a 3-to-1 lead over former Senator Gerry, Democrat.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, seemed to be safe out in Montana on the basis of available information. He was increasing his lead over Justice Alfred P. Galen, the Republican nominee.

Hardly anything had been received from Nebraska, the first returns, however, giving the lead to Senator Norris over former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock.

The Democratic candidate in Minnesota, Einar Hoidale, was also leading the somewhat Republican Senator Thomas P. Schall. Only sparse returns, however, had been received.

Senator Henry L. Allen, in Kansas, after trailing George McGill, the Democratic candidate for the short term, in the early returns, finally forged into the lead. Senator Arthur Capper was easily reelected in that State, defeating former Governor Jonathan M. Davis, the Democratic candidate.

Connecticut Overturn Seen.

The first definite signs of a possible congressional overturn came from Connecticut where two Republican incumbents were reported seriously in danger. The Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Prof. Wilbur L. Cross, an instructor at Yale, was still running ahead of Lieut. Gov. Rogers, the Republican candidate.

The tremendous effort of big business interests in Pennsylvania to defeat Gifford Pinchot for governor had apparently failed. He got away to an overwhelming lead and it had not been cut down at this writing.

The Republicans held on to the Second Virginia District which they captured in 1928. The incumbent, Representative Lankford was exceedingly popular and his reelection had been generally looked for.

On the other hand, they lost the Seventh, the Democratic candidate, John W. Flashburne, unseating Representative Garber, who also came in on the landslide of 1928. Garber failed to file his candidacy in time and had to resort to a sticker campaign.

One waited impatiently for some signs of what happened in Indiana in that State's heated congressional fight. Democratic sources were claiming a sweep on the basis of information from Indiana leaders.

Morrow's Lead Low.

There was a note in the first New Jersey returns which caused cold shivers to run up Republican spines. It was the lack of any sign of a Morrow landslide. Indeed, in these first returns, the Democratic candidate, Alexander H. Simpson, not believed, since Morrow's great primary victory, to have a chance, was holding Morrow's lead down to an amazing degree. This did not augur well for the Republican congressional candidates who were considered to be in danger.

Senator Thomas J. Heflin, who was read out of the party by Alabama Democrats and who ran as an independent, had apparently gone down to defeat. With a representative share of the State's returns in, John H. Bankhead, the Democratic nominee, was running 2 to 1 ahead of him.

ARLINGTON MANAGER PLAN WINS HANDILY

SUPPORT GLASS, SMITH

Arlington County adopted the county manager form of government yesterday in a spirited election in which it joined the City of Alexandria and Fairfax County in scoring decisive victories for Democratic nominees to assure their choice in the Eighth Virginia District.

Recording an almost 2-to-1 sentiment at the polls for a change in the structure of its government from its present administration by a board of three supervisors, Arlington County simultaneously expressed an overwhelming preference for the county manager plan over the modified commission form by a vote of 1,908 to 485.

At the same time the electorate there determined by a vote of 1,659 to 1,179 that in its county manager plan it will choose the members of its new board of commissioners, five in number, from the county at large rather than from the three existing magisterial districts, which include the Arlington District, the Washington District and the Jefferson District.

Glass, Smith Supported.

Arlington County, Fairfax County and Alexandria all gave substantial margins to both Senator Carter Glass in his race for reelection and to his running mate, former Judge Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, Democratic nominee for the House seat being relinquished by a fellow Democrat, Representative R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax.

Judge Smith triumphed along this northern fringe of Virginia over Dr. F. M. Brooks, Republican, of Fairfax County, and over an independent candidate, John H. Daniel, of Stafford. Senator Carter Glass likewise was an easy victor over J. Cloyd Byars, a resident of Arlington County, who ran as an independent, and Joe Morgan, Socialist, of Fairfax County.

Arlington County gave Smith 2,281 votes as against 632 for Brooks and 114 for Daniel. Senator Glass was credited with 1,794 votes, as against 835 for Byars and 191 for Morgan.

Manager Plan Wins.

Fairfax County, in 24 of its 25 precincts, rolled up an almost exact 2-to-1 majority for Smith over his two opponents. He received 1,769 votes as compared with 872 for Brooks and 12 for Daniel. Senator Glass came close to duplicating this 2-to-1 majority by registering 1,655 votes as against 727 for Byars and 118 for Morgan.

Alexandria gave tremendous victories to both Smith, its native son, and to Senator Glass. Smith received 2,021 votes as against 222 for Brooks and 15 for Daniel, while Senator Glass was given 1,644 votes as compared with 269 for Byars and 181 for Morgan.

The change in the form of government in Arlington County, with its accompanying substitution of the county manager plan, was accomplished after a sharp fight in which the interests of every part of the county were at stake.

A change, irrespective of the actual form adopted, was championed by the Arlington County Civic Federation, the Arlington County Bar Association and the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce. They were opposed principally by a group headed by Capt. Crandal Mackey, prominent Washington attorney, who resides in the county and operates the Chronicle, a weekly newspaper there.

The county manager form provides that the county shall be governed under a county manager who shall be selected by five supervisors, who themselves shall be elected by the voters on the at-large basis approved at yesterday's election. These five $6000 each per year, would possess all legislative, but no administrative or executive powers.

All administrative powers would be vested in the county manager, appointed for one year, with a salary to be fixed by the board of supervisors, ranging from an estimated $6,000 to $10,000 a year. He could not be removed except for neglect of duty, incompetence, malfeasance or misfeasance in office.

Chiams of Proponents.

The county manager appoints all administrative officers and employes, except heads of departments, named by the board, and all county officers and employes whose appointment or election is not otherwise provided by law.

He prepares a budget for the county which becomes effective upon approval by the board, or even without its approval if the board fails to act upon it within two months after its submission. He supervises allocations of the budget and keeps the board advised regularly as to the amounts expended for road, bridge, or other work during the accounting period.

A principal claim of advocates of the city manager form was that it would "abolish the present system of disproportionate representation on the county board." Magisterial districts will be abolished and the Arlington district, boasting two-thirds of the population in the county with only one-third representation on the old board, will be in a position to be more largely represented, the advocates pointed out.

Water Works Favored.

In only the Arlington and the Ballston Precincts of Arlington County were adverse majorities registered against a change in the county form of government. In the Arlington Precinct, a vote of 208 to 196 was cast against a change, and in the Ballston Precinct a vote of 176 to 174 was polled against a new form.

Residents of the town of Fairfax by a vote of 137 to 33 approved a proposal for establishment of a municipal water works at an expenditure of not more than $50,000. It is stipulated that it must be located in the center of the town.

Democrats Will Rule House, Shouse States

(Associated Press.)

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, last night claimed victory for the Democrats in the House of Representatives.

"The returns up to now speak for themselves," said Mr. Shouse. "My claim is based on returns we have from Indiana and other States.

"We are not ready as yet to claim the Senate. However, we are confident that it will be very close."

LEADING IN SENATORIAL CONTESTS

The Democratic nominees for Senate and House—Carter Glass, of Lynchburg, for reelection to the Senate, and Judge Howard W. Smith, for representative for the Eighth District—carried Alexandria by an overwhelming majority in yesterday's general election. Judge Smith, the local candidate, led the ticket, as was expected, his total vote being 2,021 to 237 for his opponents, Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax, who received 222 votes, and John Daniel, of Stafford, who polled 15 votes.

The total vote for Senator Glass was 1,644, while J. Cloyd Byars, of Arlington County, received 269, and Joe Morgan, of Newington, Fairfax County, polled 181. The total number of votes cast in Alexandria was 2,299, and there were 36 thrown out on account of being improperly made out.

to 6,447 for Shaffer. The heavy-voting Ninth was considered doubtful, the vote indicating a close race. Flannagan's home city of Bristol had reported, but his home county of Washington was still missing. Wythe County, home of Shaffer, failed to give him a big majority, Flannagan pressing close there.

The congressional contests completely overshadowed the contest for United States Senate in which Carter Glass, veteran Democrat and former Secretary of the Treasury, overwhelmed independent and socialist opposition. With 641 of the State's 1,687 precincts tabulated, Senator Glass had 46,676 votes to 9,980 for J. Cloyd Byars, Independent, of Arlington, and 2,735 for Joseph Morgan, Socialist. Glass lead in every county and city reporting, including Alexandria.

Three Democratic incumbents were unopposed and in the four other districts Democratic nominees had commanding leads. Returns from some of the districts, where no campaigns were made, were unavailable early, but the overwhelming lead of the Democrats made the outcome certain.

In the Eighth District, adjacent to Washington, former Judge Howard Smith, of Alexandria, had polled 6,311 votes to 998 for F. M. Brooks, Republican, of Orange, with 90 of the 156 precincts reported.

In the Tenth District M. J. Putnam, Republican, who two years ago gave the veteran Democrat, Henry St. George Tucker, a close race, made a weak showing. With 76 of the districts 212 precincts reported Putnam had polled 297 to 2,824 for Tucker. C. K. Rosser, independent Republican, had 250.

In the First District, Representative S. O. Bland, Democrat, had a 10-to-1 vote in the districts reporting. In the Third, Representative Montague overwhelmed his opponent, Houston Brett, Independent Republican, about nine to one.

Election Return Flashes

Returns from 28 of 2,048 precincts gave Norris, 3,292; Hitchcock, 2,829. Twenty-seven precincts gave Gov. Weaver (R.) 3,248 and Charles W. Bryan (D.) 3,033 votes.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Scattered returns from today's general election showed Wilber M. Brucker (R.), candidate for governor, leading William A. Comstock by less than the usual Republican majority in Michigan. Returns from 327 out 3,317 precincts, all of them outside of Detroit, gave Brucker 51,952 and Comstock 35,114.

The scattering returns showed Comstock running far ahead of his party's candidate for United States senator, Thomas A. E. Weadock. In 187 precincts Senator James Couzens had 33,466 votes and Weadock 11,038.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—With 91 out of 1,582 precincts in the State reported at 8:40 p. m., Edward P. Costigan (D.) had established a lead of almost 2,000 votes over George H. Shaw (R.) in the contest for United States senator from Colorado.

At the same hour 89 precincts gave William H. Adams (D.), incumbent, a lead of better than 4,000 over his Republican opponent for governor, Robert F. Rockwell.

The count: Senator Costigan, 11,161; Shaw, 9,262. Gov. Adams, 12,348; Rockwell, 8,192.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Connecticut's electorate, balloting in an apathetic off-year election, today showed a decided trend toward the Democratic column as first returns were tabulated. In the race for governor, Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, dean emeritus of Yale, who entered the political ring as a novice, had a lead of 8,720 over his Republican opponent, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, in returns from 30 out of 169 towns.

Connecticut has not had a Democratic governor since Gov. Baldwin went out of office in 1915.

In the congressional contests former Representative Lonergan (D.) was leading Col. Seymour (R.) in the first district by approximately 5,000 votes, with seven towns reported.

New Jersey, senate, 53 districts out of 3,318: Full term, Morrow (Republican), 5,056; Simpson (Democrat), 2,081. Short term, Morrow (Republican), 4,843; Parkinson (Democrat), 2,764.

Colorado, Senate, 25 precincts out of 1,582: Costigan (Democrat), 2,682; Shaw (Republican), 2,263. Governor, 28 precincts, Adams (Democrat), 3,920; Rockwell (Republican), 2,079.

Nebraska, governor, 51 precincts out of 2,040 give Weaver (Republican), 5,559; Bryan (Democrat), 5,573. Senate, 57 precincts out of 2,040: Norris (Republican), 7,430; Hitchcock (Democrat), 5,143; Craig (Independent), 392.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—M. M. Neely, Democrat and former senator from West Virginia, was leading James Ellwood Jones, Republican, by 19,633 votes with 350 out of 2,351 precincts reported in the race for the United States Senate seat now held by Guy D. Goff, Republican. The vote—Neely, 61,379; Jones, 41,746.

Maryland—Governor: Six voting places out of 1,304—Ritchie (D.), 1,215; Broening (R.), 593.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Reports from 94 scattered precincts out of 8,985 in Ohio early tonight gave George White, Marietta, Democrat, a lead of 1,300 votes over Gov. Cooper. White received, 8,437 and Cooper, 7,178.

The returns were representative of the State as a whole, coming from almost every one of the 88 counties.

The governor, a dry, was a running mate of United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, a dry, while White, a dry, was on a ticket headed by Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic senatorial nominee, an advocate of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The gubernatorial fight was principally on issues pertaining to alleged extravagance of the Cooper administration in State government.

Votes for Safe Food!

In every home in which one finds the ice compartment of the refrigerator always two-thirds full of clear, sparkling ice, there one may be certain that votes for pure, safe food have been registered.

No matter how high a quality of meat, fruit and vegetables you buy, nor how much you pay for them—they will not be at their best unless they are protected in the uniformly cold air of your refrigerator. The only way to be certain that the temperature is held at the right degree of coldness is to keep your refrigerator well filled at all times with pure American Ice.

BOSTON VOTE PUTS COOLIDGE IN FRONT

Boston, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Heavy voting in Boston sent Marcus A. Coolidge, Democratic candidate for United States senator in Massachusetts, ahead of William M. Butler, his Republican rival, when nearly a fourth of the 1,850 precincts in the State had reported their returns tonight. With 345 precincts in, the vote for Coolidge was 100,986. Butler had 89,023.

Early returns from cities and towns scattered throughout Massachusetts had given the leaders on the Republican ticket a margin of several thousand votes over their Democratic rivals. The first precincts to record their wet-dry vote, on the other hand, showed sentiment in these districts to be almost evenly divided on a referendum proposing repeal of the State's prohibition enforcement act.

One hundred nine precincts in 56 cities and towns scattered throughout the State gave: For governor—Frank G. Allen (Republican), 26,978; Joseph B. Ely (Democrat), 13,995. The same districts gave for William M. Butler, Republican candidate for United States senator, 24,869, and for Marcus A. Coolidge, his Democratic opponent, 13,787. There are 1,650 precincts in the State.

On the referendum proposing repeal of the State dry law, 60 precincts in 55 cities and towns gave 7,719 for repeal and 7,437 against.

Issues of unemployment and prohibition dominated the Massachusetts campaign, the Democratic candidates being almost universally opposed to prohibition and united in their attack on the Republicans, whom they charged with blame for depression and lack of jobs for workers.

Leaders on the Republican ticket, Butler, candidate for senator, and Allen, seeking reelection as governor, took a dry stand, as did the other Republican candidates, in the main. Butler emphasized the importance of rehabilitation of business and pledged himself to work for that end. He also declared himself in favor of a national 48 hour week for women and children in industry.

Colpoys to Talk Tonight On Vocational Training

John B. Colpoys, chairman of the advisory committee on vocational education, will speak tonight at the first meeting of the present school year of the District of Columbia Public School Association at the Franklin Administration Building. His subject will be "Needed Vocational Training in the District of Columbia."

The association, according to the president, Herbert S. Wood, will receive a report from its executive board urging the continuance of the kindergarten at the Webster Americanization School and expressing regret at the discontinuance of other "under age" kindergartens.

U. S. Agents Watch Kansas City Polls

District Attorney Appealed for Aid to Keep Election Clean.

Kansas City, Nov. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—When the word got about today that United States secret service agents and prohibition agents were watching the polls throughout the city, it slowed considerably the usual election day tactics of the "rough boys." The fact the agents were not generally known here increased the tension and caused suspicious glances at every stranger who appeared around a polling place.

Although there were several reports of kidnapings, threats and bribes, the usual brawls were reduced to a minimum. There were fewer than half a dozen arrests this afternoon, mostly by the police, but the United States district attorney's office filed charges in several of the cases.

W. L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney, had asked the secret service and prohibition departments for aid in an effort to keep the election clean. The Government men moved about among precincts, watching for violations.

"FOOLISH—BUT TRUE"

(A FABLE—TIME: TODAY)

FIVE men are marooned on a desert island. On pooling their resources, it is discovered that together they possessed fifty dollars, which are equally divided between them.

Mr. A is cook; B is hunter; C makes log houses; D weaves clothes and E makes and sharpens tools.

They agree to pay each other for the work they do, in order that none may loaf on the job.

Out hunting one day, B loses two dollars in the woods. On his return to camp he tells C not to bother about putting that addition on his hut, because he, B, must economize. C informs D that he will have to do without that new straw hat, as he must save his money to pay A. A, however, decides that he can get along without so much food, eating more scraps, and tells B not to hunt any more for him for a week, thus still further impoverishing B. As clothes and houses are less in demand, E can't sell as many tools, so he also cuts down on clothes and food, and A and B get poorer.

At the end of a month A is cooking as little as will keep them alive; B is hunting only an hour a day; C is living on charity, having no houses to build, D is charging double for mending a hole in a pair of pants, thus forcing the rest to mend their own pants or wear them with holes, and E has nearly starved to death.

But the island has just as much food as before, just as much material as before, there is just as much time as before, they are all as willing as before.

It all started because B lost two dollars.

One day A makes a suggestion. "Let's pool our money again", he says, "divide it, and then make a rule that we must spend a day's wages every day."

Being desperate, they do so. To make it even, they use two stones to represent the two dollars B lost, each begins again with ten dollars, each spends a dollar a day, each works all day long for a dollar a day, each has plenty to eat, and each is happy, working for his living.

The difference between the two situations was wholly one of confidence.

When incomes are cut down, expenditures are cut down. Even when those who could spend enter a panic, they "economize" by discharging help, curtailing production, eliminating advertising, thus still further cutting down incomes, which thus cannot be spent.

Yet there is in this nation as much land, as much material, as many people, as much need, as during the best days of the greatest prosperity!

The answer is not an economy which verges upon closeness and doing without; because to "do without" means that some other fellow cannot be paid for supplying his commodity—and thus cannot buy our commodity.

Voluntary "doing without" soon becomes a necessity, and we say "times are hard."

GORE AND MURRAY LEAD IN OKLAHOMA

HILL DEFEAT CONCEDED

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Democratic tide, swinging back in Oklahoma after a recession in the 1928 election, was carrying W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray toward the governor's chair tonight by a lead of more than 2 to 1 over his Republican opponent, Ira A. Hill. In 312 of the State's 3,860 precincts, representing 57, of the State's 77 counties, Murray had 25,720 votes and Hill 12,011.

Sweeping the rockribbed Democratic cotton-belt counties of southern Oklahoma and getting substantial blocks of votes in the central and northern areas conceded to his opponent, blind Thomas P. Gore, for thirteen years a Democratic senator, approached a 2-to-1 lead over Senator W. B. Pine, incumbent. Close to one-tenth of the total precincts were reported.

Returns to the Associated Press from 299 out of 3,860 precincts gave Gore 21,841 votes; Pine, Republican incumbent, 12,911.

As the totals rolled up it appeared Gore was not far behind Senator Pine in the larger cities and even in Okmulgee County, home of the incumbent, while his majority was staggering throughout the southern rural districts.

The Daily Oklahoman at 9 o'clock tonight conceded the election of Murray by a vote in excess of 100,000 majority over Hill.

The Oklahoman also estimated that Gore beat Pine by around 80,000 votes. The newspaper supported Hill and Gore.

Democratic Ticket Elected in Georgia

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Democratic State ticket, headed by Richard B. Russell, jr., for governor, and United States Senator W. J. Harris, was elected in Georgia today without opposition.

All of the Georgia Democratic candidates for Congress were also chosen, ten, without opposition.

Early returns indicated a vote of 3 to 1 against the proposed amendment to the State constitution to permit a tax levy on income. A statutory income tax already is on the statute books.

Woman Forfeits $15 On Police Attack Count

Mrs. Agnes Gayle, 47 years old, of Pennsylvania avenue near Twenty-second street northwest, yesterday forfeited $15 which she had posted as collateral when she was charged with assaulting Private J. S. Titus, of the Third Precinct.

The policeman said that the woman, who is a riding instructor, hit him in the jaw when he went to her door in answer to a call to the precinct station house that some one was making too much noise at that place. Other policemen came to his aid and the woman was taken to the station and charged with being drunk in addition to the assault charge.

LEWIS LEADS FOES IN RACE FOR SENATE

Mayor Unable to Vote.

Mayor William Hale Thompson, Republican, who jumped into the fray to support the wet Democratic nominee, was deprived of his vote at the hospital where he is convalescing from an appendicitis operation. His physicians agreed to bring him a single batch of election returns late tonight, but forbade his use of the radio and telephone installed in his room to carry running returns.

The Democratic candidate's lead of 67,000 in the Chicago sector would give him a plurality there of 435,000 if the ratio were carried out in the remaining precincts. The most sanguine predictions of the Democratic campaign managers had been a 250,000 lead in Cook County and they hoped to carry the down-State districts by 50,000.

Early returns on the three referends for repeal or modification of the prohibition laws indicated majorities favorable to repeal.

The chairman of the Republican State central committee, Cornelius J. Doyle, said he wanted to hear more from down-State regions before offering any predictions concerning the final outcome. It was the down-State counties, normally Republican, that Mrs. McCormick's partisans had looked for her to dominate, forecasting a lead of 200,000 outside of Cook County and hoping to break even in Chicago.

Victory Claimed for Lewis.

William L. O'Connell, campaign manager for Lewis, claimed the victory in a formal statement issued at 8 p. m. No word had come at that time from Mrs. McCormick.

The tide that turned against the woman candidate seemed, on earliest reports, to have turned also against a proposal to extend the privilege of jury service to her sex. Fifteen down-State precincts gave a vote of 1,490 to 1,182 against women jurors in a referendum vote.

The two Republican candidates for Congress at large were leading in the first reports. Richard Yates, incumbent, headed the ticket with 6,765 votes in the 63 downstate precincts first tallied, while Frank L. Smith, elected and thrice rejected by the U. S. Senate, had 6,275 votes. William H. Dietrich, Democrat, was third with 5,173, and Walter Nesbit, Democrat, last with 4,983.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Rockford Morning Star, controlled by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, on the basis of returns available at 9:10 p. m., conceded the election of James Hamilton Lewis, her Democratic opponent for United States senator from Illinois.

FOUR DIE, TWO SHOT IN ELECTION FIGHTS

WEATHER AIDS ROBSION

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Four men were killed and another wounded in widely scattered election rows in Kentucky today as ballots were cast for United States senator and representatives.

While the contest for the Senate was intense and a hard fight was waged in several congressional precincts, no reports indicated an unusually heavy vote. Tabulation will not be started until tomorrow, under a new law designed to purify the ballot.

Generally the voting was heaviest in those congressional districts where contests were waged for seats in the lower house, and in four districts congressional candidates who had no chance were sacrificed like chess pawns in an effort to win the senatorial fight.

Weather Generally Fair.

Republican candidates withdrew in the First, Second and Third Districts, prevailed upon by party leaders who knew they had little or no chance in those Democratic strongholds and who hoped thus to keep down the Democratic vote for senator. In the Fifth District, strongly Republican, a Democratic aspiration for Congress likewise was sacrificed to the party's weal.

Weather was generally fair, this adding to the chances of bringing out the Republican vote in the mountains for John M. Robsion, seeking the long and short term in the Senate. Unusual activity on the part of Democrats was reported, however, in getting out voters for Judge M. M. Logan, of the State court of appeals, for the long term and Ben Williamson, Ashland, for the short term.

Son Kills Slayer.

Two fatalities, those on Stinking Creek in Knox County, were reported to have been the direct result of election fervor, a Democratic worker having reproached a farmer for voting the Republican ticket. Boyd Bingham, 40 years old, the election worker, killed Hampton Smith, 45, farmer, and in turn was shot by the latter's son.

At Danville, Joseph Hayden, a Democratic challenger, shot and killed Ed Doneghy, a Negro, who came to the polls announcing he had heard there was trouble and he proposed to settle it. Hayden was released in $1,000 bond and he returned to his duties, several witnesses stating he fired in self-defense and beat Doneghy to the draw.

Ward Hatfield, 35, was slain in Pike County. Officers arrested Elias Dotson, 50, and said an old quarrel between the two had arisen while they were working in the election.

West Virginia Casualty.

In a quarrel at Elkhorn, in Pike County, Adam Cotter, a former deputy sheriff, was shot but not seriously injured, by Booker Wright.

Logan, W. Va., Nov. (A.P.).—A Republican candidate for local office was wounded today by shots fired by a Democratic adherent in an outbreak of partisanship.

The wounded man is Emmet Scraggs, candidate for president of the Logan District school board. Claude Gore was charged with shooting with intent to kill as the result of shots fired into Scraggs' automobile. Scraggs' injuries were slight.

Reno Road Curve Removal Sought

Devonshire Downs Citizens Ask Van Ness Street Rerouting.

The rerouting of Van Ness street, eliminating a dangerous curve at Reno road northwest, was the topic of discussion at a meeting last night of the Devonshire Downs Citizens Association, held in the Reno-Esther Building, Windom place and Wisconsin avenue northwest.

The intersection of Van Ness street and Reno road has been the scene of many serious accidents, it was stated, and hopes were expressed by the organization that District officials would soon take steps to remove the hazardous curve on that site.

Plans were being completed, it was announced, for the erection of a new school and playground at Thirty-seventh and Upton streets northwest.

ROOSEVELT CRUSHES TUTTLE IN NEW YORK

had counted the Roosevelt-Tuttle ballots not all the Carroll votes had been reported.

Roosevelt's New York City margin over Tuttle in 2,500 of 3,421 city precincts was more than 400,000, but the thing which amazed political observers was that Roosevelt had a lead upState as well, instead of a deficit.

He was almost 150,000 ahead, in 2,987 out of 4,976 precincts outside New York City, thanks chiefly to a great showing in almost every community of size over the State.

Entire Democratic Ticket Wins.

Gov. Roosevelt apparently carried with him to triumph the entire Democratic State ticket. Lieut. Gov. Lehman, renominated by the Democrats, had a lead of more than 300,000 over State Senator Caleb Baumes, author of the crime laws which bear his name and Republican nominee to the lieutenant governorship.

Morris H. Tremaine, comptroller, had a similar lead in returns from three-eighths of the State's precincts for reelection to that office.

Purse Snatcher Gets $7.

A light-skinned Negro was being sought by police of the Tenth Precinct last night for snatching the purse of Hazel Montgomery, 1436 Spring place northwest. The man obtained $7 in cash and some personal papers.

HOOVER GETS VOTING RETURNS OVER RADIO

AWAITS PAPERS TODAY

(Associated Press.)

Surrounded by a few close friends, President Hoover last night received only scattered election returns from the East and Middle West before retiring shortly after his customary hour.

Late in the afternoon he went from his office to his study in the White House and there received the results of the voting.

The radio and telephone reports from press associations and from the Republican national committee headquarters here kept Mr. Hoover informed of the returns. Before retiring he had been informed of the election of Gov. Roosevelt in New York and of the wide lead of James Hamilton Lewis in Illinois.

Senator Metcalf, of Rhide Island, the Republican incumbent, was ahead in his race, however, and William M. Butler and Marcus Coolidge were still running neck and neck in Massachusetts when Mr. Hoover went to bed.

However, virtually no returns from races for House seats were received by him, and he awaited the morning papers for information as to where control of the House would lie during the next two years of his administration.

Attaches of the White House expected to work most of the night compiling the returns so that as complete a tally as possible may be given Mr. Hoover when he arises.

Mrs. Hoover made her final trip of the year to their lodge in Virginia yesterday to close it up for the winter. She returned, however, through the mud and rain to be with the President last night.

Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur, old California friends of the Hoovers, Secretary Hyde and two members of the White House Secretariat—Walter Newton and George Akerson—completed the President's election party.

Republican Leads Steck in Iowa

For Governorship, Turner Is Polling Two to Hageman's One.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Senator Daniel F. Steck, fighting to retain his seat from this normally Republican State, was trailing Representative L. J. Dickinson, Republican senatorial nominee, on early returns from today's election.

Steck, elected six years ago when the Republican party split over the candidacy of Smith W. Brookhart, had 2,332 on returns from 28 of the State's 2,434 precincts, to 2,579 for Dickinson.

Dan W. Turner, Republican gubernatorial candidate, was leading his Democratic opponent, Fred P. Hageman. Returns from 95 precincts gave Turner 13,043, Hageman 6,335.

MORROW HAS LEAD ON BOTH OPPONENTS

BOND ISSUE ON BALLOT

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, Republican nominee for both the short and the long terms in the United States Senate from New Jersey, stepped into an immediate lead tonight in a vote count made slow by a cumbersome ballot.

The first handful of districts to report gave Morrow a better than 2-to-1 lead over Alexander Simpson, Democrat, for the six-year Senate term and a similar margin over Thelma Parkinson, Democrat, for the unexpired term of former Senator Walter E. Edge.

The count in the senatorial race was delayed by the form of the ballot on which a $100,000,000 bond issue for roads, institutions and water sites was submitted to the voters.

The vote was lighter than Morrow supporters had hoped for, partly because of a general assumption among Republicans that Morrow would be an easy victor and partly because dirty weather from the Northeast, accompanied by rain, kept many voters at home. Republican congressional candidates were leading in all early returns.

Three British Pilots Killed.

London, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Three Royal Air Force aviators were killed in two crashes today, bringing the total in the Royal Air Force for the year thus far to 60. Two airmen were killed at Manston in the crash of a bombing machine, while a third was killed in a crash near Ingatestone, Essex.

Man Killed on Way to Funeral.

Butler, Mo., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Charles Virden, of Carthage, Mo., was killed in a motor car accident near here last night while en route to the funeral of a nephew, the victim of a motor car accident Sunday.

REPUBLICANS CARRY VERMONT AS USUAL

WET ISSUE FELT THERE

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Republican Vermont voted early today and elected all the major candidates of the Republican party by the usual sweeping majorities except in the First Congressional District, where the Republican candidate won by a decreased margin.

Lieut. Gov. Stanley C. Wilson, Republican, rolled up slightly more than a 2 to 1 margin in the governorship fight over Park H. Pollard, of Cavendish, Democrat, and carried the Republican ticket for minor State offices with him. With the returns in from 184 of the 248 towns and cities, Wilson had 33,131 votes, Pollard 12,212.

Gov. John E. Weeks, Republican, seeking a congressional seat in the First District, defeated Joseph A. McNamara, Democrat, a Burlington wet, but by a small margin. With returns in from 100 of the 115 towns and cities in the district, Weeks had 17,832 votes and McNamara 10,708. It was in this district that the wet Democrats had concentrated their campaign, for Weeks was nominated by a narrow margin over two anti-prohibition opponents in the Republican primary.

In the Second District, the reelection of Congressman Ernest W. Gibson, Republican, over James Cosgrove, Democrat, of St. Johnsbury, was a foregone conclusion even before the votes were counted.

BULKLEY IS AHEAD IN EARLY OHIO VOTE

ator Frank B. Willis, which has already had four senators. The present term will expire March 4, 1933.

In Cuyahoga County (Cleveland), Bulkley's home, he was leading McCulloch better than two to one. In 55 precincts out of a total of 1,105 in the county, Bulkley had 6,060; McCulloch, 2,688.

George White, Marietta Democrat, had increased his lead slowly over Gov. Cooper on the face of returns from 812 of the State's 8,985 precincts. The vote was: White, 73,293; Cooper, 64,623.

The reports were from every county in the State. The gubernatorial fight in Ohio was one of the hardest fought in the State's history. White attacked the Cooper administration on its alleged extravagance in State government, while the governor defended his administration.

Because of the extremely heavy vote in many of the large cities, only a few precincts were received from most of them at an early hour.

Gov. Cooper, a dry, was a running mate of United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, a dry, while White, also a dry, was on the ticket headed by Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, an advocate of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Tilson and Bingham Sit Near Polls to Work, Wait

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Two men who have traveled the long road to political distinction—United States Senator Hiram Bingham and John Q. Tilson, majority leader in the National House—today got down to the fundamentals of ward work on election day.

Sitting side by side at a pine table, in an empty store which served as Republican ward headquarters, they kept tabs on the party members who were voting at the precinct room some distance away.

Fire at Polling Booth Delays Voting for Hour

North Tonawanda, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Interest at one polling booth here today was so intense that nobody noticed a coal stove getting hotter and hotter until the booth caught fire.

Firemen extinguished the fire before the voting machines were damaged, and balloting was resumed after an hour's delay.

BANKHEAD LEADING HEFLIN IN ALABAMA

Democratic Nominee Ahead in Senator's Race; Miller in Front for Governor.

TWO-TO-ONE VOTE SEEN

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Senator J. Thomas Heflin, seeking re-election on a Jeffersonian ticket, tonight fell far behind John H. Bankhead, Democratic nominee, as a third of the ballot boxes were counted. Tabulation of 790 of the State's 2,115 boxes give Bankhead 52,722; Heflin, 27,930.

R. M. Miller (Democrat) led Hugh A. Locke by a wide margin for governor, polling nearly two to one and leading in a big majority of the counties in the State.

In the race for lieutenant governor Hugh D. Merrill, of Anniston, had 7,019 to 3,258 for Dempsey M. Powell, of Greenville, Jeffersonian.

The other Democratic nominees for State office were without opposition.

RITCHIE'S MARGIN GROWING HOURLY

Maryland metropolis had cast their ballots.

Other Contests Undecided.

Returns on the races in the six Congressional districts were merely seeping in close to midnight, although a number of the city precincts had reported.

William P. Cole, Democratic candidate, had overcome the early lead established by the Republican incumbent, Linwood L. Clark, in the city voting for the Second district.

In the Third district John Philip Hill, Republican, trailed Vincent L. Palmisano, incumbent, by almost a two to one vote in the first reports but later was cutting his opponent's majority.

J. Charles Linthicum, wet leader in the House of Representatives, was leading W. O. Atwood by approximately 800. One precinct in the Fifth district gave Stephen W. Gambrill, incumbent, 164 votes to 78 for the Republican candidate, A. Kingsley Love.

Added interest was centered on the gubernatorial election this year by the race of Miss Elizabeth Gilman, Socialist nominee, who was the first Maryland woman candidate for the post. She was leading her ticket by a substantial majority on the basis of early returns in Baltimore.

Far behind her was Samuel Parker, Negro longshoreman of Baltimore, who was running on the Communist ticket.

Runs Strongly Everywhere.

Scattered reports from counties throughout the State indicated that Gov. Ritchie was making an excellent showing even in territory that is normally Republican.

Cumberland, for instance, appeared to be for the governor on the basis of early returns. In one precinct he had a lead of 194 votes over the Baltimore mayor. A second precinct showed for him a majority of 70, while a third gave him a two to one lead, or a margin of 295 votes.

Likewise unofficial reports were that Kitzmiller in Garrett County, also ordinarily Republican, was piling up a two to one lead for Gov. Ritchie.

The governor had a slight lead in Havre de Grace and indications were that the Democrats had a chance of carrying the town for the first time in a State election.

Crittenton Home's Work Described in Radio Talk

Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, vice president of the board of managers of the Florence Crittenton Home, yesterday described its work in a talk over radio station WJSV. She also included a message of thanks from the group of women in the home, for the gifts to the Community Chest which support the institution.

Nearly 50 young women are cared for by the home, offered loans to complete their education or to get outside work which will enable them to be self-supporting.

ELECTION OFFICIAL FREED BY KIDNAPERS

WOUNDED ABOUT HEAD

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Safe after what police believed was a "political kidnaping," Rex V. Hedrick, chairman of the Jackson County election board, who had been missing since early this morning, appeared tonight at police headquarters here.

The Buckner, Mo., banker told of being held prisoner all day by armed abductors who seized him this morning as he was motoring from his home to join associates on the election board in Independence. His left hand was swollen, his right cheek gashed, the right side of his head bruised.

Investigators at first had only Hedrick's abandoned automobile, broken glass and blood stains to guide them in their search.

The automobile, its doors open, was found on a county road. Other blood spots and broken glass were found on a nearby Federal highway.

A vigil of 750 city policemen, augmented by Federal secret service and prohibition agents, kept election trouble at a minimum in Kansas City proper.

The Federal Government filed charges of offering money to cast votes against George Bergold and William Emmett, both of Kansas City. Charges of soliciting money to cast a vote were placed against William Thomas and Henry Center, North Side laborers.

Delaware G. O. P. Candidates Lead

Hastings Running Ahead of Bayard for Senate and LeFevre Trails.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Republican candidates for United States senator and representative in Congress took a lead over their Democratic-Liberal Republican opponents in the early returns from today's election.

For the senatorship, returns from 90 districts out of 222 in the State gave Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Republican) a lead of 2,532 over former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, Democratic-Liberal Republican candidate. The vote in these districts was: Hastings, 13,337; Bayard, 10,805.

The same districts gave Representative Robert G. Houston (Republican) a lead over John J. Le Fevre, his Democratic-Liberal Republican opponent for Congress, of 3,187. The vote was: Houston, 13,635; Le Fevre, 10,448.

THIRD SENATE TERM IS AWARDED CAPPER

Allen, Also Hoover Exponent, Leads on Early Vote in Kansas.

HAUCKE PRESENTED EDGE

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Kansas voted Senator Arthur Capper (Republican) to his third term in the Senate and gave leads in tabulations early tonight to Senator Henry J. Allen, another exponent of the Hoover administration seeking to return to the Senate, and Frank (Chief) Haucke, Republican nominee for governor.

Returns from 452 of the 2,764 precincts in Kansas gave Allen 54,498 votes and McGill, 45,775.

Haucke, who defeated Gov. Clyde M. Reed for the Republican nomination, had 42,756 votes to 37,964 for Harry Woodring (Democrat) in returns from 457 precincts. Dr. John R. Brinkley, Independent candidate, whose name did not appear on the ballots, had received 28,048 written-in votes.

Capper, who, like Allen, is a former Governor of Kansas, had 32,847 votes to 16,114 for Davis on returns from 242 precincts.

Capper campaigned vigorously, standing on his own record and that of the Hoover administration. He espoused the 1930 tariff and farm marketing acts and defended the Federal Farm Board on the ground that it should be given a "fair trial."

In contrast Senator Allen, who was appointed to the Senate to fill the term left vacant by the elevation of Charles Curtis to the Vice Presidency, was prevented from active campaigning by illness. During his convalescence from an operation he was a White House guest of President Hoover.

Turnage Rules For Trachtenberg

Dismisses Procedure to Remove Tire Man to Baltimore.

Aaron Trachtenberg, local tire shop operator, will not have to return to Baltimore, Md., to answer a Federal warrant charging him with passing counterfeit money, United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage announced yesterday in dismissing removal proceedings which have been pending before him for several weeks.

The commissioner, in making the announcement, stated that he did not believe the Government had sufficiently identified the man.

Trachtenberg was alleged to have passed one spurious $20 bill on a merchant at Hagerstown, Md., and to have attempted to pass another on a second merchant September 13. Neither of the merchants was positive in his identification, and Trachtenberg, through Attorneys Bertrand Emerson and E. Russel Kelly, introduced alibi witnesses who asserted he was in Atlantic City on the day mentioned. Trachtenberg has been at liberty under $5,000 bond pending the commissioner's decision.

They will attend regular classes from 10 to 12 o'clock, at which time luncheon will be served in Corcoran Hall. A tour of the university buildings will be made from 1 to 1:45 p. m., and at 2 o'clock the mothers will be taken by bus to the Ellipse, where soccer, hockey, tennis and archery are scheduled.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The campaign of 1930 has closed. Results of most elections are known. Some people will be disappointed and some will be elated. But there will be enough representatives of different parties holding office during the next two years so that no very violent changes in policy will be made.

We have a tendency to be too indifferent before primaries and elections and too critical after. Public officers can and do exercise large influence over our daily life but the main course of events is in our hands. We can be helped or harmed very materially by the Government but we can yet take care of ourselves, if we will, under any government we are likely to have.

The main duty of the citizen is to accept cheerfully the result of an election, support the laws and Constitution as they stand at the time, and loyally cooperate with the Government. We make our own government. If we fail it is our own fault. Under our system a nation of good citizens can not have a bad government. If we give the best that is in us to our private affairs we shall have little need of governmental aid.

Interesting Side Lights On Nation's Balloting

(Associated Press.)

Cincinnati—John Windhorst, 80 years old, fell dead as he stepped into a voting booth.

Pittsburgh—They wouldn't let Irwin B. Laughlin vote, even though he's Ambassador to Spain. He'd forgotten to register.

Asheville, N. C.—The Sunny South turned in the snowstorm of election day. Five inches deep in some places.

Pittsburgh—He didn't do it on purpose, but Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Republican candidate for senator, cast ballot No. 13.

Newark, N. J.—J. Gilbert Mason, seeking the senatorship on the prohibition ticket, expects to be running for office until he's 100 years old. He's 89 already.

New York—If the Republicans lost nothing else, they at least lost $500. Some fellows with pistols went into the downtown Republican Club and took that much money from the assembled Republicans.

New Ashford, Mass.—The first returns, as usual, came from New Ashford where the folks get up early. All 36 votes had been cast by 6:15 a. m., and it was a Republican landslide—Allen (Republican) getting 29 for governor and Ely (Democrat), getting 7.

Memphis—Senator McKellar came home from Oklahoma on a stretcher, suffering from injuries in a recent motor accident, and despite an offer from election officials for a special voting arrangement, he went to the polls. He feared arrangements might be illegal.

Newark, N. J.—There is the Republican party, the Democratic party, the Socialist party—and in the Third New Jersey district there is the "Independent Life-Saving party." Louis Nimscke, candidate for Congress on that ticket, demanded safety on "ships, submarines and flying coffins."

New York—One never grows too old to vote. Miss Mary E. Nutting is past 100 years, but she was out voting today at Holyoke, Mass. John R. Voorhis, of New York, grand sachem of Tammany Hall, and 101 years old, showed signs of slowing up a bit, not getting around to vote until 9:30 a. m., whereas 8:45 has been his previous custom. He said his daughter wouldn't let him get up early today.

New York—The country's most exclusive voter, and probably its most expensive, was George Schrader. He was the only registered voter in the Thirty-eighth precinct of the Tenth assembly district (Times Square section). Six election employes and four party watchers were required to handle his vote. It cost $1,127.65.

New York—A Swiss psychologist, Dr. Oskar Pfister, came along and pooh-poohed political spellbinding. He said campaign oratory was a waste of breath. One can't change a voter's ideas by oratory, he declared. He suggested that future campaigners would appeal to the subconscious mind and thus might get somewhere.

New York—A candidate who actually courts the jinx number is Representative Boylan, seeking his fourth term. He voted Ballot No. 13 today, just as he has for many years.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor will preside, giving an account of Dr. LaGorce's work for the society, while personal tribute to the guest of honor will be paid by the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University.

SYMPHONY CONCERT SEASON IS OPENED

GOOD AUDIENCE ATTENDS

Drawing a nearly capacity audience in spite of the counter attraction of election returns, the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra concert season opened brilliantly last night at Constitution Hall with Leopold Stokowski, the incomparable leader of the organization, conducting the entire program.

The performance was marked by the innovation of giving this series at night instead of in the afternoon, as formerly, in order to accommodate thousands of music lovers unable to attend afternoon concerts. While the concert drew the fashionable music lovers as usual, the audience was more truly representative of the city's cosmopolitan population. The concert was given under the local management of T. Arthur Smith.

Leader Stokowski proved himself in splendid form with the first movement of his baton and the audience greeted him with an ovation when he appeared on the platform. The first number was the lovely symphony suite "Scheherazade," by Rimsky-Horsakow and the orchestra gave it a magnificent rendition. The individual beauties of the four movements were fittingly emphasized and the work of the solo violins was particularly admirable.

Another Russian composer of a modern school was represented in the concluding number of the program, "Le Sacre du Printemps," by Strawinsky. As a tonal feat it is unexcelled in modern composition and under the magic of Stokowski's understanding baton the Philadelphia aggregation of master musicians made the most of its many beauties.

Louisiana Solidly Democratic Again

Amendment Adopted Makes Provision for Bond Issue of $84,500,000.

New Orleans, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—An overwhelming majorities the Louisiana electorate today adopted 11 eight constitutional amendments and elected the two Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives who had Republican opposition.

The other six representatives were reelected without opposition, as also was Gov. Huey P. Long, who was elected to the United States Senate as the successor to Senator Joseph E. Ransdell.

J. O. Fernandez, First District, and Paul M. Maloney, Second District, had easy victories over their Republican opponents, James B. Murphy and Henry J. Veith, respectively.

The constitutional amendments included provisions for issuance of $75,000,000 bonds against anticipated gasoline tax revenues for 25 years for the construction of paved roads and bridges; to authorize the City of New Orleans to issue $4,500,000 bonds for municipal refinancing and to issue $5,000,000 bonds for a new Statehouse.

Tobacco Growers Lodge Protest Against Prices

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 4.—With general complaint voiced by the tobacco growers that the prevailing price levels are not affording them more than the cost of production, merchants of Caswell County have signed a published protest, which has been brought to the attention of the large buying corporations, that the prices are confiscatory and that the merchants are paying the same price for cigarettes as when leaf prices were much higher.

Representatives of the buying companies insist that the farmers are getting a fair value for their product but point out that the crop in this section was a failure this year owing to the drought and late hailstorms.

FEDERATION WILL MEET

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 809. Clarendon, Va.

Effective November 1, the officials of the Rosslyn Gas Co. yesterday announced the rates for gas for house-heating purposes, which follow:

To any customer using the company's gas service for heating in centralized heating equipment, and where gas is used as the only medium of general space heating, the fixed rate will be $1 per 1,000 cubic feet plus a maximum charge per 100 cubic feet of maxium hourly rate of use payable only during the seven heating months, October to April, inclusive. The gross rate in each of the above mentioned cases will be $1.10, $2.20 and 70 cents.

The discount for prompt payment of all bills will be the difference between the net and gross rate.

The minimum monthly bill shall be the sum of the fixed charge and maximum charge which totals $3, but in no case shall the minimum monthly bill less than $1.

Users of the service, other than heating, on the same premises for the same customer, will be included in this rate, provided that the annual requirements of gas for heating purposes is at least 60 per cent of the total annual consumption.

It is understood that it is the purpose of the company to give a considerable reduction for gas used for purposes other than heating and it is possible that this rate will be announced within the next 30 days.

Mrs. Nat Hynes was unanimously reelected president of the Arlington District Library Association at its meeting, held in the library rooms at Clarendon, last night. Other officers are: Dr. Ernest Hagan, vice president; Mrs. Charles R. Taylor, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Morris Lockwood, chairman of the executive committee.

The library, which has grown in seven years from 80 books, now has more than 4,500 books properly listed and, according to Mrs. Lockwood, the library is in need of more books for children of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades. There has been added through the efforts of Mrs. R. N. Davies, county health nurse, a complete reference library on health, Mrs. Lockwood reported.

While the library has long since outgrown its present quarters it was voted to remain at the present location, Virginia avenue and Wilson boulevard at Clarendon.

Although the association finds itself badly in need of funds to continue the operation of the library, it was announced that the following organizations have pledged their financial support in addition to many others which have made the library possible: Thomas Nelson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; the Arlington County Monarch Club and the Woman's Club of Lyon Village.

The president announces that committee appointments will be given out at the December meeting.

The Arlington County Civic Federation will holds its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. This being the last meeting prior to the election of officers, which will take place at the December meeting, President Hall urges a full attendance of all delegates in order that all unfinished business can be taken care of before new officers are elected.

The county health department yesterday announced that all persons who are selling milk in Arlington County must first obtain a permit from the department.

Norbert Melnick, county sanitary officer, states that the recent inspection made by State inspectors from Richmond of all dairies in the county has been completed and a detailed report will be given to the public within the next few days.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse at 12 o'clock.

Frostburg Urged To Conserve Water

Mayor Issues Appeal, but Minimizes Reports of Alarmists.

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—An appeal to the approximately 7,000 residents of this Western Maryland town to conserve water was issued today by Mayor Fred Crow. At the same time he decried alarmist reports growing out of the closing of public schools yesterday.

The schools were closed yesterday and again today, but Mayor Crow explained that a blown fuse, which crippled the pumping plant for 12 hours late Sunday and early Monday, caused the closing yesterday, while today was a holiday, on account of the State election.

The schools affected, the State Normal, the high school, a grade school and a parochial school, will reopen tomorrow, he said. One of the two town reservoirs contains about 1,000,000 gallons, but this will not be touched, the mayor said, except in case of extreme fire hazard. The other is virtually dry, the supply from the springs and wells flowing out about as fast as it is pumped in.

Gentle Rains Revive Farmers' Waning Hope

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 4.—Gentle rains falling in the Shenandoah Valley since early today served to revive drooping spirits of farmers, hard hit by the drought which has continued with but little interruption since late last winter. Farmers said it would be highly valuable to wheat, little of which had sprouted since early October planting. It will also give root to carry pasture over the winter, replenish country streams for live stock and fill cisterns.

Commercial apple growers said the rain would benefit all orchards, and particularly those in shallow land, which felt effects of the drought severely. It also checked a large and menacing forest fire in mountains west of here.

STATE D. A. R. HEAD READS HER REPORT

Mrs. Beaman Tells Group in Lynchburg of Growth of Organization.

184 DELEGATES PRESENT

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 4.—The annual report of State Regent Mrs. Bathaniel Beaman, of Norfolk, made at the opening session of the Virginia conference of the D. A. R. at Randolph-Macon Woman's College this morning, showed that new chapters organized during the year brought the total up to 71. Mrs. Beaman's report urged chapters to contribute to the national D. A. R. magazine, so that it might be distributed at colleges and universities to "overcome subversive publicity," to which the organization had been committed recently. Mrs. Beaman gave approval to publication of a manual designed to aid aliens upon arrival to the United States.

Credentials committee reported 184 present who were entitled to vote.

Washington, treasurer general, told Mrs. Harriet Vaughan Rigdon, of the convention that the D. A. R. now is recognized as a big business corporation, that it handles more than $2,000,000 annually. She reported gifts of $66,431 last year to 56 accredited schools, $23,000 for student loans and $12,000 for Americanization.

Mrs. Brooks G. White, jr., Florida, and Mrs. Ralph Van Landingham, North Carolina, vice presidents general, were presented and made short talks.

The conference went on record as opposing an alleged claim of Missouri to two distinguished Virginians, Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, of the Lewis-Clark Expedition. Attention of the claim of Missouri was made by Mrs. J. Cooke Grayson, historian.

Thirty-nine members who died since last conference were honored at a memorial service, led by Mrs. Matthew B. Porter, State chaplain.

Numerous reports from committees were heard this afternoon. Miss Claudine Hutter entertained the delegates after the afternoon session at Poplar Forest, one of Thomas Jefferson's homes. Tonight the delegates were given a reception at the Woman's Club.

Williamsburg Company Will Help Unemployed

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Kenneth Chorley, resident vice president of the Williamsburg Holding Corporation, said today plans are being prepared for the expenditure of an additional $1,000,000 for the restoration of colonial Williamsburg.

It was decided by the corporation to speed up the restoration work as an aid to unemployment in that city and vicinity. The move was made at the request of Col. Arthur Woods of New York, chairman of national employment committee, and president of the Williamsburg Holding Corporation.

Tobacco Prices Satisfy Planters.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Opening of the dark loose leaf tobacco market here today saw offerings totaling 110,000 pounds, prices in the main ruling about as they were at the opening a year ago. Most of the planters appeared to be satisfied with their sales.

WORLD UNEMPLOYMENT.

Unemployment in the United States is being grossly overestimated in other countries. At the opening of Parliament last week Premier Ramsay MacDonald said that if statistics were compiled in America on the same basis that is used in Britain they would show 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 persons out of work here. Communist newspapers in France and other countries placed the number of Americans out of work at 9,000,000 last summer and made a practice of enlarging their figures every week. These statements are obviously absurd.

The international labor organization at Geneva estimates that 4,000,000 men are unemployed in the United States. America leads all other nations, according to these calculations, in the number of workmen who are without jobs. Assuming that the depression has brought similar consequences in all parts of the world, this would be expected, since the United States employs more men than any other industrial nation. Reckoned on the basis of population, however, Germany has 1 man in 20 out of work; Britain, 1 in every 22, and the United States, 1 in every 30. Unemployment is not such a serious problem in Italy, and in France it is virtually nonexistent.

Careful estimates worked out by officials conducting President Hoover's employment campaign indicate that the figure used by the international labor organization is too high. The census taken last April indicated that 2,500,000 persons were without jobs and were looking for work. Counting persons who are temporarily out of work and those who are changing jobs the estimated total today is brought to 3,500,000.

The United States is certainly doing more to reduce unemployment than any other country. Great Britain and Germany hand out doles to some of their jobless men, but when idleness is subsidized the incentive to find and to provide work is minimized. The United States Government is speeding up a building program that will give employment to thousands. It is coordinating the efforts of every agency and every community in an effort to relieve want and distress as well as to create jobs.

Britain is just beginning to plan a building program and to stimulate new enterprise to help the unemployed. In Germany a drive is being made to reduce wages and thus cut down costs of production. By comparison the lot of America's unemployed is by far the more hopeful.

AMERICA'S AIR STRENGTH.

When the Foreign Policy Association issues a statement ranking the American aeronautical establishment second in strength to the French, but ahead of the British, the Italian and the Japanese, it stirred high officials of both the Army and the Navy to the defense of the aviation strength of their respective services. "I think that our naval aeronautical organization compares very well with that of any other country," said Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, adding: "I won't say it is either better or worse, because it is very difficult to compare air strength." On behalf of Maj. Gen. Fechet it was stated that comparisons of air strength can be made only on an approximate basis, inasmuch as complete figures are not available for foreign countries, and no standard basis of reckoning is used by the various nations. Both the Navy and War Departments called attention to the large number of planes that will be in commission at the conclusion of the five-year building programs.

The strength of the American military and naval aeronautical establishment, however, is not measured by the number of planes in the Army and Naval Air Corps. Gradually but surely the aeronautical construction industry is centering in the United States. Should an emergency require, America could begin manufacturing military and naval planes on short notice. Factories would be available; dies and manufacturing equipment could be got ready without delay; there already exists a corps of trained engineers, technicians and artisans skilled in the construction of aircraft; a stock of engines and engine equipment could be built up quickly and the instrument makers would immediately start turning out compasses, indicators, &c., in large quantities.

America must be reckoned the most powerful of all nations with respect to potential strength in the air. No other nation has the equipment or the resources for turning out aircraft in large quantities that are possessed by America. The real problem in the event of a national emergency would be to obtain a large number of pilots trained in the operation of military craft. It is primarily to train personnel that a large peace-time air corps is required.

DELAYED RETURNS.

Complete returns from yesterday's election will not be known for several days. In most States ballots will be counted as soon as the polls close, and results will be rapidly tabulated and broadcast to the Nation. But the complicated systems of tabulating votes in some States delay the completed version of the people's will.

Kentucky's returns will be greatly delayed. That State has a new election law, providing that county election boards rather than judges of election in the precincts must tabulate the vote. Instead of going to work immediately, the county boards must wait until the day after election to begin their count. This means that in the larger counties the results can not be known for several days. In event of a close vote at any time the results of a national election might remain in doubt while the dilatory system of Kentucky was getting into operation.

Whatever reasons may have prompted Kentucky to change its system, it may be doubted that the advantages resulting therefrom offset the inconvenience to the country of having one State lag behind all the others in announcing its returns. The need of uniformity in State laws is nowhere more apparent than in statutes governing elections of national interest. Maine throws the country off balance by holding its elections in September rather than November. This puts the candidates of both parties at a disadvantage and tends to break down responsibility to the national organizations.

States are attempting every year to change election laws in favor of some fanciful reform. Unless there is very good reason for a change, the interests of each State demand that it should conform to the general practice. It is to be hoped that the new statute which is under trial in Kentucky will prove to be so inconvenient and cumbersome that the State will return to the common practice of tabulating votes.

CAPONE'S GENEROUS OFFER.

Al Capone's answer to Chicago's drive against "public enemies," of whom he is the foremost, is an offer to compromise. Since he spent a winter in a Philadelphia jail "Scarface" Al has no objection to being arrested, if the judge will dismiss the charges as soon as he surrenders. In fact, it appears that the notorious gangster would rather enjoy making a gesture toward law enforcement. His surrender and vindication by the court would put every one in good humor. Big Bill could point with pride to Chicago's triumph over the racketeers. The police could perhaps double the cost of protection levied against gangsters, and the racketeers themselves would feel justified in doubling their business and in going after better customers to pay for the magnanimous concession on Al's part.

To show that his heart is in the right place Capone offered to go even further. He would give up his labor racket and leave Chicago. From a delightful home in Florida he would operate his beer racket by "remote control." All that he asks in return for these generous concessions is that his beer trade be permitted to go on undisturbed. Since all opposition, except the feeble protest of the law, has been wiped out by gang warfare, Chicagoans could sip their beverages in peace. And the reformers could point to Al in the tranquillity of his Florida home as an example of the blessedness of a redeemed racketeer.

Oh, justice, what opportunities are lost in thy name! Judge McGoorty, of the criminal court, spurned Capone's offer, and told the grand jury that the time had come when the public must choose between the rule of the gangster and the rule of law. This means, according to an ancient and established custom, that the good people of Chicago will try to live under a rule of law and that "Scarface" Al will go off in a huff and start up a new racket, besides maintaining all of his old ones. It means that the police must keep up the pretense of pursuing criminals while, in fact, encouraging them.

It begins to look as if Chicago will never have peace and tranquillity until the people turn out and elect Mr. Capone mayor.

HARPING ON CURRENCY REFORM.

Economic depressions invariably give rise to demands for currency reform. When times are good no one questions the adequacy of the currency supply even though prices may skyrocket, but when times are bad not only does it appear to the casual observer that the primary need is for currency expansion, but the public is in a mood to experiment with any theory offered as calculated to improve conditions. At present there seems to be in the making a demand for the valorization of silver as a monetary standard. An incipient controversy over monetization of silver is arising from three sources.

Asiatic countries are responsible for a good deal of the propaganda. These countries are on a silver basis. Because silver has fallen in value from 80 cents a unit to about 30, their buying power has been correspondingly reduced. Because Asia can not buy in accustomed quantities from Europe, Europe has had to reduce its takings from the United States. The Western States are preparing to add to the controversy. The Bryanesque 16 to 1 formula has never been completely abandoned in the silver-producing States. Any demand for currency reform finds ready support in the West. But the principal responsibility for a silver valorization controversy if it materializes must fall on the heads of British and Continental economists who have seized upon a League of Nations report having to do with decreasing gold production as affording an opportunity to renew the old silver controversy.

These economists attack the quantity theory of money, which presupposes that since all the gold in the world measures the world's wealth, variations in its quantity will automatically adjust themselves through adjustments in the price level. But, they say, it requires an annual increase of about 3 per cent in gold output to take care of increasing monetary demands. Between 1850 and 1910 the production of gold increased at about that rate, but the prospect is that gold production will slow down some 25 per cent in the next ten years. In addition, large quantities of gold are stagnating in central banks. The United States and France together hold 55 per cent of the world's $10,600,000,000 monetary gold holdings.

Between the British economists, the Asiatic demand that silver be valorized and the Western interest in developing a market for the product of silver mines, many of which are at present shut down, it seems not unlikely that a currency controversy will be precipitated during the winter.

BUY AMERICAN GOODS.

Campaigns urging the people to "Buy Now" are spreading throughout the country. With savings piling up and prices falling, business men are convinced that the public can bring the depression to an end by normal spending. If every family with a regular income would begin supplying its needs without regard to the economic slump, business would necessarily pick up and the unemployment situation would be relieved.

There is a prevalent feeling, however, that another note ought to be added to the "Buy Now" campaigns. Because of the hard times people have a tendency to buy cheap foreign goods in place of more substantial American products. When an article of foreign manufacture is purchased only the merchant and the importer are benefited. When American goods are bought the merchant and jobber take a profit and the benefits are extended back to American factories and workingmen.

Not all American industry is sufficiently protected by the tariff. Foreign competition for the purchaser's dollar is very keen. Money spent for American goods will be most effective in relieving distress in this country. As workmen are called back into industry to supply the demand for American goods their own wages will be poured into the domestic market. Buy now, but buy the products of American industry and labor!

It's a good thing that scheme of mixing alcohol with gasoline is to be confined to Germany. In this country it would upset the oil conservation program.

NAVAL BUILDING

From the New York Herald Tribune.

It has become almost axiomatic that in times of depression Government agencies should increase the amount of necessary public works in order to balance, in a measure, the inactivity induced by bad business. President Hoover, at his famous conference after the market crash of 1929, reemphasized this principle by urging an unusual activity by Federal, State and local governments in public construction of all sorts. There should never, of course, be governmental waste, but, as has frequently been said by leaders in politics and industry, this is the time for spending money.

This broad truth has a very real bearing on the Navy. The idea, advanced by some thoughtless persons, that we should neglect our national insurance because we are not quite so well off this year as we have been is not only unsound on its face but absurd from the economic standpoint. The possible saving of taxes which might result from cutting our already slender expenditure on national defense would scarcely benefit "those of our people"—to use the President's phrase—"who are in honest difficulties." Such people are not at all burdened by Federal taxation if this burden is compared with that inflicted by unemployment.

The building which we must do between now and 1936 in order to reach the minimum set by the London treaty is estimated at about $750,000,000. Dividing this total annually over a five-year period we see that it means an expenditure of about $150,000,000 a year, or about 1.25 per cent of the total of about twelve billions which we lavish annually on government in general. From the standpoint of governmental economy, therefore, the case against building the ships is weak indeed. From the standpoint of national defense and from that of diplomatic action at future conferences the case is wholly for bringing the Navy up to the treaty standard.

What would the construction of these ships mean to the "people in honest difficulties?" Admiral Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, in timely manner furnishes the answer. "Eighty per cent of the cost of men-of-war," he says, "is pay of American labor." This means that $600,000,000 out of an expenditure of $750,000,000 would go to American workmen if the United States, now that naval competition is curbed, decides in favor of an adequate Navy. If a program is speedily adopted $120,000,000 would be made available to American labor each year for the next five years. In view of the current depression the first year's expenditures could be made larger, tapering off to smaller outlay toward the end of the five-year period.

Already steps have been taken along similar lines. Thanks to Government loans, $50,000,000 is to be spent on building merchant ships, thereby providing employment for 20,000 men. One of Mr. Hoover's engineering advisers reports that public construction is being advanced as fast as possible. The Navy Department, moreover, has modified its retrenchment ideas so as to permit $2,000,000 worth of construction on docks and similar facilities. The building up of the Navy to the treaty limit, which in many ways is more important than any other construction project, thus has full economic justification.

STICK TO THE JOB.

Do not be swayed by every breeze.
To every impulse do not bend,
Who gains his purpose by degrees
Holds what he wins unto the end.
'Tis better patiently to climb
And stand sure-footed at the crest
Than to evade the price of time
And at the last be dispossessed.

Stick to your job and learn it well,
Of change for petty gain beware;
Do not a life-long glory sell
For one brief year of morning's fair.
If you are given a task to do
Keep this in mind from day to day,
Success is just as close to you
As to some toiler far away.

Be not content with seeming wise,

Is caught upon the angler's hook.
So men from this to that will race
Grasping at every lure they see,
But those who walk at slower pace
Make friends with opportunity.

Stick to your job whate'er it be;
The better post is near at hand.
In wisdom lies your destiny;
Success can find you where you stand.
From rung to rung the ladder climb.
Beware the blind, foolhardy leap;
Learn from experience and time
And what you gather you shall keep.

Architects' Plans Have Little Value If Nobody Can Lay Brick.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As there are two kinds of muscles, voluntary and involuntary, so there are two kinds of speech.

One is a mere repeating of stock phrases, without direction from the conscious mind. The tongue makes habitual sounds, as the hands in tying a shoe lace make habitual motions, while the mind wanders away to consider other matters. It is the parrot-like speech commonly employed by annoyed mothers, social leaders and young people incapable of thought. It neither requires nor gives evidence of intelligence.

The other kind of speech is deliberate and purposeful. Whether good or bad, it is a conscious effort to express thought. The sounding of every syllable is directed by the mind. And thus it serves as a measure of the speaker's education and intelligence.

The foundation of all education is one's native language. It is the medium through which all learning must be acquired and the material of which all ideas must be constructed.

The less a man knows of his native language, the less he knows of everything else.

Language is the bedrock foundation of culture. One who would learn any of the arts or sciences must first of all learn language. It is the key that unlocks the storehouse of wisdom and knowledge.

And yet not one person in ten who professes to be educated can write or speak the language of his nativity correctly or fluently.

To charge that not one person in ten can write his language well is a gentle indictment, for writing is an art or trade still comparatively new and its practice is not essential to the business of learning. Intelligent men who have ideas to express are benumbed by stage-fright when they take their pens in hand, and stupid men often write so charmingly as to conceal their poverty of ideas.

But the inability to speak one's native language is an open confession of ignorance or stupidity or both.

When a youth has memorized certain facts concerning botany, astronomy, biology, chemistry and philosophy we say he is educated. Yet, as a rule, he hasn't acquired the raw material of which education is made. Tell him to describe a block of wood and he can neither find the words nor assemble them in orderly sentences. If he tries to express the most simple of ideas he will hem and haw and repeat and at last resort to current slang expressions that serve to conceal his ignorance.

Slang and profanity and stock phrases serve us in place of intelligent speech.

We teach our children a smattering of dead and foreign languages and make little effort to teach them our own.

Diplomas proclaim their erudition, but they can't read a newspaper story without consulting a dictionary or skipping the big words.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Government by Default.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It is not a hopeful sign that the three candidates for Congress from St. Louis districts were all unopposed. Niedringhaus, Tenth District Republican; Cochran, Eleventh District Democrat, and Dyer, Twelfth District Republican, were all certain of office because the opposing party was willing to let the election go by default. Such a situation is lamentable, especially in such a year as this when the air is full of political problems of great importance and significance.

We are not living under a dictatorship, or a monarchy, or an oligarchy, but under a two-party system of government. If that system is to endure, strong, intelligent opposition must be furnished to check and supervise the behavior of the party and officers in power. The function of the opposition is just as important as the function of the "ins." In England this fact is so well recognized that the "outs" are referred to as "His Majesty's opposition," and thus assigned as conspicuous a role as "His Majesty's government."

The three vacancies on the congressional ticket in St. Louis are indicative of our lack of real political leadership both in the Republican and Democratic parties.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

In an Arkansas district Mrs. Otis T. Wingo is the candidate of both major parties for the House of Representatives.

Perhaps Mrs. Wingo richly deserved this nonpartisan support. It may be that she was the mainspring behind her husband's success, urging him on with her enthusiasm and placing at his disposal a splendid brain. Nothing of this sort, however, was hinted in the news reports. The reader was given to believe that Mrs. Wingo became the standard bearer both of the Democratic and Republican parties because her husband requested it and because she was a woman, regardless of any special talent on her part.

If that be true, the precedent set in Arkansas is a bad one, even though it be an arresting example of courtesy and fine feeling. In this country public office is not a thing to be bequeathed to one's next of kin or one's best friend. Supposedly, it is won on merit, and it should descend through a like channel. This seat in Congress had been awarded by the voters to Mr. Wingo; it was not contemplated in our scheme of government that he might leave it to be administered by his widow, merely because she was his widow, as a portion of his estate.

From this distance, it appears that heart impulses in Arkansas overwhelmed the impulses of the mind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Subsurface Garages Should Be Built Now, Beneath "Triangle Park" and Opposite the New Commerce Building.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After waiting for several months for some public suggestion as to making garages under public parks, I write to ask why not begin by making such use of space under the triangle park south of Pennsylvania avenue at Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets? Also, why not make a long subsurface garage on Fifteenth street opposite the Commerce Building at the same time? Part of the earth from this area then could be used to make triangle park. A. B. T.

Theo. Clarke Analyzes Party Line-ups and Predicts a Swing of the Pendulum Back Toward Democracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While it is true that only two Democratic Presidents have appeared during the last 27 years as "Hickory" relates, there is another way of looking at the matter. Prior to the Civil War the Democratic party held an unbroken line of political victories, quite as long as that of the Republican party. The election of Whig Presidents was quite as infrequent in antebellum days as the election of Democrats in postbellum days.

The Republican party came into power as a minority party, and became a majority party through the accession of Union Democrats, and the irresistible tide of immigration to the North, East and West. In spite of these facts, twelve years after the close of the Civil War the presidential election was so close that it required the services of an electoral commission to determine the result. The postbellum renaissance of the Democratic party dates from the Hayes-Tilden dispute in 1876.

If we take 1876 as a starting point, we have 52 years to the election of President Hoover, and of this number the Democratic party occupied the White House 16 years and the Republicans 36. While there were but two Democratic Presidents, each served two terms, in spite of the fact that the party was almost wrecked by the Civil War, and suffered many civil and political disabilities for a decade.

With the disappearance of the passions and prejudices engendered by war, the Democratic party found itself on the wrong side of the tariff question at a time when newly created industries were springing up in the East and Middle West. The great and growing industrial organization of the country became distrustful of "Free Traders" and "Tariff for Revenue Only" Democrats. They needed protection.

Also the repressive measures taken by that party to prevent colored citizens from exercising the right to vote, caused that vote in every Northern State to solidly align itself for over 40 years with the Republican party. This was the vote which composed the fatal balance of power between the two major parties from 1876 to 1896.

Since the introduction of great industries at the South and its transformation from an agricultural to an industrial section, Democratic leaders were quick to learn the efficacy of protection. Today there are high and low tariff Republicans and high and low tariff Democrats, with liberal Democrats bidding for the colored vote in many parts of the country and getting that vote in ever increasing numbers. The political pendulum is bound to swing back again. THOMAS H. R. CLARKE.

A Correspondent Wonders If Economic Conditions Are as Bad as They Are Painted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some enterprising public service agency could compile most interesting data through an investigation into the proportionate business "slump" as it has affected business in general and as it has been felt by the associated amusement industries. The phenomenal growth of miniature golf courses during the past year, the increasing attendance at moving picture theaters and other entertainment institutions and the enormous salary levels maintained among radio, stage and screen stars would seem to discount, in some measure at least, the reported seriousness of our present economic situation.

Regarding unemployment, it seems that some of the reports on this subject may have been exaggerated also. Not the figures concerning the number of unemployed. They have no doubt been gathered with great accuracy. But is it not possible that a considerable number of those without work are just taking for granted the impossibility of obtaining employment and are making no real determined effort to find a job? Does it not appear conceivable also, that many, unable to locate work in the particular line of endeavor for which by experience or preference they feel best qualified, are ignoring opportunities temporarily to earn a living in other fields of effort?

In one of the local Sunday papers a columnist advertisement in the "Male Help Wanted" section stated that a similar ad appears each Sunday for men, that many men are needed by the company, that only a few responded each week, that virtually all are employed, that almost without exception they make money from the start. Without wishing to offer anything but sympathetic assistance and encouragement to the army of worthy unemployed the writer wonders whether there are not some who seek assistance without doing all they can to assist themselves.

Subway Traffic Plans Should Be Made at Once by Park and Planning Commission.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The municipal-center street-railway subway proposal now under consideration by the National Park and Planning Commission should have been given serious consideration long before now. An extensive system of thoroughfares for underground traffic is absolutely necessary for the growth of the city. The present deplorable and rapidly increasing congestion of our streets makes this plain enough.

That is a very backward municipality of more than half a million inhabitants which fails to heed the call for traffic subways in its healthy material development under modern conditions. The Planning Commission has begun the study of underground ways and means none too soon. It should scheme on a generous scale, keeping in view what is likely to be the as yet unimagined traffic needs of the future.

VARGAS WILL RETIRE ON MAKING REFORMS

New Regime Will Represent Wishes of Brazilian People, Aid Says.

LUIS LIBERTY DEMANDED

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Brazilian provincial government, of which Dr. Getulio Vargas became head yesterday as the victor in a brief revolution, plans to step out as soon as it has effected reforms and democratic elections will then be conducted.

This was the assurance today of Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, associate of Vargas and just named minister of the interior and justice in the temporary government who told the Associated Press that the new administration will represent the will of the Brazilian people.

"We have established a provisional government similar to that when the republic was proclaimed in 1889," he continued. "We shall shape our program with the idea of making a real representative government and bringing honest administration into all departments."

Dr. Aranha said no decision had yet been made as to the disposition of political prisoners, but in this connection newspapers said this afternoon that friends of Washington Luis, deposed president now held prisoner in Fortress Copacabana, had brought a habeas corpus action for release of the former executive. They charge that he has been held a prisoner for more than 24 hours without charges being preferred.

The banking situation has not been changed with installation of the new government. Financial institutions are still operating under a moratorium with exchange transactions restricted to the official bank of Brazil, but foreign bankers expect they will be permitted to conduct all types of business within a few days.

Columba Park Citizens Oppose 4-Cent 'Gas' Tax

Elimination of the item for completion of the George Truesdell School from the 1932 budget and the proposed 4-cent gasoline tax were the chief topics at last night's meeting of the Columbia Park Citizens Association in the Hampshire Gardens, New Hampshire avenue and Emerson street northwest.

The matter of the school's completion was referred to the school committee and, after spirited debate, the association voted against the gasoline tax. Efforts will be made to obtain earlier bus service in the morning. M. L. Luftine was admitted to membership.

Brazil Will Send New Envoy, Report

Helio Lobo, at Montevideo, Mentioned for Post in Washington.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Rio de Janeiro correspondent of La Nacion said today the new Brazilian government is contemplating various diplomatic changes in the near future, including replacement of the present Brazilian Ambassador in Washington.

The dispatch asserted that Sylvino Gurgel do Amaral, who was appointed Ambassador to the United States in the deposed Washington Luis regime, will be replaced by Helio Lobo, now Minister at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Ambassador S. Gurgel do Amaral, in response to queries, declared last night that he had received no information nor any intimation regarding any transfer from his post here. He assumed his duties as Ambassador in Washington about five years ago and has been an active participant in the social and official activities of the Diplomatic Corps during his residence here. He resides at the embassy, 1704 Eighteenth street northwest.

Youths Get Cash And Car in Holdup

Two daring young desperatoes were being sought by Arlington County and Washington police last night following a dual robbery in Arlington County that netted the pair some $25 in cash and an automobile.

Cecil Freeman, of 1142 Twentieth street northwest, driver for a cut-rate cab company, was the first victim of the two. He was hired in Washington to drive to a place in Arlington County. Just after crossing the Virgina State line he was stopped by a sharp command and two pistols and was relieved of $19.000 and the cab. Leaving the cab, the men went afoot a short distance and then stopped Leon Abrahams, of 412 Iowa avenue northwest, who was driving to Washington. He was halted at pistols' point, and after being robbed of a small amount of cash, was thrown from his automobile. The two men then drove off in the general direction of Washington.

With the award of the Navy Cross to Gunnery Sergt. Kennard F. Bubier and Master Sergt. Victor H. Czegha, both stationed at the Quantico (Va.) Marine Base, the Navy Department yesterday took official cognizance of the part both men played in the success of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Struggling against the elements in the South polar region, they kept in repair the three airplanes used by the party. Fourteen months spent on the ice floes of Little America, where they kept the plane motors tuned to the highest peak of efficiency, drew official commendation of the Department and the citation, "for distinguished service."

More than 100 hours of flying time without motor trouble was the record of the Byrd aircraft. The expedition had four planes, one of which was never in service. Two of these, a Ford and a Fairchild were left on the ice barrier by the returning party because of the inability of their ship to reach the base.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the decoration of the marines noncommissioned officers, the Navy Department awarded Capt. Alton N. Parker, of Los Angeles, the Distinguished Flying Cross. Capt. Parker, who discovered and claimed new territory in the name of the United States, is a pilot of the Western Air Express, Alhambra, Calif. He is a Marine Reserve officer.

AUSTRIA CAPTURES SOCIALISTS' ARMS

Victims Protest Seizures in Raids With General Elections Near.

VIENNA PLACES VISITED

Vienna, Austria, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—With the general elections only a few days off, great excitement prevailed in the ranks of Socialists as the government today began a series of raids of Socolist headquarters, confiscating arms and ammunition.

The Socialists protested against being disarmed, claiming that 120,000 Facists were permitted to retain their rifles, machine guns, field pieces and great quantities of ammunition.

At dawn today police, reinforced by soldiers and gendarmes from the provinces, raided the athletic club of the Socialist party secretariat and other Socialist meeting places throughout Austria.

Interest In Elections.

Tonight the government announced that 40 machine guns, 500,000 cartridges and 4,000 rifles, revolvers, grenades and bandoleers had been seized thus far.

Among the places visited by the raiding troops were Graz, Klagenfurt, Wienerneustadt, Bruck, Linz, Eisenstradt and eight districts in Vienna itself. In addition, the search of private Socialist dwellings also was started despite the protest of the Socialists who claimed the government was acting without legal search warrants.

The general elections of Sunday have stirred intense interest since for the first time the Socialists are threatening to become the strongest party in the national assembly by reason of a split in ranks of the other parties. If this should happen it would be virtually impossible for the conservative parties to wrest control of the city government of Vienna out of the Socialists' hands, an object long fought for.

Charges by Socialists.

Last year a supreme effort was made by the Fascist Heimwehr to compel the Christian Social coalition government to achieve a constitutional revision by the proclamation of a dictatorship, but Dr. Johan Schober, the chancellor, refused. Dr. Schober meantime resigned, with his cabinet, in September because of a crisis arising over the appointment of Fascist railways director. Fascists then entered the new national ministry.

The Socialists now claim that the Prince of Starhemberg, chief commander of the Fascist Heimwehr and minister of the interior, aided by Dr. Hueber, Heimwehr leader and minister of justice, have set themselves to the task of sapping the strength of the Socialists.

Wait for Developments.

How the situation in Austria will develop during the next few days is the subject of conjecture in political circles.

The intended action of the government to seize the arms of the Socialists was revealed prematurely last night, but the Socialists were unable to take any action, as Parliament is dissolved. The party, however, today issued a manifesto telling its followers to offer no resistance to the raids.

Only last week Dr. Hueber told an election meeting:

"We will shut up the 'jabbering booth' at the earliest possible moment," a reference that was taken to mean Parliament.

Do-X Will Take Off Today From Amsterdam

The DO-X, on its first lap of a voyage to the United States, will follow the Rhine into Holland and is expected to arrive at Amsterdam in six hours.

M'DONALD UPHELD BY SCANT MARGIN

VIEWED AS CRUCIAL TEST

London, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A majority of only 31 votes carried the Ramsay MacDonald government safely through the first important division of the current parliamentary session late tonight.

This was regarded a crucial test, for the balloting was on a motion by the Conservative party to amend the speech in reply to the address from the throne. The amendment was defeated, 281 to 250.

The speech from the throne, delivered by King George at the opening of Parliament, but voicing the aims of the Labor party, had been under bitter attack for two days, the Conservatives regretting the failure of the Laborites to propose any adequate measures to deal with the crises in the industrial, agricultural and commercial fields or to check the growth of unemployment.

Liberals Stay Neutral.

Supporters of the administration had feared, earlier in the week, that the Liberal party, which holds the balance of power, and certain disgruntled left-wing Laborites might combine with the Conservatives to bring about a government defeat. This danger, however, virtually was removed when the Liberals decided yesterday to abstain from voting on the amendment.

As a matter of fact, five Liberals, including Sir John Simon, voted against the government tonight, but they were almost counterbalanced by the four members of the same party who voted to uphold the administration. The left-wing Laborites also stood by MacDonald.

Change Now Decried.

Political commentators credited the victory to the fact neither the Conservatives nor the Liberals really desire to turn out the government just now and thus necessitate a general election. Hence the Liberals decided to abstain in general, despite the fact they are extremely critical of the administration.

An election would come inopportunely for both parties, it is held, since their treasuries are depleted and the country's economic situation is certain to create a difficult problem for any government which might be set up.

Guest Succumbs at Ball Of Philippine Governor

Manila, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Gov. Gen. Davis' annual reception and ball in honor of the Philippine Legislature ended tragically tonight after Manuel de Yriarte, director of the national museum, collapsed during a Spanish dance and died of heart disease.

Alleged Confession Held In Kidnaping of Yocum

Detroit, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Lloyd Winslow, 42, confessed late today, according to police, that he was a member of the band which kidnaped Earl L. Yocum, Galva, Ill., banker. Winslow waived extradition and will be taken back to Henry County, Ill., to face the kidnaping charges.

Winslow, a Stark County, Ill., farmer, was arrested here late yesterday, shortly after his arrival in Detroit. Police said he was planning to escape into Canada. Sheriff Charles Nash, who arrived for the prisoner late today, said there was no probable connection between Winslow and Clarence V. Raidle, Kewanee, Ill., garage mechanic, who was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning near his parents' home in Charlotte, Mich., last night.

5,000 VISIT CAPITAL INDUSTRIAL EXHIBIT

TYPING AWARDS MADE

A crowd estimated at 5,000 persons visited the sixth annual industrial exposition at the Washington Auditorium last night to inspect the scores of exhibits revealing the economic growth of the National Capital.

The election night throngs were kept posted throughout the evening on the trend of the electoral battle by a telephone typewriter which brought late flashes to the auditorium from the leading news services.

The crowd's preference in exhibits seemed as well divided last night as it had been the opening night and displays on both floors all seemingly had a full share of spectators. Especial interest is attaching to the unique little motion picture theater which has been installed on the exposition floor of the auditorium and every performance plays to capacity. A program of three "talkies" is shown at regular intervals.

Graphic Arts Exhibit.

The graphic arts exhibit, in which the Federal Government is patricipating along with a large number of members of the Washington Typothetae, is proving a magnet for the visitors at both afternoon and evening sessions. This is the most complete graphic arts display ever shown in the Capital.

The Bureau of Standards exhibit on the auditorium floor is attracting much attention. It includes such items as the fourth dimension models, made by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, of the bureau staff; the photoelectric counter that tallies all those who come within the range of its delicate mechanism; optical glass, and others. Displays by the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Hospital are well attended and the model house of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. continues to draw crowds.

Winners in Typing Contests.

Winners in the junior typewriting championship last night were as follows: First, John R. Lazar, 1304 Twenty-first street northwest, 72 words per minute; second, Marion E. Adams, 1004 Maryland avenue northeast; third, Eva Koday, Benning road; fourth and fifth (tie), Francis V. Walter, of Alexandria, Va., and Lillian M. Dixon, 616 Franklin street northeast.

Tonight is "National Guard Night" at the industrial exposition. Especial attention will be directed to the activities of the local defense unit. Leaders of the National Guard are to be present and participate in the program. It also is announced by Gen. Anton Stephan, District of Columbia National Guard leader, that the National Guard Band will play at the auditorium tonight.

The exposition opens at 2:30 o'clock each afternoon and runs continuously until 10:30 p. m. This schedule will be maintained until the event closes Saturday night.

ARMISTICE HONORS URGED BY HOOVER

President Issues Proclamation for Observance of Day Ending War.

PEACE AIDED, HE SAYS

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday called on America to observe Armistice Day with gratitude that the agencies of peace have been strengthened and the Nation's relations with other countries "are firmly grounded in amity and accord."

The following proclamation was issued:

"Whereas, the eleventh day of November 1918 is forever memorable as the day upon which ended the World War, with its attendant sufferings and vast wastage of human life; and

"Whereas, it is fitting that the anniversary of this day should be commemorated by exercises which shall do honor to all those who served our country, and especially to the memory of those who died in its service, believing that their sacrifice was in the cause of peace, which we thereby are solemnly bound to do all in our power to advance and secure; and

"Whereas by concurrent resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives, in 1926, the President was requested to issue proclamation for the observance of Armistice Day.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the said concurrent resolution do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all Government buildings on November 11, 1930, and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, and other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies, giving expression to our gratitude that this year past has seen the agencies of peace sensibly strengthened and that our relations with other peoples are firmly grounded in amity and accord.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the United States.

"Done at the City of Washington this Fourth day of November in the year of our Lord, 1930, and of the independence of the United States of America the 155th.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

TARDIEU OPPONENTS THROWN OFF STRIDE

BRIAND GETS OVATION

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A preliminary skirmish which served as a preparation for the real battle to come enlivened the opening session of Parliament today.

Opponents of Premier Tardieu, as had been expected, wheeled into action with criticism of the government's foreign policy, but they were thrown off their stride at the very outset by the premier's insistence that debate on the issue be started immediately.

They had not looked for this and Francois Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputies, was obliged to ask that the discussions be delayed until he could obtain certain necessary documents which he had not brought to the opening session.

Francois Albert, an opposition deputy, assumed the burden of the attack, but his was not the assault which is to come. It was a sally directed at the government's interior policy rather than toward its foreign minister, Briand, whose handling of German relations has caused bitter criticism.

Government supporters howled him down with a demand that he be called to order, and the sitting was suspended amid confusion. The real debate will come on Thursday when Parliament reconvenes.

Briand himself, whose policies are under fire, received an ovation as he entered the chamber after a month's illness. Today's session was opened just 115 days from the closing of Parliament last July.

100-Mile-Per-Hour Gale Hits Aquitania at Sea

S. S. Aquitania, Nov. 4 (By radio to the Associated Press).—Mountainous seas and a terrific gale which have delayed the Aquitania since a few hours after it sailed from Cherbourg Saturday were climaxed this morning when the gale reached a hurricane force of 100 miles an hour.

Officers of the ship said it was one of the worst storms in years. The ship almost hove to at the height of the gale, slowing down to a bare 8 knots an hour. The vessel was already eighteen hours behind schedule. It was to have reached New York next Friday.

NEW WATER RATES ROUSE OPPOSITION

SCHEDULE JUST FILED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The much-discussed proposed new schedule of rates has been filed by the Alexandria Water Co. with the State Corporation Commission, to become effective February 1. City Attorney Carl Budwesky yesterday received a copy of the revised schedule from the commission. These rates must be advertised once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to the effective date, then, if there is no opposition, they will be put into effect. If, however, there is opposition, the commission will set a date for a hearing and afford all concerned an opportunity to be heard.

The schedule shows meter rates, to apply when the company has installed meters, with a minimum charge of $16.80 a year, which will entitle the user to receive 3,333 gallons of water. The meter charge runs as high as $50.40 a year.

For the flat or assessed rates, pending installation of meters, there is a charge of $16.80 per annum for one connection, in addition to which there is a charge of $5.60 for each water closet, $5.60 for each bathtub, $3.50 for each set laundry tub, $2.10 for each set wash basin and $4.20 for each hose connection. These rates are considerably higher than the present flat-rate charges.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce already has taken steps to fight the proposed increase and, it is understood, the city council also will oppose the changes.

The Alexandria Water Co., for a great many years, was owned by local stockholders, but several months ago the shareholders were offered a tempting price for their stock and the new company took over the plant. Shortly thereafter rumors were heard of increased charges for service.

A meeting of the newly organized Jewish Community Center will be held at 8:30 o'clock tonight in its headquarters, 508 Wilkes street, with Samuel Goldstein presiding. Following the report of the membership committee, permanent officers will be chosen for the center and the plans for organization activities will take definite form.

The fire, which was in the attic, caused $750 damage.

Aaron J. Payne, 35 years old, of Cherrydale, Arlington County, Va., is being held by Alexander police on charges of passing two worthless checks, one for $19.80 and the other for $18, on two stores in the city. Both were drawn on a Washington bank and returned marked "No such account," police declare. When arraigned in Police Court yesterday, Payne asked a continuance, so he could get counsel.

Lawrence Roland, local manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., addressed the Rotary Club yesterday, describing the advancement of that company and the increase in its service during the last few years. Judge William S. Snow, president of the club, presided. The club singing was led by W. Everett Swan. Henry T. Moncure, principal of the Alexandria High School, presented Billy Grover, 11 years old, a student in the Jefferson grade school, who sang several songs.

The funeral of William R. A. Kleysteuber, aged 42 years, former mayor of Potomac, who died suddenly Sunday evening, was held yesterday from his home, 401 Newton avenue, Potomac, and was conducted by the Rev. H. L. The honorary pallbearers were Judge Howard W. Smith, William Latham, Lawrence Thompson, Henry P. Thomas, Judge William S. Snow, Jesse Thomas, Herbert W. O'Meara, J. R. Johnson, A. J. Ross, L. F. Harvey, H. C. Linn, M. B. Apperson, W. A. Moore and R. Dawkins.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE SITES TO BE STUDIED

Virginia Commission Will Consider Proposals at Session Today.

FOUR LOCATIONS URGED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Various proposals for location of a liberal arts college for women which may be coordinated with the University of Virginia were expected by the commission appointed by the Virginia General Assembly to investigate the matter, in a meeting here tomorrow.

Gov. Pollard was to meet with the commission. Four locations already have been mentioned, Frericksburg, Harrisonburg, Lynchburg and Roanoke.

The commission was originally appointed by the 1928 General Assembly, and was continued by the Legislature this year. The 1930 report of the commission recommended that a liberal arts college for women be established at one of the four mentioned locations. The Assembly, in the act continuing the commission, provided that the college be established at any point in Virginia more than 30 miles from the University of Virginia, and that the college be coordinated with the university unless otherwise provided by law.

Various localities seeking the college were informed of the meeting to be held tomorrow, and requested to have their proposals in written form, and in the hands of the commission secretary in time for the gathering.

Judge Don P. Halsey, of Lynchburg, is chairman of the commission. Senator George W. Layman is vice chairman, and Miss Adele Clark, of Richmond, is secretary.

The recent death of John W. McCauley, of Roanoke, created a vacancy in the commission, and the speaker of the House, J. Sinclair Brown, of Roanoke County, appointed James A. Bear, of Roanoke City, to fill the place of Mr. McCauley.

Man Held After Feud Results in Shooting

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 4.—The rekindling of a family feud in Baxter County last night, in which a man was shot while riding in his car, landed another feudist in the county jail at Sutton today. The prisoner is Ernest Singleton, 30 years old, a farmer of the Burnsville section, who is charged with the attempted assassination of Tucker Bragg, aged 57. A rifle bullet struck Bragg in the back, but wounded him only superficially as it first passed through a spare tire. Other shots were fired, but without hitting the occupants of the car.

MOVIE CHAIN OWNER FACES DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Jacob Goldenberg, of Prince Georges County, Claims Desertion.

CHILD'S CUSTODY ASKED

Jacob Goldenberg, owner of a chain of movie theaters in nearby Maryland and Virginia, is sued for limited divorce in a motion filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court. His wife, Dorothy E. Goldenberg, charges that he deserted her in July of this year and took with him their one child. They lived in Laurel until the alleged desertion.

Through her lawyer, Frank O. Caplan, of Baltimore, Mrs. Goldenberg says that they were married in 1926. Several times after their marriage, she says, the man offered her money if she would obtain a divorce, but she refused. When leaving her he said that he was only going to the store for groceries, she claims. He did not return, however, and she learned that he had left the State.

She asks alimony and custody of the child. In her petition, she states that he owns movie theaters in Laurel and Mount Rainier, Md., Berryville and Front Royal, Va., and Charleston, W. Va., and she believes his income to be about $500 a month. She asks alimony accordingly.

Abandonment is charged in the suit of Mrs. Ruth L. Tebbe against Edwin F. Tebbe for absolute divorce. Mrs. Tebbe gives her address as Hyattsville and says that her husband lives in Chevy Chase. They were married in 1915, and have two children, Charles, 12 years old, and Donald, 10.

In 1926 Tebbe deserted her, the woman says, and has not contributed to her support since. She wants alimony and the custody of the children.

George S. Dove, of Forestville, chairman of the county board of supervisors of elections, was struck and slightly injured by an automobile as he was on his way to vote near his home yesterday morning.

The driver of the car, whose name was not obtained, stopped and helped Dove to a store nearby, where he received first aid for numerous cuts and bruises. He refused further treatment and returned to the polls.

Home-coming day at Maryland University will be celebrated on November 8, and a program for that day is being formulated by the Alumni Association and the "M" Club of the school. The main features of the day are two football games between Washington and Lee and Maryland Universities.

In the morning, at 10 o'clock, the freshmen of the two colleges will play, and the line teams will meet at 2:30. In between, at noon, there will be a luncheon given by the "M" Club, which will also elect its officers for the ensuing year.

Two dances will be on the program in the evening, a dinner dance in the Ritchie Gymnasium at 5:30 and a home-coming dance at 8:30. H. C. Whiteford, president of the Alumni Association, and John Gray, jr., head of the "M" Club, are in charge of arrangements. Other members of the committee are George F. Pollock, Geary Eppley and H. Burton Shipley.

Oil Worker Sentenced For Fatal Stabbing

A stay for an appeal was allowed.

Daredevil Mouse On Sleeping Lion

Spunky Little Fellow Had Crowd Rooting for Him at Show.

Boston, Nov. 4.—Apparently sober and in possession of all of its faculties, a small, brown mouse entered the cage of a sleeping lion on exhibition at the State governmental exposition in the Commonwealth Armory and staged an impromptu demonstration of mousely daring that held the great throng of visitors spellbound for fifteen minutes.

It was a great act, and the mouse—a shrewd showman—climaxed it by seating himself on the tawny hide of the sleeping lion, where he remained for fully ten minutes, riding gently up and down as the lion breathed. Fortunately for the performer the big cat slept on, undisturbed by the movements of the mouse or the clamor of the enthusiastic spectators who, to a man, were rooting for the spunky little actor.

With the poise of a true artist, the mouse refrained from any vulgar show of bravado. He wore, rather, the air of refined boredom which characterizes the best of the death-defying actors. An occasional twitching of his whiskers was the only gesture he permitted himself from the time he entered the cage until he disappeared in the mysterious and unexpected way of his kind.

CAPT. RICKENBACKER IS TO RECEIVE AWARD

AIRSHIPS TO TAKE PART

Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, World War "ace," tomorrow will receive from President Hoover the Congressional Medal of Honor in a ceremony at Bolling Field, to be attended by many high officials of the Army.

Capt. Rickenbacker's wartime commander, former Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, former assistant chief of the Air Corps, however, will not be among those present, the general stating last night that he would not attend because he "had not received an invitation."

Gen. Mitchell, from his home in Middleburg, Va., wanted it made clear that his absence from the ceremony was in no way any reflection on the prowess of Capt. Rickenbacker, because the general termed the aviator as "the greatest individual flier in the Army" at the time the Armistice was signed. The general added that he had on several occasions, when holding office in the Army, recommended the Congressional Medal of Honor for Capt. Rickenbacker.

Tomorrow's ceremonies at Bolling Field are scheduled for 2:30 o'clock. A presidential salute will be fired at that hour when President Hoover arrives. F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, will act as master of ceremonies, and Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Air Corps, will read the citation, after which the President will present the medal.

Aerial maneuvers will be offered by the First Observation Squadron, the Second Bombardment Squadron and the Ninety-fourth Pursuit Squadron, each of these units containing some men who were comrades of Capt. Rickenbacker overseas.

SHOOTING IS HOBBY OF NOTED SURGEON

GUNS FILL HIS HOME

Halstead, Kans., Nov. 1.—Long sensitive fingers and nerves that must be steady to perform the most delicate operations must have some form of recreation and relaxation in order to endure the strain that they are called upon daily to withstand. So Dr. A. E. Hertzler, widely known surgeon, has a pet hobby that keeps his nerves steady and his eyes keen. When he is exhausted from operations and consultations he slips away from every one and goes into the basement of his large hospital. Here he has an indoor rifle range and a remarkable collection of guns.

A room in the hospital basement is lined on all sides with revolvers, rifles, double-barreled shotguns, pistols and other firearms. When he was asked how many guns he owned, Dr. Hertzler was a little doubtful.

"I believe I have 86 rifles," he said, and added, "that is, when they are all at home. Some of them are lent to friends. And I believe there are 32 revolvers, since I sold 53 revolvers last spring."

Doesn't Care for Antiques.

He also gave away a large number of antique pistols, including some old cap-and-ball types and some flintlocks.

"I don't care much about the antique models," the doctor confessed. "My collection is not just to look at. I have it for use. I love to shoot. Here's one of my pets." And he took from its rack a beautiful double-barreled shotgun that had been made to order for him. It is a Parker A-1 special, with a gold trigger, and has delicately etched silver trimming. Then he turned to another rack and took down a couple of murderous looking six-shooters.

"Here's my long suit," he explained. "I like six-shooting the very best of all." His collection includes a large number of beautiful and perfect specimens of "six-guns," most of them having been built to order for him.

Besides his indoor rifle range in the hospital basement, Dr. Hertzler has an open rifle and revolver range in the country near Halstead. There is a comfortable cabin there also, the place being known as the "Crow's Nest." He visits this shooting range practically every day the weather permits. Sometimes he goes alone and sometimes he takes one or two friends along. On a recent summer afternoon at the Crow's Nest, Dr. Hertzler shot 100 shotgun shells and 50 times with a .45-caliber Colt automatic. He buys his shells by the thousand. So far this year he has purchased more than 10,000 shotgun shells. At the Crow's Nest there are two blue rock traps, one single and one double.

Guns of All Description.

Almost every make of gun obtainable can be seen in Dr. Hertzler's collection. It includes guns made by Krupp, Mauser, Sauer & Son, Winchester, Springfield and some English guns by Webley-Scott, and Craig. He has a beautiful Remington Express, .30-caliber rifle. One of the most interesting guns in the collection is a Krupp that has two shotgun barrels, 16-gauge, and below them a .32-caliber rifle barrel.

Among his more unusual guns is an elephant gun, a 450 Eyly, made in Great Britain. Another interesting feature of some of the guns is scope-sights on a number of big game models. A scopesight is an arrangement that brings the target into better vision when one sights through it. It works on the principle of a telescope.

When some one suggested having a look at the various medals that Dr. Hertzler has won in shooting contests he led the party into another room of the hospital basement. "There they are," he remarked, with a careless wave of his hand.

And "there they were" indeed. They lined the walls, they cluttered his desk, they seemed to be everywhere. Mrs. Hertzler laughed when some one asked how many there were, and said:

"Oh, he's won so many medals that we long ago ceased to try to keep track of them. We haven't the slightest idea how many there are."

LATIN QUARTER HAS FRUGAL FARE READY

High Cost of Living in Paris Will Not Touch Men at University.

TUITION IS ONLY $5.60

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The rising cost of living in Paris will not touch to any extent the thousands of students who are pouring into the Latin Quarter for the opening of the University of Paris, the Polytechnical School and the dozen other institutions located there. Sessions begin the first week in November.

The old tradition of a full meal for less than two bits still exists in scattered restaurants. Clothing stores along the Boulevard St. Michel still promise students complete suits for $20 and hats for $1.75, with yet "more interesting" prices for those who get along, as many do, with pants of one color and coat of another.

A student in the Latin Quarter can live two semesters on $230, not counting clothing, books and tuition. But he spends little for clothes and less for books. His courses are lectures and he has no prescribed textbooks. His general reading may be done in the library.

His tuition? He can study an entire year at the Sorbonne—the faculty of letters of the University of Paris—for $5.60, including use of the library. If he enters a technical school he will have laboratory fees, but they are proportionately low. One of the most expensive private schools of higher learning charges but $60 a year for full privileges.

France does not know the student who works his way. Most professors refuse to pass a pupil whom they know to be putting in part of his time earning his daily bread instead of sipping wine or coffee in a cafe with comrades. They feel that a student should spend all of his time in study or in thinking about it and, contrary to American belief, they hold that one who works is less serious than one who does not.

15 Die in Siam Film Fire.

Bangkok, Siam, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Eight women and seven children lost their lives today in a fire which destroyed the offices of a motion picture company where quantities of films were stored. They were tennants in the upper floors of the building.

HEALTH AND LOVE FOUND BY PRINCE

MEETS BOTH IN TRAVEL

Madrid, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Rumors of a royal romance between the heir to the Spanish throne and one of the prettiest princesses of his realm are persistent.

They are given credence in some well-informed palace circles and doubted in others—but everywhere they afford topic for speculation.

The beautiful 16-year-old Princess Maria Esperanza, of Bourbon and Orleans, may become the bride of the Prince of Asturias, eldest son of King Alfonso, if the reports are well founded.

But an official announcement may not be made for a year, if then, because it is planned that the princess spend that time in France continuing her studies.

The crown prince, greatly improved in health after having been an invalid 13 of his 23 years, did two things after he was convalescent; began to travel and—if report be true—fell in love.

The romance is supposed to have flowered when the prince was on the first extensive trip he was able to make after his long illness. This was to sunny Sevilla last spring.

The princess was at a nearby country estate of her family and they were thrown considerably in each other's society.

This autumn they met again in Barcelona, where the princess' father is captain general, when the prince visited there on a Spanish battleship.

The princess is named Maria de la Esperanza Ranera del Rocio Luisa Gonzaga de Borbon y de Orleans. But naturally that is too much for ordinary use, and she is called the Infanta Maria Esperanza for short.

In her family and to intimates—maybe now or later to the prince—she is "Esperancita" or "little Esperanza," which is a use of the affectionate Spanish diminutive. "Esperanza" means hope.

Maria Esperanza, spirited, vivacious, charming, carefully educated, loves outdoor country life, as does the prince, and is a singularly good horsewoman. She is fond of riding in the becoming costume of her native Andaluaia—the bolero jacket like of bullfighter and the stiff, wide-brimmed, high-crowned hat.

She wears with great grace, as often as the occasion permits, the charming headdress of high comb and lace mantilla, with "manton" or gay silk shawl, fringed and of finest fabric, thrown over her shoulders.

The princess is the youngest daughter of the Infante (Prince) of Spain, Don Carlos of Bourbon, by his second marriage, which was with the Princess Luisa Francisca, of the French branch of the house of Orleans.

Don Carlos is a descendant of the Bourbon kings of Naples and is a captain general, the highest military rank in Spain. Thus, the Infanta Maria Esperanza, while not a princess of a reigning family, is a princess of royal blood on both her father's and mother's side.

She has spent much of her life at the great country estate of her family at Villiamanrique, not far from Sevilla, where she was born June 14, 1914.

After being tutored in childhood her education was continued in Paris at the Convent of Sacre Coeur. She is versed in languages, music and literature.

CHAMBERS PROMISE TO AID UNEMPLOYED

New Jersey Organizations and New York Y. M. C. A. Back Col. Woods.

BUSINESS MEN HELPING

With Col. Arthur Woods, President Hoover's director of unemployment, in New York to cast his vote in the congressional elections, the Federal Government's campaign for the relief of the jobless marked time yesterday.

It is expected that Col. Woods will return to Washington today to resume the job of completing his central organization here for the coordination of local efforts throughout the country.

In his absence, the Unemployment Commission was cheered by reports from several sources telling of efforts made to meet the problems in individual communities.

From the Chamber of Commerce of the Oranges and Maplewood, N. J., came the report that this organization has enlarged its placement bureau, installed equipment and personnel and is giving wide publicity to plans calling for the registration of every unemployed person in that area. Simultaneously with the registration campaign, efforts are being made to obtain jobs for as many persons as possible and the Welfare Federation and other organizations are cooperating, it was stated.

The New York City Y. M. C. A., through Cleveland H. Dodge, it was announced, has placed its facilities for employment and relief at the disposal of the Unemployment Commission. The commission plans to make use of these facilities for service in the metropolitan area.

The New York association, it was said, proposes to enlist the support of its board of directors and its sixteen branch boards of managers, numbering about 400 business and professional men, as well as its 30,000 members, in stimulating opportunities for employment. This employment service will be rendered without cost to the men served.

It was announced that the Unemployment Commission is appreciative of local offers of this character and that in conformity with the commission's policy the suggestion is being made to the local groups that they cooperate with existing local authorities.

Vocational Committee Reports on Jobs Plan

(Associated Press.)

Definite steps to prevent unemployment were advocated yesterday in a report prepared by the vocational guidance committee for submission to the coming White House child conference.

Putting a vocational placement office in every public school system and a "clearing house for employment information" in every community were urged.

Advising young people of the demands of the business world, the report said, "should contribute in no small way toward reducing the employment problems of adult men and women."

A decade of mechanical encroachment, even on white-collar jobs, prompted a recommendation for flexibility in any system of employment advice, and for a continuing study of the changing commercial field.

More Employes Urged in Stores

Number of New Clerks Is Below Normal, Says Lansburgh.

The number of new employes hired in local department stores is below the usual figure and the situation demands serious attention, Mark Lansburgh, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, told a radio audience last night in a Buy Now for Better Business talk over Station WRC.

"Our aim," he said, "should be to take care of all persons capable and eager to work by supplying them employment rather than charity. This can be done by the expansion of present business undertakings so that they will be in a position to increase the number of their employes.

"What we in Washington must start," Mr. Lansburgh continued, "is a cycle which will ultimately bring our city and country back to normalcy. Washington's Buy Now Committee is not asking that any one increase his or her expenditures out of proportion to income or against the rules of thrift. Their recommendation is that we budget our buying in accordance with proper limitations, but that, having done this, we then proceed to spend our budget-fixed sums for the indicated purposes."

Modern Silver Art To Be Shown Here

Representative Designs to Be Exhibited by Combined Manufacturers.

For the first time, leading manufacturers of sterling silverware have united to present an exhibition of designs the most representative of the modern silversmiths' art. The exhibition will take place November 11 to 15, inclusive, at the Willard Hotel and will be sponsored by the Sterling Silversmiths' Guild of America, in cooperation with leading jewelry and department stores of Washington.

Daily programs throughout the five days of the display will include lectures by authorities on tableware style and history and moving pictures, by courtesy of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, revealing various processes through which silver ore passes. The occasion will also provide an opportunity for consultation with authorities on interior decoration and correct table usage.

Announced as a "world's fair in silver," the exhibition will be free to the public and open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Gregorian University Structures Dedicated

Rome, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Pontifical Gregorian University, central training station for priests of many countries, including the United States, Canada and Latin America, inaugurated its new university buildings on the Janiculum Hill today. The dedication ceremonies will continue for a week.

Pope Pius sent a cardinal delegate in the person of Cardinal Bisleti, prefect of the Congregation of Seminaries and Universities. The pontiff also sent an apostolic letter to the general of the Order of Jesuits, which governs the institution.

Trade in European Nations Continues Dull, Is Report

Slight Improvement Noted in England; Lack of Confidence Hurts Italy; Porto Rico Proves Exception to Depressed Business in Latin America.

Cable and radio reports from Europe to the Department of Commerce indicate continued dullness in European countries generally, with a tendency toward further depression in most countries, especially Italy, where lack of confidence has caused a further slackening of business, and in Hungary, where poor crops have been added to other unfavorable factors.

In Norway export industries have been affected by the world depression, but crop returns were favorable. In Czechoslovakia unemployment, largely resulting from seasonal factors, has reached the highest figure in six years. The slump in Egyptian foreign trade continues as the result of the unfavorable cotton market.

Depression in the United Kingdom does not seem to have become intensified and a slightly better sentiment prevails in a few industries.

Increase of unemployment in the Swiss machinery and textile industries has been offset by a seasonal gain in watch manufacturing.

The natural tendency toward improvement in the Irish Free State has been retarded by bad crop conditions.

In Jugoslavia, although there was a sharp decline in exports during August, trade returns for eight months show a considerable improvement over last year.

No appreciable change is being recorded in Canada, while in Newfoundland conditions are decidedly unfavorable owing to the poor shore fish catch and low prices.

There is a slight tendency toward improvement in the Union of South Africa.

In the Far East there is no marked change, except for a much more hopeful outlook in the Shanghai and Yangtze Valley areas of China. Conditions have become slower in the Philippine abaca market.

The situation in Latin American countries continues unencouraging, with political unsettlement and business dullness in most countries. Exceptions to this rule are found in Porto Rico, where there has been a further return of confidence owing to firmer sugar prices, the movement of the coffee crop and the liberal financing of the tobacco crop, and in the Island of Bermuda, where conditions have been maintained at normal.

Group to Observe 29th Anniversary

Neighborhood House Will Display Facilities During Day.

"Open house" will be held today by Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest in honor of its twenty-ninth anniversary. Many friends and neighbors in the District are expected to join in the program as they did in the first celebration held in the home, 29 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weller founded the Neighborhood House in 1901, and only 50 persons made use of the facilities of the place. Now the settlement averages 200 callers, adult and children, daily. Officials of the house now furnish temporary relief for families, locate work for them and lend a helping hand in all their endeavors.

Today's birthday celebration will be marked by a display of the new nursery, a demonstration by the junior kindergarten, work of the Boys' Club together with sewing and weaving by the Girls' Club as well as a musical program.

Southern Potato Crop on Increase

The early potato crop in twelve Southern States may show an 11 per cent increase in acreage if growers' intentions are carried out, according to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The intended acreage, according to the November report, is 191,360 acres.

Several Southern States are providing large consuming markets with string beans. Prices of Florida cucumbers have dropped slightly.

Some Eastern cities report rather dull sweet potato conditions, but most markets are holding fairly steady. Barrels of yellow sweet potatoes from the Eastern Shore of Virginia were selling at $2 to $3.25 and bushel stocks from Maryland and Delaware were bringing $1 to $1.35.

Chamber Approves Home-Drive Plans

Modernization Campaign to Offer Jobless Relief, Fraser Claims.

Plans for a "home modernization" campaign for the restoration of dilapidated residences as a move to boost business and relieve unemployment were approved by the directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night.

It was pointed out by George B. Fraser, reporting for the Buy Now committee in the absence of its chairman, George A. G. Wood, that such a campaign, backed by a city-wide advertising program, would stimulate business for 30 different lines of industry and provide employment for widely diversified types of workers.

The directors authorized the Buy Now committee to expand its activities to cover such a program immediately upon completion of the Buy Now for Prosperity movement which will terminate this week.

A few facts regarding Chestnut Farms, the "World's Model" Dairy, that may be of interest to our thousands of friends and patrons in Washington.

Organized in 1896, with the determination to give to the people of this city a standard of QUALITY DAIRY PRODUCTS superior to that being offered by any other dairy in the country. This advanced policy has continued on down through our thirty-four years of service. That the people of this city appreciate our efforts is best evidenced by the fact that today we serve practically every third home within the area known as "Greater Washington."

The accomplishment of this growth has required the constant effort of a great army of especially trained men and women who have labored throughout the long days and nights actuated by the one thought—"Our Service Must Never Fail." This group of tireless workers numbering nearly five hundred persons are residents of our city; the greater portion of whom are married and the heads of families, who once a year join in the gala occasion of our Annual Picnic.

Many of our employes have been with us for more than a quarter of a century—a source of particular pleasure to the management which, in itself, has never changed throughout the years.

It may be of further interest to our patrons to glance into a more intimate side of the picture and see exactly what their patronage means to the general welfare of this community.

Our Pay Roll Amounts to Nearly

A MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR!

This money goes into the homes of Washington people to be spent with Washington merchants.

WE PAY OUR PRODUCERS OVER THREE MILLION DOLLARS YEARLY!

These farms are located in nearby Maryland and Virginia, and much of this money is spent with Washington firms—helping in turn to give employment and prosperity to the local community.

We use more than two million five hundred thousand bottle caps every month—made by the American Dairy Supply Co., of Washington, D. C., a local company employing only Washington people.

This is but one of the hundreds of items we yearly purchase from Washington firms. In fact, the well-known slogan "BUY IN WASHINGTON" has always been a practice of this dairy. We feel you are interested in knowing that when you patronize this dairy your money is helping to build a bigger and better Washington.

In closing, permit us to express to you our sincere appreciation of your loyalty and support. In the more than thirty-four years of our service the management has had the pleasure of meeting many of our patrons personally, and we wish it were possible to make the acquaintance of every person whom we serve. As this unfortunately is beyond the realm of accomplishment, we can at least extend a most sincere and cordial invitation for you to come and visit our plant and see exactly the care we exercise to give you products of Superior Quality. You will then better appreciate why this Dairy was selected as "The World's Model."

EXPERT DESCRIBES ART OF ADVERTISING

BUY-NOW PLAN BACKED

The progress of art in advertising during the last five years was described to members of the Advertising Club of Washington at its luncheon yesterday in the National Press Club auditorium by Gordon C. Aymar, of the Blackman Advertising Co., of New York.

Examples of art used in national advertising campaigns were displayed on the screen, with Mr. Aymar explaining why certain types were selected, methods of reproduction, and the great amount of work required to get just the right sort of complete advertisement.

National representation for the District of Columbia was favored by the club in a vote taken yesterday as other parts of the country went to the polls in an election. Charles J. Columbus, managing director of the club, discussed the matter of representation.

President James W. S. Hardey called attention of members to the "Buy Now" campaign in which all representative organizations are participating and urged the advertising men to give their support to the movement.

Invitations to the sterling silver fashion show at the Willard November 11 to 15 and the industrial exposition now being held at the Washington Auditorium were accepted by the club.

Federal Revenues Drop $174,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Ordinary receipts of the United States Government show a decline of approximately $174,000,000 for the first fourth months of the present fiscal year as compared with the corresponding period of the last fiscal year.

Major factors contributing to this decline were decreases of about $84,500,000 in customs receipts; $58,000,000 in income tax receipts, and $11,000,000 on miscellaneous internal revenue.

Total expenditures for the same period show an increase of about $41,000,000 as compared with last year. General expenditures gained about $50,000,000, postal deficiency expenditures mounted by $15,000,000, while the agricultural marketing fund accounted for more than $24,000,000 more.

Offsetting these items was a paring of about $35,000,000 in interest on the public debt, while internal revenue refunds were $15,000,000 less than last year.

Two Autoists Claim To Have Hit Same Man

Seattle, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Traffic officers found Robert Tunnard, stage driver, and Mrs. Lester Kleinberg, arguing over the prostrate body of George Polly, of Carnation, today.

"I heard somebody holler that I had knocked a man down, so I stopped my stage and went back," said Tunnard. "I guess I must have hit him."

Said Mrs. Kleinberg: "I was going in the opposite direction. It must have been my car. I'll take the blame."

"I guess both of them hit me," said Polly, who received only minor injuries. "It felt like it."

DISTRICT W. C. T. U. OPENS CONVENTION

Organization Is Working for Unemployment Relief, President Says.

"HAS DONE GREAT DEAL"

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia yesteray opened its fift-sixth annual convention at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest.

The convention was called to order by Mrs. N. M. Pollock, president. A song service and salute of the flag were followed by welcoming addresses and reports by the various committees. The Rev. Homer J. Councilor, assistant pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, spoke on the waning power of the Antisaloon League.

In her annual message to the organization, Mrs. Pollock stated that although it was mainly interested in questions regarding prohibition, there were many other issues in which members were vitally concerned.

"Our organization," she said, "has done a great deal toward relieving the present unemployment situation. Our Gospel Mission Union now numbers 46 members, and every effort is being made to care for individuals who can not find employment."

The placing, in the public libraries of the city, of 204 books dealing with the alcohol problem, was characterized as the outstanding work accomplished by the organization during the past year.

A resolution was adopted indorsing the action of the local Parent-Teacher Association, which, in its recent congress, opposed the abolition of the kindergarten class at the Webster School, Tenth and H streets northwest.

Among the out-of-town visitors who attended were Mrs. W. E. F. Taylor and Mrs. Lindley Clark, of Baltimore, and Mrs. J. T. Dean, of Clarendon, Va.

The sessions will continue today with reports from the resolutions committee and the nomination of directors and trustees.

Mr. Stebinger Ends Sojourn In Washington

Noted Geologist Plans to Make Trip by Steamship.

GOVERNED by chivalry that defers the final decision of weighty matters to the feminine side of the family, Mr. Eugene Stebinger, former member of the United States Geologic Survey, will make his return trip to Buenos Aires this week, not by airplane after the manner of his coming last June, but by steamship. Because Mrs. Stebinger's preference dictated the sedate and slowly moving mode of travel by water, they will sail on Saturday for their home in Buenos Aires after a visit of several months in Washington and various points in the West.

Mr. Stebinger's mode of travel this time, presages less exciting adventure than experienced on his flight to Havana from the Southern Hemisphere last summer and probably he will miss another shining example of the genuine honesty and courtesy of the Latin people as offered by an interesting incident which occurred on the Island of Cuba on the last lap of the flight to Havana in June.

As the large Government mail plane, with its few passengers, flew above Cuba a wild wind and rain storm crossed its path. Something had to be done and the pilot ordered all luggage thrown overboard. Complying quickly with the request, Mr. Stebinger gave orders for his baggage to join the others in a downward flight to earth, at the same time swiftly calculating how soon he could replace evening clothes and what not.

Arriving at the airport in Havana the northbound air passengers were astonished to find all their luggage nicely piled and awaiting their pleasure. Nearly 20 pieces of baggage had been salvaged by Cuban peasants and forwarded to their addressed destination! Whether such an example of honesty and effort would be found in every country on the globe is debatable.

Mr. Stebinger, who made the trip in five days, the plane stopping each night to permit luxurious rest in one country or another, met Mrs. Stebinger several weeks later in Miami, Fla. With their son, Arnold, they came to Washington, where the youth will attend school this winter. Mr. and Mrs. Stebinger were guests the last few days of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Richards and attended the Philadelphia Orchestra last night at Constitution Hall, whence they boarded the train for New York. Mr. Stebinger has been associated with the Standard Oil Co. at Buenos Aires for eight years or more.

The black and white theme is smartly carried out in this canton crepe all-day frock. It is simple enough for street, yet smart enough for the afternoon bridge or tea.

The Morgans have an enchanting ultra-modernistic apartment on the Avenue Wagram. It is known as the Villa Berthier and stands on the site of old Marshal Berthier's home, which was presented to him by Napoleon.

The apartment was designed by the architect of the interior of the S. S. Ile de France. The color scheme is black and silver with indirect lighting.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

The action of the planets on this date must be taken into account before you total up the final records of the day. Outward circumstances are to the good, but inwardly you will feel at war, and savage thrusts of temper may be your undoing. The postman brings good news.

The child born on this November 5 will have an original and a constructive mind, but it will lack patience and may lose much through its haste. An ungovernable temper will be exhibited at times. It will have a very high code of honor, and will never be a sneak or cheat.

A study of the map of your life shows that it is made up of many peaks and many depressions, many bright spots and many dark ones. You do not seem to have sufficient stamina to resist circumstances, and they will make your course a zig-zag one. You have inflated ideas about what you would like to be, but punctured efforts and energies. Without the advantage of a major position, without an adequate inheritance, you will drift into a subordinate position, for you are a dreamer and a wisher, but not a doer. You seem to think, from the virtue of your education, your position in life, or something else, that the world owes you a living without the return of the solid gold of human achievement. You are looking for a so-called gentleman's or lady's job. You choose to join the mighty army of fault-finders and grumblers—your philosophy of living is not a bright or hopeful one.

You have a good command of language in both writing and speaking, and are both a convincing and entertaining conversationalist. You are intensely emotional, and many of your actions are uninstructed impulses, hunches that do not hunch. You will suffer a great deal through your affections, especially if you be a man. You are always willing to mortgage your future for the sake of your present happiness.

Successful people born November 5: 1 Thomas Shepard, founded Shepard Memorial Church, Cambridge. 2 Thomas R. Gould, sculptor. 3 William Corliss, safe inventor. 4 Ella Wheeler Wilcox, poet. 5 Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General. 6 Ida Tarbell, editor and lecturer.

William and Mary Alumni Elect.

Walter B. Clarkson has been elected president of the William and Mary College Alumni Club of Washington. Other officers are Edson N. Whitney, first vice president; Representative S. Otis Bland, second vice president; F. Shields McCandlish, third vice president; Cecil R. Heflin, secretary, and Edward C. Johnson, treasurer.

Jane Corbett Interprets the Mode

This silver and green lame (lah-may) evening gown has a unique bolero effect, and an accompanying pale green panne velvet coat with unusual low back decolletage, and with elaborate and flowing sleeves. (Courtesy of Philippe et Gaston, Paris.)

New York, Nov. 4.

HEIM, the couturier-furrier of Paris, would be the logical person to start such a thing as gray-dyed ermine! Because this is the couturier that has started nearly everything radical and different in the fur world for the last 30 years, such as popularizing the use of inexpensive furs as trimming for very expensive cloth coats, regardless of their intrinsic value as furs. And later this house, none other, started to fashion fur coats to outline and flatter the figure, rather than to just envelop it in an expensive and shapeless lot of fur skins.

Gray-dyed ermine, in case you haven't seen it, is the most beautiful, soft, lustrous shade of pearl gray, which reminds me of a wood dove's breast or the sheen of a light gray pearl.

Ermine treated in this way does not resemble any fur on earth, so can not possibly be taken for a light shade of squirrel or anything like that. And in an evening coat or short afternoon jacket, or as trimming on a black velvet afternoon coat, it is a decided relief from the inevitable white ermine of royalty * * * and royal incomes.

Yet when you price it, the unthinking person is very often surprised, nay, astonished, to find that pearl gray ermine is a great deal more expensive than white ermine! When M. Jacques Heim explains with his whimsical smile, and in the way that only M. Jacques Heim can explain anything, that only the very finest quality of ermine skins can be dyed at all, and that in the dyeing so very many of these are spoiled and are then quite useless as gray or as white fur, one understands why pearl gray ermine is as expensive as it is.

* * * *

Remember the little evening bag that I sketched for you yesterday in gray crepe? Didn't have time to describe it in detail, but here is what it was—three flounces, not very gathered, for they really couldn't be called ruffles, of the crepe, and a "fermoir" consisting of a bar of black jet set at either end in strass—and a ribbon handle of the gray, should you want to hang it over your arm. It was lovely!

* * * *

* * * *

I have illustrated the delightful evening wrap from Philippe et Gaston for you today, because it had such an unusual back decollete effect. Ohyesoyesoyes, there is some dress that shows under this, but I just didn't show it, so there, so that you wouldn't miss any detail of the effect of an evening wrap being decollete in the back. And then the odd sleeves were very lovely, and notice how they are left open so that you see the sleeve lining in the drape.

This coat was pale green panne velvet and worn with the silver and green lame (lah-may) gown with its odd side bolero effect ending in two panels on the opposite side. Stunning?

* * * *

No woman ever has too many attractive little table cover and napkin sets, and then new styles do come in them, you know. For yourself, then, or if not, to make up for a Christmas gift, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare's Department to The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet telling how to make some of the newest luncheon sets—you've seen them in the shops yourself probably; decorated with peasant embroidery, not to mention the monogrammed, crepe de chine sets? Better send that envelope right away and find out about them!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

FUCHSIAS AND JERUSALEM CHERRIES.

THERE are two house plants with which every one is familiar. Some one has spoken of the fuchsia as "a fairy tree with lighted lanterns, which flourishes in sun or shade." A charming description of this unusually dainty plant. The fushcia makes a most desirable window plant if you bear in mind that, to bloom well, it must be kept growing. It will produce flowers only on young growth. If you allow it to become potbound or stunted for any reason, the wood hardens, and you will have no more flowers until you can induce new growth, when once more the flowers will appear.

When in a stunted condition, the fuchsia is apt to be attacked by mealy bugs, which soon cover the plant and often destroy it. Young plants grown in good, rich soil and kept in a warm place, will be sure to flower in the winter. For winter blooming I prefer the single-flowered varieties. The double ones seldom bloom profusely until spring comes. The "dwarf gem" is reliable for winter flowering. It does not grow over 10 inches high, but is an almost solid mass of flowers the entire time. They are quite large, having red sepals and a purple corolla.

Fuchsias require plenty of ventilation. The room in which they are growing should be thoroughly aired once a day. Always change the position of your plant once each day, turning it around a little in order to keep it shapely.

The Jerusalem cherry is, in some respects, a worth-while house plant and, in some other respects, it isn't. The usual experience is to have it grow very beautifully for a while and even set fruit; then, just when one is congratulating oneself, the lovely scarlet cherries begin to drop off, not one at a time, but dozens at a time. This is usually caused by too much heat. It is best when the tree is in fruit to keep it in a sunny but cool room.

Quite large plants, well filled with cherries, may easily be raised for Christmas from seeds sown in early spring. Plunge the pots in summer in some partially shaded place in your garden, and give the plant plenty of water at all times.

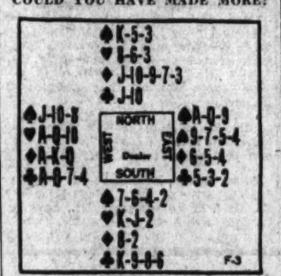
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



With the above hand playing Auction Bridge South passed and West bid one No Trump which obtained the Contract.

At Contract Bridge after South's pass, West's count of 23 might tempt him to bid three No Trumps; but with the unstopped Spades the three-bid is too venturesome. West should bid two No Trumps and of course East would bid the third.

With a one No Trump Auction bid, West had an easy game in sight. North led the Jack of Diamonds which West took with the King (a false card). West then led the Eight of Spades and won with the Queen in dummy. Dummy next led a Club and West finessed the Queen. West then led the Ace and Four of Clubs and South took in two tricks with his King and Nine.

South then returned his partner's Diamond and West won with the Ace and finessed the Jack of Spades. A third Spade was won by East, who then led a Heart. West won this trick with the Ten and made four-odd as he lost only one more trick to the Queen of Hearts. This was a trick beyond his game, but could he have made more than that?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

West should have led the Spade Ten to trick 2, in an effort to tempt the King from North. That play would have assured three Spade entries for East if the King was held by North; two if it was held by South. (If North played the King on the first Spade trick, East covers and his Queen-9 are two more entries over West's 10-8; if North ducks, East's Queen will cover and his Ace-9 furnish two more entries.)

When East won the first Spade, he should have led a Heart as the Heart suit was more promising than the Club suit; West would take the double finesse, put East in with a second Spade for a second Heart finesse which would result in dropping all the adverse Hearts. Following this, East could have been put in with a third Spade and the thirteenth Heart cashed on which West would discard a Club. Then Declarer could have made an Auction Bridge small slam by a Club finesse.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Worry Over Nothing.

MY dear Miss McDonald: I have made a foolish mistake and I just can't forgive myself for doing such a thing—it worries me and hurts me. But before I go any farther, I will give you a little history of my sad and lonely life so you will be able to judge me right.

I have a life to be ashamed of. I am unmarried but have a little daughter very sweet and dear. I didn't give her up as many do, but keep her and pay her board in a private home. I go to see her once a week. I realize the injustice I did her by not having her adopted, but I didn't when she was an infant and won't now. I have never been the same since this happened, Miss McDonald.

I am broken in spirit, old long before my time. I often wish it was all over, for I get so tired and weary and lonely. I work as a clerk behind a soda fountain in a cigar store at a salary of $18.00 per week. I can't save or have anything I want; I can't even have a desirable place to live.

I never go any place, for what few friends I did have, have all drifted away. It is the same routine day in and day out, no one to give a kind word. I go home in the evening and look at the four walls in a back room. I get so desperate I feel like I can't go on any longer. I can't go out alone and my little girl is too far away to go see her after work.

Now, Miss McDonald, do you think I am good enough for any one? Back in April I met a fellow, an old friend I have known for a long while. He has been married and divorced from his wife—married very young. We went together for three months and life was a pleasure at that time. We were always pleasant to each other, never had a cross word. He knew about my little girl and I had no secrets to keep from him. I went with him to visit his sister a couple of times and she was very sweet and seemed to like me. She didn't approve of another girl he went with and he couldn't take her there.

Well, to shorten my story, he went back to the other girl. I was deeply hurt, Miss McDonald, when I came home and found his note telling me. I wanted sympathy, so I wrote his sister as I knew she would be looking for us to visit and told her what he did. She answered with a sympathizing letter and told me she was eager to see me and wanted me to visit. I answered her letter, but didn't hear from her any more.

Miss McDonald, it was such a small thing for me to do to tell his sister. I am so sorry I even did it, no matter what he did to me. I hate to think I made myself so small. It made him think very little of me for doing it, and his sister must despise me, too. Am I justified in thinking I did such a terrible wrong? If I only had some one to be true to me, some one to love, I could be happy. I don't seem to attract men at all. I know I did wrong years ago but I wasn't bad—it was through ignorance more than being bad.

Please write me, Miss McDonald, and tell me what you think of me and what you think of this man.

VERA.

Vera, if you are living a normal life, seeing people, going out in the evenings, you would not become so upset over such a small matter as having gone to the man's sister for sympathy. That was a perfectly natural thing to do. Forget it. His sister is probably merely embarrassed at his behavior toward you. Stop thinking about them.

And, Vera, why do you live in a room instead of boarding? Advertise for a place to board, or look up the ads. It is so much more cheerful and normal for a girl to board and see people at meals and after dinner in the evening. You could even find a private family who would take you and the baby both.

You will never attract men or even happiness until you begin to smile. Let the past be past. Begin to get ready for the future. Start smiling at people, men and women both. Meet life half way and you will soon be happy. What you need is people, and the first step toward that is to get out of the furnished room. Will you do that? Find a jolly crowded boarding house and learn to laugh. Find one this week and let me know how it works. And as for the rest just forget it, for it does not mean a thing.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Cactus Invades Paris; Some in Thimble Pots

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The cactus, favorite flower of French modern decorators, has invaded department stores here. You may now buy in the cactus department your pet prickly posy or a choice spiny specimen. Prices range from a few sous to a hundred francs, equivalent of $4.

Some cactus depend on their reduced size for value and come in pots as small as a thimble. Part of the popularity of the cactus is due to its ability to live without attention from the lady of the house. It requires no water and if left in a dry sunny spot is a self-operating plant.

Beauty Was an Art, Now It's a Science

Manila, P. I., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The invention of a device to measure beauty is claimed by Jose V. Soriano, student in the University of the Philippines.

The machine consists of a circle divided into more than 20 parts and angles in which the beauty of the fair one can be mathematically determined for purposes of comparison. The girl is viewed from different angles and her score is the sum total of the grades taken from the various angles. The highest grade that can be made is 2,000 points and the lowest 450 points.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—The business (or perhaps it's an art) of movie stunt work has reached a pretty sad state.

MONTE BLUE

Doubling used to pay big money, but within the last year or so the number of men who are willing to provide thrills for the camera has so increased that the dozen or so "veterans" have been forced to cut prices.

A parachute jump from an airplane used to pay the jumper at least $200. Now a director has only to shop around a little to find someone who'll fall a thousand or two feet for $25.

One of the better stunt men who made $500 weekly two years ago, now works, occasionally, for $150 a week, with $25 additional each time he does a particularly dangerous feat. Falling from a horse is not considered very dangerous, but hanging by the knees from a window sill on a high building is.

Ghost.

Officially, the stunt man does not exist. He never can have other than monetary recognition because it is part of the scheme of things to let fans think the stars do all their own tough work.

A star seldom takes a chance. Doctored close-ups may show him hanging to the side of a skyscraper or driving a racing car through a fence, but a stunt man actually does the hanging and driving.

Tom Mix usually works without a double. Monte Blue gave up the idea of performing the difficult parts in his pictures when he was seriously injured a year ago. Stunt men do only the very hazardous feats in Douglas Fairbanks' pictures.

As a rule, studios will not allow their stars to expose themselves to danger because an injury may delay production, causing a heavy financial loss, or permanent loss of the star's ability to act, in whom they have a large investment.

Every few months a "movie angel" comes to town and usually he is taken in by unscrupulous promoters. An angel is a person with money to "invest." He has a "big idea" or a daughter he believes should be a star.

They tell about an Oregon lumberman who came here with $100,000 to shoot.

"I'm crazy to make a good picture," he said. And a cameraman who overheard him remarked:

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family names "Winston" and "Winstone" have become greatly confused. They are both of English origin. The former is derived from the old English "Wines-tun" and means "the estate of Wine." "Wine" was an old English personal name meaning "friend." "Winstone may be traced back to the old English "winnstan" which means "battle-stone." Battle-stones were monuments erected to commemorate victories. Therefore, both "Winston" and "Winstone" indicate original places of residence. However, English documents of the tenth century record the personal name "Wynstan" which is also translated "battle-stone," and which is obviously the source of "Winston" and "Winstone" in many cases. Hamlets called Winston are found in Durham, Suffolk and Gloucester. The Hundred Rolls, the famous list of English names of the thirteenth century, mentions a John de Wynston, a William de Wynestone, and an Adam de Wynestone.

The family name "Bernhardt" is popularly supposed to be of Italian origin. Such is not the case, however. "Bernhardt" is a Latinized form of the German "Berinhard," which means "firm bear."

The family name "Hurd" is merely a variation of "Herd." It is derived from the old English "hierde," and means "herdsman" and "shepherd," obviously indicating the occupation of the persons who were first so called. The Hundred Rolls mentions a Robert le Hirde, a Richard le Herde, and a David le Hyrde. At the present time, the forms "Hird" and "Heard" are also found occasionally.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CUTTING TOBACCO EVIL.

TWO Chicago scientists, Drs. Pacini and McGuigan, have learned how to lessen, or even destroy, the physiologic effects of tobacco. Whether the product, as they denature it will have any kick, or will appeal to the palate remains to be seen. This is what they did and how they did it. A watery solution of nicotine was made. This solution was exposed to light from a mercury vapor lamp. If any printer wants to try a miniature experiment, let him lay his cigar, his smoking tobacco, or his plug of navy in the light under which he works and leave it there for a few hours. Or, perhaps printers who sometimes smoke as they work have already noticed that their tobacco tastes differently or has lost some of its kick.

Drs. Pacini and McGuigan found that the clear solution of nicotine, exposed to mercury vapor light, turned to yellow. Testing it with reagents they found it had become definitely acid. Both the yellow color and the acidity are indices of change in the drug.

Tobacco people will see some suggestions of methods which they use in curing tobacco. Fermentation or acid formation is one of the essential steps in curing tobacco. Just the proper use of light is a delicate point to decide in curing tobacco. It is possible that the process of present day curing is only a rule of thumb method of partial detoxication.

The yellow acid solution was then given to animals in various ways. These experiments proved that the light had caused the nicotine solution to become definitely less toxic.

The question then came up as to whether the heat of the light evaporated any considerable part of the nicotine. The answer was in the negative. The light from a mercury vapor lamp is cold as lights go.

HARE LIP AND TRENCH MOUTH.

Mrs. A. B. writes:

1. What is hare lip?
2. Trench mouth?
3. Are these contagious?
4. My young daughter had a badly swollen lower lip. It has been this way for a year. Sometimes it swells over and makes her face swollen, too, her chin red, and blisters on the chin. She has been to a doctor and he said it was indigestion. She sticks to her diet, but it does not seem to help. Is this indigestion?

REPLY.

1. A congenial deformity of the lip.
2. An infection of the gums or some other part of the interior of the mouth.
3. Trench mouth is; hair lip is not.
4. My guess is that your daughter has urticaria or nettlerash, and that something in her diet is responsible. The disorder will disappear when she finds the cause and avoids it.

BE SURE THEY ARE RIPE.

J. B. writes:

1. I have been informed that bananas are one of the hardest foods to digest. Will you verify this, as my wife is in the habit of feeding them to the baby?
2. Do you consider this a harmful practice?

REPLY.

1. Well ripened banana is easily digested and nutritious.
2. A well ripened banana is good food for a child. It is used in treating poorly nourished babies with certain digestive disorders.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The same morning, early, found Inspector Linscott and Bruce Armstrong speeding toward London and Prince Pozolevsky.

The two men leaned over in their seats by the window of the smoking compartment and whispered in low voices, one to the other, concerning their plans of action. For at the station following Alston a stranger invaded the compartment. But between these whisperings there were long intervals, during which they reclined, smoking their cigars, and thought their own thoughts.

The explorer felt rather satisfied with himself. He felt in his own element, rather like a hunter in the jungle suddenly scenting a wild beast and marking the trail where he was sure it had passed. Let these civilised people think what they liked; let them pride themselves on their safety, on their comfortable houses, on their bath tubs, on their superiority to the savage. Yet when a single murder occurred you saw them shaking in their boots! Then followed the hunt for the murderer. Sometimes they found him, and again sometimes they didn't! That's because they have lost their scent, the art of following a trail. And he, Bruce Armstrong, prided himself on the fact that his association with savages made him something of a savage, too, and where they, the civilized men, failed, he would succeed.

And there was Prince Pozolevsky, the man they were after. He, being a Russian, was also something of a savage. In short, a man who could kill another without showing the qualms exhibited by squeamish civilised men. He had been with Russians enough to know that all Russians were savages, concealed, however, by a veneer of culture. Was it Napoleon who had said, "Scratch a Russian and find a Tartar?" Napoleon was no fool, he knew a thing or two! Again, he thought, it was Kipling who said: "A Russian is a charming fellow until he tucks his shirt in!" Now, that was hitting the nail on the head. The Russian peasants wore their shirts outside their trousers, but this fellow, Prince Pozolevsky, had tucked his shirt in. What was the difference? Really, nothing to speak of. The Russian peasants killed their fellow men frequently, but they did it frankly and bluntly, without making much ado. Whereas a prince might conceivably hide his deed as he did his shirt. And Bruce Armstrong felt mightily pleased with himself.

The inspector pursued a somewhat difficult train of thought. He, too, was pleased—in his own fashion. He was pleased, first of all, because clews were now appearing galore which led in other directions than toward poor Robin. Then, he was pleased because the case at last promised excitement. He, too, felt the sense of being on the scent of something, which was life itself to men in his profession. In this instance the quarry promised to be big. He reluctantly had been compelled to admit that in view of the facts discovered by Armstrong, there were indications that Prince Pozolevsky might have been the guilty man, after all.

But he had not yet the assurance of his colleague. His mind constantly reverted to the stranger, the Canadian. The fellow was entirely too easy going and glib to suit his fancy. He had met men of his kind before. And they were not always innocent, no matter how they looked it. There was that knife. He had seen many knives in his life. The guilty weapon was a Canadian blade. He was sure of that much. If Prince Pozolevsky did it, it must be pre-supposed that he had appropriated a knife belonging to someone else, most surely that of Lord Winston himself. But people do not carry their knives on their sleeves. There was something fishy about the whole thing. Still, he must ferret the matter out. He must consider the prince as the possible guilty man until hard facts should prove otherwise.

Thus ruminating, the men arrived at Victoria. In ten minutes the taxi brought them into the prince's flat in Belgravia.

The prince had just got up. He received his visitors in his sitting room, hung with valuable paintings which he managed to send out of Petrograd in the early days of the revolution. He was dressed in a blue-patterned silk dressing gown, from under which emerged white silk pajamas and black leather slippers with rich gold markings. He showed no astonishment, seemed quite self-possessed, as he suavely motioned his visitor to comfortable arm chairs.

"To what circumstances do I owe the honor of your visit?" he began, having offered his visitors cigarettes and lighted one himself.

"Well, to tell you frankly," said the inspector, coming to the point promptly, "owing to several curious facts having come up in connection with the murder of Lord Winston, we have been forced to come here to ask you a few questions."

The prince did not change the nonchalant expression of his face, while the inspector proceeded:

"You see, Prince Pozolevsky, we have discovered the sheath of the knife which killed Lord Winston, and as it happens, it bears the initials of B. P., which are your initials. Perhaps you can explain!"

The prince, for the first time, showed his irritation as he replied:

"What has that to do with me? I have never carried a knife, and the fact that that knife bears my initials is no concern of mine. The fact is, gentlemen, I would as lief think of killing a pig as killing Lord Winston. I simply wouldn't soil my hands!"

"Be careful what you say, Prince Pozolevsky!" the inspector warned him. "What you say may be used against you."

But the prince only laughed, rather sardonically, both men thought. "What have I to fear?" he said, having recovered from his mirth.

"Prince Pozolevsky," said the inspector firmly, trying another tack. "We are here in the cause of justice. Mr. Robin Smith, whom we believe to be an innocent man, is now reposing in jail on the charge of murder. . . ."

"I, too, believe Mr. Smith innocent," interrupted Prince Pozolevsky.

"All the more reason why you should help us to clear the matter up. And as it happens, there is an incriminating fact or two against you, quite apart from the initials."

"And what, pray, may that be?" asked the prince, resuming his nonchalant manner.

"One is," began the inspector, "that you refused to shake hands with Lord Winston earlier in the day."

"Am I, then, obliged to shake hands with every one I meet?" asked Prince Pozolevsky, sarcasm in his voice.

"The other thing is," pursued the inspector quietly, "that you were heard to say, when they were looking for Lord Winston, 'The devil take him!' or words to that effect in Russian. Oh, and there's still another thing!" said the inspector abruptly, as if he had suddenly thought of it. 'You bore Lon Winston a grudge because of your wife and Maj. Dudley. Isn't that so?" Linscott narrowly watched Prince Pozolevsky. "Now, what have you to say?"

The prince's face blanched. "Nothing!" he answered, angrily, with considerable agitation. "There are some private affairs which I am afraid I can not discuss with anyone!"

Linscott and Armstrong exchanged glances.

"I am sorry to inform you, Prince," retorted Inspector Linscott, "that you may be forced to discuss them. If you will not tell me here quietly, you will have to come along to Scotland Yard, where means will be found to make you talk."

The prince pondered for a while, then said quietly:

"I am sorry, gentlemen, if I have given you cause to misinterpret any reluctance on my part to speak. But the truth is, and I am sure you will understand, that there are delicate things in one's life which a gentleman does not desire to divulge to every stranger. But I see that in the present instance I must. And I bow to necessity. When I tell you my story you will see that it is to no desire to hinder justice that I should have preferred to remain silent, but rather to a desire to avoid any necessary publicity for an unsavory affair of my past life."

The prince spoke calmly, laying almost delicate emphasis on every word, as educated foreigners are apt to do. He had English governesses since childhood, and had been to Oxford besides, so that his knowledge of the alien tongue far surpassed that of the average native.

The inspector pulled out his notebook. He and his colleague assumed the position of intent listeners, and waited for the speaker to continue.

"Well, I see there's no help for it," he resumed shortly, having taken an incredibly long time to relight his cigarette. "I must unbosom by secret, which I have yet told no man, be he my enemy or my best friend. But I must begin from the beginning. Late in 1916, just before the first Russian revolution, I married. My wife was a very beautiful woman, and I considered myself fortunate to be the one chosen from among many suitors. We loved one another, gentlemen. Well, as in a fairy tale——" The prince smiled a sad smile of reminiscence. "And we lived happily for one whole year. To be precise, until the first few weeks of the Bolshevik revolution in the autumn of 1917. And who knows, we might have gone on being happy together to this day if it hadn't been for the appearance of a stranger on the scene."

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

A POOR season when Gilbert Miller fails to bring from Europe a play he believes will interest the American public. To his credit must go most of the Molnar success of the past—and usually the premieres took place here in Washington. No Molnar comedy this year, Mr. Miller brings instead a Paris success, "Marseilles," by Marcel Pagnol, the man who wrote "Topaze," a New York hit that failed to reach here. "Marseilles" will have its grand opening, probably with the entire French Embassy in the boxes, on Monday night next in the Belasco.

• • • •

While all this is going on at Lafayette Square, Mr. Harry Rapley and his National Theater family will be entertaining the super showman of the American Theater, Mr. George M. Cohan, in "The Tavern." In local theater circles they will never quit telling the story of George M. Cohan and the subdebs, or, perhaps, they were debs. Some unkind folk would probably subetitute a "u" for the "e." Anyway, the girls wanted to rent the National for a benefit, or something, and the list of coming attractions was read off—including the names of several motion picture actresses and actors coming here in legitimate shows. Finally came "George M. Cohan in 'The Tavern.'" Cohan? Cohan? mused one of the girls. "Who's he? Never heard of him." And, what's more, she never had; which shows the value of theater advertising.

• • • •

Mr. Cohan will get a great laugh of the story told at his expense. He likes that sort of thing. Incidentally, he has been coming to Washington since his boyhood days—when the Four Cohans were supreme in the theater. On his way here once he had some little tilt with the family, and moved up forward to a different coach on the train. The conductor, asking for the tickets, tapped the young man's shoulder: "Company," said Georgie Cohan, the accepted signal that he was a trouper. "What company?" asked the conductor. "The d—est company you ever saw," said young George Cohan, and went on looking out the window. The conductor got the fare from the company manager.

• • • • •

All this man's town is raving over the beauty of Miss Helen Gahagan in "Tonight or Never," at the Belasco. It's no news to the play reviewers who have watched her shine behind the footlights these several years. Nor is it news that she has a remarkable voice. It was discovered as long ago as 1925, when some one pointed her out as a future operatic star. This past year or so Miss Gahagan stayed on the other side, far from the racking noises of Broadway, and when she goes back to the Street of Streets her first night promises to be a sensation.

• • • •

When "Subway Express" let out at the National on Monday night the old theater resembled a huge courtroom at the hour of adjournment. Eminent legal lights, from the Supreme Court Justices of the United States, down to several members of the lesser courts, had witnessed one of the most remarkable thrillers ever staged. The story probably reminded many of their earlier cases in the realm of lex legibus.

• • • •

With his 375th play launched on the boards of the American theater, David Belasco, the dean of native producers, is remaining in Washington the entire week to see that every little detail of "Tonight or Never" is made perfect before the comedy approaches the front-line trenches of Broadway—where they shoot on sight. The play does need a lot of tightening up, but while Mr. Belasco stands in the scenes with his monkey wrench there is no fear of loose connections.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Choices.

Six-year-old Marcia, taken by her mother to the store, found the display of Halloween favors entirely too lovely.

She wanted this, she wanted that; in fact, she wanted at least one of everything she saw.

But mother was firm. Marcia could have just two things and she must make up her mind which two they were to be.

At first she protested, but when she saw that that would do no good she, like a sensible child, concentrated on getting the best possible bargain.

When she emerged from the store finally it was with a large and ferocious jack o'lantern in one hand, an orange camel in the other, and the satisfaction of the successful shopper written on her face.

It is in just such little happenings as these that we have our opportunity to teach children attitudes which will be serviceable to them always.

Because the indiscriminate granting of childish whims is easy while children are small, the things they want often costing so very little, we frequently set up habits of indulgence which later on make it difficult for them to accept the inevitable limitations.

For a child to be able to decide what he really wants most, to choose it, and leave behind without too much regret the things he wants almost as much, is as useful a piece of behavior as he is likely to acquire.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PARSNIPS IN TWO DIFFERENT WAYS.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

After boiling parsnips until tender there are several ways of preparing them for serving. Probably there is no more popular method of finishing them than browning them in butter or other sweet fat. They may be halved or mashed and fried in little cakes. Dip the pieces in flour before frying. The following recipe for scalloped parsnips gives directions for the preliminary boiling. This is a very good way of fixing parsnips for children, suggests the Bureau of Home Economics, which furnishes the recipe.

Scalloped Parsnips.

6 or 7 medium-sized parsnips
3 tablespoons butter or other fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup rich milk or cream
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup buttered bread crumbs

Scrub the parsnips clean, cook for 20 to 30 minutes, or until tender, in lightly salted water, and drain. Scrape off the outer skin, split the parsnips lengthwise and pull out the stringy cores. Place the parsnips in a shallow baking dish and cover with a sauce made with the fat, flour and milk or cream, and salt. Cover the top with the bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes or until the parsnips are thoroughly heated and the buttered crumbs are golden brown. Serve in the baking dish.

Rough Black Tweeds Make New Sports Fabric

Some of the black sports fabrics have a fine gray or white thread mixed in them. Others are all black. Black crepe jersey is also permissible for the sportswoman by Paris standards.

Sacks Make Hats, Dresses.

Talladega, Ala., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Discarded sacks were used by an Alabama woman to make 41 pieces of clothing which she exhibited at the county fair here. The articles, made by Mrs. M. E. Bishop, included ten dresses and seven hats of a wide variety of patterns and styles.

Snug, Gay Beach Pajamas Reach Paris From Colonies

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Palm Beach goers, spectators and nonspectators in pajama parades, are to be treated to a preview of the French colonial exposition, it appears.

French colonial possessions strike the note for pajama suits aimed directly at Palm Beach and similar smart Southern winter resorts.

There are lines, colors and fabrics from Cambodia, Martinique, Tunis, Indo-China and all the other faraway places that make it possible to sell atlases in an age of education.

On the whole the new pajamas are ground length, fitted around the hips, fairly snug if not skin tight in the bodice and made of washable materials.

Much white in combination with brilliant colors is indicated. The color may come in the form of hand-blocked cotton handkerchiefs of the mammy type.

Or it may be contrasting linen made up in opera-bouffe style with braiding and curliques of white applied to a short jacket. One such pajama costume is red, white and blue and has brass buttons.

If You are Over-Fat
Take 2 Grains Gland Food Daily
Until Slenderness Returns

That is the method modern science has discovered. It is used by doctors the world over. It has changed the whole aspect of obesity. Very many of the slender figures that you envy are due to this new-day help. Single physicians, by its use, are making thousands thin.

The reason is this: A great cause of excess fat has been found to lie in a weakened gland. Its secretion largely controls nutrition. A scant secretion permits too much of our food to form fat. So modern doctors feed that lacking factor until conditions are set right.

Marmola prescription tablets embody that gland factor. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Each box contains the formula and the reasons for results. So all may use this modern treatment at very little cost.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. All can everywhere see the enormous good it has done. Most folks have friends who can tell them. What folly then to starve or over-do. What folly to use treatments harmful or absurd. And what folly to carry an over-burden of fat—a blight to beauty, health and vim.

Don't wait longer while so many gain the joys of being slender. All druggists supply Marmola at $1. Go get it now, read the book to know what you are taking and why. Then tell the facts to others, as we tell you.

WOMAN REFUSES TO GIVE THUG $3

Money Was First Husband Had Earned After Three Weeks of Idling.

WILLING TO GIVE HALF

Special to The Washington Post.

Detroit, Nov. 4.—Thirteen weeks behind in her rent, Mrs. Sam Barnardo, 476 Canton avenue, was willing to split the $3 her husband had earned cleaning out a cellar with a bandit who stuck a gun in her ribs, but she was decidedly unwilling to give him the entire amount. She screamed and ran when the bandit became insistent.

Mrs. Barnardo was on her way home with her husband and their 18-months-old baby. Barnardo was walking a little ahead of his wife, carrying the child, when the bandit stepped out of the shadows and menaced Mrs. Barnardo with the weapon and demanded her money.

Mrs. Barnardo told the man that her husband had been out of work for some time, that they had only $3 to buy food for themselves and the baby. She offered to give him half if that would satisfy him, but he demanded her purse, which contained the money.

Barnardo, with his baby in his arms, was helpless to interfere. It was at this moment that Mrs. Barnardo decided to scream and run. The bandit then covered Barnardo, searched him and then commanded him to run after his wife, while he slipped away into the darkness.

"I wasn't going to give up all the money I had," Mrs. Barnardo said. "My husband has not worked at a steady job for two years. He got a chance to earn $3 cleaning out a cellar and jumped at the chance.

"We have appealed to the Public Welfare Department for aid, but because we have only one child they do not seem to want to do much. We have received about four $2 checks in two months. They say they will not pay our rent. The rent for the rooms is $7.50 a week and we are thirteen weeks behind.

"I don't know what we will do or where we will go. James Burke, the owner of the house, has served notice that we must get out unless we pay up.

"My husband has tried hard to get work. He was one of the first to register at the City Hall. He is strong and anxious to work. He has been a truck driver, but will do anything. I would try to get a job myself, but my health will not permit it. And then I have to look after the baby."

Hair Tonic Is Blamed For Arrest as Drunkard

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 4.—Whether J. M. Brown, a barber, was drunk while driving an automobile or whether the arresting patrolman only smelled the odor of a French hair tonic on his hair will be a matter for decision by a jury in the corporation court here.

Brown was fined $100 when tried under charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of an intoxicant. He denied the charge and produced witnesses to prove that just before he was arrested a fellow barber applied a liberal dose of hair tonic on his head. He maintained that it was the alcohol in the tonic the officer smelled and not alcohol on his breath.

Easy Speaking Mob Flees a Speakeasy

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Forty little politicians drinking in an office building speakeasy in the very shadow of Billy Penn's broad-brimmed hat.

Along came the police and then there was none.

In fact, they all tried to get through the same door at the same time, in violation of all the beter known laws of physics.

When the dust from their scampering feet had settled back to its accustomed place, the raiders discovered none other than their old friend, smiling Charlie Pappas.

Charles had been in and out of difficulty with the law ever since the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and the Snyder act became the rule of the day. But there he was, undismayed by the unexpected guests.

It was something of a new role for Pappas. For a bar he was using a flat-top desk, and to make matters worse, the police took away five gallons of assorted liquors.

The raiders were led by Capt. James E. Lawrence, of the Eleventh and Winter streets station. The building is in south Penn Square, directly opposite city hall, and, according to police, was used as a "hangout" by ward heelers, lawyers' runners and minor political fry.

23 Lepers Released In Venezuelan Colony

Maracaibo, Venezuela, Nov. 4.—Recently 23 lepers were permitted to resume their normal life, receiving their discharge from the leper colony on Providencia Island, according to La Informacion. Before the lepers were released and after they were considered cured by the authorities of the island they were examined during a period of six months by Venezuelan sanitary officials. The examinations gave a negative result. From now on, and for several years to come, the former lepers will be obliged to report every six months for examination, so there may be no possibility of error.

Various treatments are followed in the leper settlement. Cholmogra oil is administered by the mouth and in injections; soaps made of this oil are used, and recently applications of dry ice have given good results. Contrary to the usual procedure with sick people, exercise and not rest is indicated.

Seamen Are Honored For Saving Aviators

Buenos Aires, Nov. 4.—About a year ago the British aircraft carrier Eagle rescued the Spanish aviators, Franco, Ruiz de Alba, Gallarga and Madriaga, near the Azores, after their hydroplane had been crippled. The powerful Spanish colony in Buenos Aires at once took notice.

The British ambassador, Sir Malcolm Robertson, was asked if a bronze commemorative tablet for the Eagle and gold medals for the officers of the ship would be permitted. To which Sir Malcolm replied that such action would be deeply appreciated.

Recently a beautifully wrought bronze plate and eighteen gold medals were handed to Sir Ronald Macleay, the successor of Sir Malcolm Robertson, for transmission to London.

The ceremony of presentation has been widely commented on and relations between Argentina and Britain have been advanced in no small degree.

Divining Rod Finds Wells for Farmers

Underground Springs Are Located After Many Had Gone Dry.

Special to The Washington Post.

Salem, N. H., Nov. 4.—Would you stake $350 on the turn of a stick?

If you lived on a farm and your well—the only source of water supply you had—suddenly went dry, as many wells have the past few months, would you believe a divining rod in the hands of a man if it indicated that there was water 25 feet from the old well and 18 feet underground?

And even if you did have faith in that sort of thing, would you invest a considerable sum of money digging to learn whether it was right or not?

William Stanley, of Range road, Windham, just beyond the Salem boundary line, had faith and he has been rewarded by finding a splendid supply of clear water. The divining rod was in the hands of Charles W. Mann, a 69-year-old resident of Salem, and Mr. Mann has located wells and springs in other places.

South American Cities Build Stadia for Sports

Buenos Aires, Nov. 4.—Football, golf, boxing, tennis, racing and sports in general take up more space in the South American press than any other features. And this accounts for the fact that in a few years every large city will boast its imposing stadium. The latest is the enormous affair in Montevideo, where the international soccer games were recently held, and now Buenos Aires plans to construct one bigger and better.

In fact, the municipal authorities propose to devote some 30 acres near the center of the city to a great stadium and still leave space for other sports. The property belongs to the government, and construction is estimated at about $1,500,000. When completed the installation will represent a sports center unequaled in any other city of the world.

Postal Tube Gambling Baffles Berlin Police

Berlin, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A novel game of chance is enjoying a great vogue here, probably because it baffles the police. The game is played with the pneumatic postal tube, which is always running. The banker has a "field" of half a dozen or so pneumatic letters, addressed to him by a confederate from a distant suburban postoffice, at intervals of, say, ten minutes.

The letters are numbered, and of course bear the official time stamp. The betting is on the order in which these letters will arrive, for it is common knowledge that there are wide variations in postal tube deliveries. The banker takes 10 per cent of the stakes and the rest is divided among the successful backers.

LiveStock Farmers Hope To Gain From Drought

Ames, Iowa, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The drought has been bad for Iowa grain farmers and good for Iowa live stock producers, an Iowa State college survey shows. Although Iowa's corn crop is 20 per cent short, benefits normally to be expected are removed by the crops distribution and the effect of the price of wheat on prices of all feed grains.

Feed shortage is not so marked in Iowa as elsewhere, with the result that the State expects to raise its normal amount of hogs and cattle for the better prices anticipated next year.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief?

There are many times when Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis.

Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism, has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets.

Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

CAROLINA LYNCHING TRIAL NEARING END

MAN, 52, WAS KILLED

Walhalla, S. C., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—When court adjourned here late today in the trial of seventeen men charged with murder as a result of the lynching of Allen Green, 52-year-old Negro, near here last spring, testimony of seventeen witnesses had been presented. Court officials said the case probably would end tomorrow afternoon. Green was charged with attacking a white woman.

Most of those testifying during the afternoon corroborated testimony of previous witnesses.

"Dock" Thomas, son of Sheriff J. H. Thomas, who was assaulted when the mob attacked the jail, told the jury he talked with Alvin Jones, night policeman and defendant, and in talking about the Negro, he said Jones told him he wanted Green lynched.

B. H. Hardy testified he was at the ball park where the crowd gathered before the lynching. A large crowd went to the jail and took Green out, he said. Two of the men looked like Nelson Matheson and Willie Smith, defendants, he added.

Garnet Burton said he was at the meeting at the ball park and heard the names of John Sanders, a defendant, and Rubin Hailey, State's witness, called.

During the morning sessions one defense witness took the stand when State's attorneys agreed, because he had business engagements making it inconvenient for him to testify later.

The witness, J. E. Riorden, said Mayor R. L. Ballentine came to his house two hours before the Negro was lynched, to cancel an engagement for a fishing trip. The mayor was talking with him at the time Green was lynched, he said.

A State witness, Albert Buchanan, followed Riordan on the stand and said Ballentine talked with him the night before the lynching and said "something ought to be done" with Green.

Hotels for Tourists Planned in Mexico

Government Issues Decree to Aid Trade With Visitors.

Mexico City, Nov. 4.—Any person desiring to build a hotel cheaply these days can do so in Mexico for the government has just decreed that all materials for such construction are to be admitted duty free. Not only this, but the entire country and the government as well will do everything to fill the hotels.

Mexico realizes the great market she offers the tourist. Tradition of great historic and romantic value, scenic beauty unmatched, a system of highways rapidly being pushed to completion, a land of charm and beauty, a people hospitable to their finger-tips. All this connecting up with United States territory and thousands of miles of good roads touching the border.

Mexico aspires to a share of that Canadian tourist traffic and she is destined to get it.

The new decree provides that no duty shall be collected on materials imported for the construction, renovation, remodeling or decoration of buildings to be used as hotels. Included are sanitary fittings, lighting fixtures, heating and water installation, carpets, decorations and so on.

JURY MAY RECEIVE JONES CASE TODAY

ACQUITTAL MOVE FAILS

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The trial of James P. Jones, former secretary of the Virginia Methodist Orphanage, on charges of embezzling funds of that institution, was completed today. The defendant did not take the witness stand in his own behalf.

Jones, member of the State Legislature and former treasurer of the Antisaloon League of Virginia, may know his fate by tomorrow night. Instructions to the jury will be decided upon tomorrow morning and attorneys' arguments will begin at 2:30 p. m., with the possibility that the case may reach the jury by nightfall.

The defense's concluding effort was to renew its motion, overruled last week, to throw out all evidence on the ground that the alleged crime had not been established. The motion again was overruled by Judge John L. Ingram.

Indicted on Five Charges.

Indicted on five charges of embezzlement and one of grand larceny, the whole involving $37,976.40 of orphanage funds, Jones has been tried on the first of the embezzlement indictments, which charged him with using $4,944.50 of orphanage money in his furniture business. The indictment has thirteen counts, each of which carries a penalty of one to ten years imprisonment.

James H. Price, Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, and John M. Purcell, State treasurer, were among the seven character witnesses who testified today that Jones' reputation for honesty and integrity were good.

The defense this afternoon sharply contradicted testimony previously introduced that the defendant had admitted using approximately $20,000 of orphanage funds in his business. Those who said they heard Jones make this statement were F. L. Worcester, auditor; I. N. Vaughan, member of the orphanage board of trustees, and Dr. G. I. McAllen, superintendent of the orphanage.

Recall No Such Admission.

Today Dr. J. T. Mastin, pastor of a Richmond Methodist Church; W. T. Stewart, the defendant's son-in-law; Dr. Thomas D. Jones, the accused man's brother, and Dr. J. P. Jones, his son, declared they were present at conferences where Jones was said to have made the admission, and heard no such statement.

All four, except Dr. Mastin, testified they had heard "all the conversation" in which the defendant took part at the conferences.

Dr. Mastin said he did not recall such a statement.

Grenfell Hospital Razed By Village-Wide Blaze

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Battle Harbour, situated on the Labrador Coast, was fire swept yesterday noon. The Grenfell Hospital was destroyed as well as the fishing premises belonging to Baine Johnstone and containing winter supplies. No loss of life was reported. The hospital had but few patients, all of whom escaped, uninjured.

A wireless station a mile from the fire was put out of commission by the intense heat, which burned off the wireless mast. Temporary repairs were effected today, however.

Drought Chairmen To Meet in City

Committee Heads to Bring Available Information on Conditions.

(Associated Press.)

Chairmen of State drought relief committees were invited yesterday by Secretary Hyde to meet in Washington with the national committee on November 20 to discuss the form of relief needed by their States.

In telegrams dispatched to the chairmen, they were requested to bring to Washington all available information on drought conditions, needs and set-up of relief organizations. In the event that the chairmen themselves find that they can not attend, it was suggested that they name a subsitute, or that their State director of extension or the dean of the Land Grant College in their State attend in their stead.

The annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges will be in session in Washington November 17-19 with the extension directors of many States in attendance. This would enable their attendance at the drought meeting. Originally it had been planned that the meeting be held either November 14 or 15.

Thousands Homeless in Mexican Flood

Villanermosa, Mexico, Nov. 4 (A.P.). Thousands are temporarily homeless and water is 10 feet deep in the lower part of this city as a result of the highest floods in memory. The Grijalova River has overflowed its banks.

Deafened now aided by Radio Principles

The deafened, often, have suffered heartbreaking disappointments. Promises of good hearing have been many—fulfillments all too few.

Now, Germany's newest invention—TRUTONOPHONS—brings instant relief for all but the stone deaf. TRUTONOPHONS is built on scientific radio principles. It is of smallest size, weighs in all but 4½ ounces, and is exceptionally durable and rugged.

TRUTONOPHONS promises just one thing—comfortable hearing—effortlessly received. Now the deafened can enjoy pleasures formerly denied them—sit back at concert, theatre, lecture, and receive undistorted, the sounds they want to hear.

Deutsche Akustik Gesellshaft of Berlin, Germany, has developed TRUTONOPHONS in its world-famous laboratories. Comparisons show that where other instruments fail, TRUTONOPHONS succeeds. Many who had long lost hope of comfortable hearing have become happy listeners to voices and sounds not enjoyed in many years.

Statements alone, however, will never do justice to TRUTONOPHONS. The manufacturers of this amazing new aid invite the skeptical to compare TRUTONOPHONS with any other known instrument. Hear voices and speech with a new, startling clarity—hear whispers audibly.

POISONED GIRL DIES ON COFFIN OF FIANCE

Maiden Goes to View Body of Sweetheart and Kills Herself, Is Report.

MAN KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Santa Ana, Calif., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Clinging to the coffin containing the body of her 24-year-old sweetheart, Hazel Bouchet, 17, formerly of Loveland, Colo., took poison today and died despite the efforts of physicians to save her.

Richard Kuykendall was fatally injured Sunday in an automobile crash near San Clemente, 30 miles south of here. Miss Bouchet spent many hours by his bedside, and was with him as he died.

Today the girl went to the mortuary and asked to see the body alone. In a few minutes attendants heard a moan and returned in time to see Miss Bouchet's arms relax from the coffin. A broken bottle lay beside her.

"This is where I want to die," she said, and threw herself across the coffin.

Miss Bouchet wore a wedding ring, but officers said Kuykendall was not legally freed from a wife, Thelma, whom he had divorced.

As his humor he likes to keep dry,
And as likely as not
You will find that dry rot

TWENTY GRAND FAVORED IN FIELD OF 9 IN FUTURITY

Hawks Meet Challenge of Knicks

1924 Champions to Bid for Title Again in Game Tonight.

"Padded" Line-Up to Face Hawks; Sothern May Play.

SIX years after they conquered the Mohawks in a stunning upset and carried on to win the District independent football championship, the Knickerbockers are challenging again. They clash with the Mohawks under the flood light at Griffith Stadium starting at 8:15 o'clock.

Tonight holds the prospect of an old-fashioned sandlot football game with the haughty Hawks relying on a coterie of stars long prominent on the local sandlots and the Knicks bringing a "padded" line-up into play in the hope of scoring a victory and sharing in the pot of gold that is found by the leading contenders at the end of the season when the decisive games with the champion Apaches are scheduled.

On form and past performances, the Mohawks rule the favorites. The only basis of comparison, scores against a mutual opponent, the Irvingtons, of Baltimore, reveals that the Knicks were soundly trounced by the Baltimoreans, 18 to 0, while the Mohawks battled the Irvingtons to a scoreless tie.

Kersey Long Anxious To Beat Hawks.

Frank Kersey, new Knickerbocker manager, who has long nursed an ambition to muster a team capable of defeating both the Mohawks and Apaches, has gathered about him his most formidable aggregation, generously sprinkled with former college stars with a likelihood that last-minute additions will bring players of much prominence into the Knickerbocker fold.

Among Kersey's recruits are five members of the exiled George Washington University Freshmen Team who are assigned places in both the line and the back field. Among these are Walsh, right half back, and Jovick, end.

Despite reports that they would appear in the Knick line-up, Steve Barabas and Bob Dwyer, former Georgetown back-field stars, will not play. Earlier in the week it was announced that Denny Sothern, local youth, who plays center field for the Pittsburgh Pirates, would perform for the Knicks, but Manager Kersey was unable to say for certain if Sothern would play.

Sothern Hero of 1924 Victory.

It was hinted that many of Kersey's players would perform under assumed names to conceal college affiliations. Sothern was the hero of the Knickerbockers' victory over the Mohawks in 1924, when he intercepted a long pass and outsped the entire Mohawk Team to deliver the victory at Griffith Stadium.

No changes have been announced in the Mohawk line-up, which features Collier, Sweeney, De Labre, and Abbey, in the back field. The elusive Sweeney and the line-smashing De Labre will draw the particular attention of the Knicks. Abbey, playing coach, too, is a threat.

When an electric current is introduced into a battery that has no current a certain chemical process follows, and later when wires are so connected as to complete a circuit, the chemical process is reversed and electricity is "generated." At no time is there actually any current stored in the battery, although it may be there potentially.

Marine Team Abandoned By Corps

Commanders of Posts Balk at Expense of Maintenance.

THE All-Marine teams in football and baseball are to be abolished and the players will be apportioned to the ranks at three big posts, Quatico, Va.; Parris Island, S. C., and San Diego Calif., according to an order issued by Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, who several weeks ago had gleaned objections to continuing the present policy in a meeting of post commanders.

The order will take effect on the football team at the end of the current season and on the baseball team next July. At this time the services of John Thomas Keady, head coach of both teams, also will be dispensed with. His contract expires July 1.

Objections to maintaining the teams with funds donated from the various post exchanges—the only way possible that the teams could be maintained since there is no general athletic fund provided by the Government—influenced Gen. Fuller in his decision, it is believed.

Funds Donated By 43 Posts.

The maintenance fund since 1924 has been donated from the exchanges of 43 Marine posts throughout the United States and its possessions. From 1921 to 1924 the Marine Corps Teams were sponsored largely by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, commandant of Quantico.

According to Maj. David L. Brewster, Marine Corps athletic officer, the scrapping of the All-Marine Football Team does not necessarily mean that there will be no more President's Cup games after that scheduled for December 6 of this year.

A plan has been proposed, Maj. Brewster said last night, whereby the Marine Corps, through an elimination series among Quantico, Paris Island, and San Diego, will determine a representative to meet the Coast Guard for the cup and the service football championship of which the trophy is emblematic.

The President's Cup, donated in the interest of service athletics by President Coolidge, has been held by the Marine Corps every year, except two, since the inception of the championship games. The Army won the cup one year, and the Navy captured it in 1928. Last year the Marines defeated the Coast Guard for the cup.

President's Cup Game Offered to New York

An offer to play the All-Marines-Coast Guard game in New York for the benefit of the unemployed yesterday was wired Mayor James Walker by Maj. David L. Brewster, Marine Corps athletic officer. The game, which is to decide the enlisted men's service football championship together with possession of the President's Cup for one year, is scheduled to be played in Griffith Stadium on December 6.

The offer, conceived by Maj. Brewster, was heartily indorsed by Maj. Gen. Fuller and Admiral Hilard, respective commandants of the Marine Corps and the Coast Guard.

East, With 21 Wins, 15 Losses, Holds Lead In Intersectional Play

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The East slightly increased its lead over the Midwest in number of intersectional football victories as a result of the games of the last week-end, but a general invasion by Middle Western Elevens this Saturday may turn the tide.

The East's victories were accounted for by Army over North Dakota, Pennsylvania over Kansas, Georgetown over Michigan State and Temple over Wake Forest. The West and South countered when Marquette trimmed Boston College, Oklahoma City stopped Davis and Elkins, Tulsa turned back George Washington and Duke beat Villanova.

Something like a crisis in the intersectional race will be reached this week with such games as Harvard-Michigan, Penn-Notre Dame, Army-Illinois, Navy-Ohio State, New York University-Georgia, West Virginia-Kansas Aggies, and Detroit-Fordham on the schedule.

Army-Navy Benefit Game Proposal Interests Cities

Chicago, New York Prepared to Bid High for Contest.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Proposals for postseason college football games for the benefit of unemployment relief fast accumulating today have attracted widespread support and interest, especially insofar as they involve the possibility of Army and Navy patching up their differences to aid the common cause.

Chicago and New York, as well as Philadelphia, are prepared to bid high for a postseason benefit game between the rival football forces of West Point and Annapolis, despite the many difficulties which Secretary of the Navy Adams said would have to be overcome.

George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois unemployment commission, has suggested Soldier Field as an ideal spot for the Army and Navy to meet on the gridiron again, for the first time since they broke off in 1927. He ventured the gate receipts would produce $750,000 for the aid of the unemployed.

Open Letter Addressed To Hoover.

The New York Daily News, which addressed an open letter to President Hoover on the subject of an Army-Navy game, called for united support of metropolitan agencies in bringing the game to New York. The newspaper predicted it would draw a gate in excess of $1,000,000 at either of the local ball parks.

Foremost among the obstacles to a revival of the service battle is the fact Navy already is scheduled up to December 6, when the Midshipmen play Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. Army closes its season at Chicago November 29 against Notre Dame and West Point officials have shown no enthusiasm for a postseason project.

Western Maryland Willing To Oppose N. Y. U.

Meanwhile a growing list of possible opponents was presented for New York University, which has put its football team at the disposal of a civic committee for purposes of a benefit game, for any date after November 22. Western Maryland, one of the few undefeated Eastern teams, has expressed willingness to play N. Y. U. Inquiry also came today from the Far West on behalf of Utah Rocky Mountain Conference champions, also undefeated. U. Y. U. has referred all possible opponents to the civic authorities, taking the stand that the university is not issuing or receiving challenges.

University of Michigan, in addition to offering a portion of the receipts of the Chicago game to unemployment aid, also stands ready to furnish the use of its stadium for a prospective postseason clash between Detroit and Michigan State.

Overtures may be made to book an extra benefit attraction involving Washington State's Cougers, at present the unbeaten leading contender for Pacific Coast Conference championship honors. Washington State already has a scheduled Eastern appearance November 29 at Philadelphia against Villanova. The Cougers might be offered a game the following week in New York against Fordham, leading contender for Eastern championship honors; N. Y. U. or Colgate.

Secretary Adams Hears Plan for Service Game

(Associated Press.)

Individuals, whose names were not disclosed, have proposed an Army-Navy football game, to Secretary Adams, the proceeds of which would be given to the unemployed.

Secretary Adams said that he had not been approached by George F. Getz, chairman of the unemployment committee of Illinois, who is urging such a game, but that he had heard from other interested persons.

He said as yet nothing definite had been decided about the matter, but there were "many difficulties" which would have to be overcome before such a game between the service elevens could be played.

2-Year-Olds Meet Today At Pimlico

Equipoise, Beaten Twice by Favorite, Is Contender.

Vander Pool, Mate Also Find Favor in Classic.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Nine of the best juvenile racers on the American turf were entered today for the ninth running tomorrow of the Pimlico Futurity.

Carrying $40,000 added to the winner, it is the second richest stake for the age, and is to be run at a mile and a sixteenth.

This glittering feature of old Hilltop's fall racing season, which opened today, will be started without George D. Widener's Jamestown, champion of the 2-year-olds, which horsemen here say will not race again this season.

Twenty Grand Ran Mile in 1:36.

Twenty Grand, from the Greentree stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney, with two victories over Equipoise, another member of select quartet, has been installed the favorite. Twenty Grand's record was given a boost by the record time in which he tore off the mile in the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes at Churchill Downs 1:36.

Outside of Equipoise, which has a good record for his 2-year-old season, Vander Pool and Mate make up the favored four. Vander Pool, the Tennessee stable's star, which came back to the races a few weeks ago after a summer layoff because of injuries, since his return has scored eleven victories without a defeat.

Mate, the A. C. Bostwick colt, has been developing since the victory in the Breeders' Futurity at Lexington. His most recent achievement was capturing the Spalding Lowe Jenkins handicap at Laurel last Saturday.

$52,370 to Winner If Nine Start.

If all nine of the entries start, the winner will receive $52,370.

The futurity was run first at the 1921 meeting at Pimlico, when it was captured by Morvich.

Prior to last year the futurity was run at a mile, but the distance has been increased. Flying Heels' time last year for the longer route was 1:47. The best time for the mile was set by Sally's Alley at 1:39 1-5.

Originally the nominations for this year's event numbered 1,893.

G. U. TO STICK TO WINNING LINE-UP

COACH TOMMY MILLS intends to stand pat on the Georgetown array that beat Michigan State for the game with Boston College Saturday in Boston. He believes in the old fundamental sport law that a winning combination should not be tampered with.

While the Hilltop eleven has yet to reach the stage where it leaves nothing to be desired in the eyes of the coaches, it showed considerable improvement against Michigan State over earlier performances and, if Mills' hopes are realized, it will show still further improvement in the forthcoming game.

Hudson to Remain as Regular End.

Ray Hudson, the converted back who has played at end in the Moyas' last two games, will remain on the flank as a regular starter. This stocky youth is a whale of a defensive end.

Dick Danner, who was shoved into the hole at right guard when Charlie Brickman was injured, also will continue in the starting line-up, at least for Saturday's game. Danner comes out of the lifts fast on offense to give running interference for the backs and also does a commendable job on defense.

Brickman, it was learned yesterday, will return to action after all, possibly for the New York University game scheduled in New York on November 15. He has fully recovered from a tonsilitis attack and has regained complete use of his arm which

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

—By JACK ESPEY—

JOHNNY SCALZI, the Stamford Streak, already has crashed Mr. Parke H. Davis' football honor roll for 1930, months ahead of the publication of same in next year's Spalding's Guide.

Georgetown's quarter back has assured himself of recognition in this fashion through two 95-yard runbacks of kick-offs this season. Johnny first pulled this thrilling stunt as Georgetown defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, and repeated last Friday night as the Hilltop downed Michigan State.

In the 1931 Guide you'll find a record of this sort of runs under the title "Principal Scoring Plays of 1930—Touchdowns Scored by Running Back Kick-Offs." In the 1930 Guide there is only one case comparable to Scalzi's. George Corbette, of James Milliken, in a game last year against Wabash, ran back one kick-off for 95 yards and another for 90.

And this won't be the limit of tribute to Georgetown's bandy-legged Italian. There will be mention of long runs with passes and long runs after catching punts. He has a chance yet to earn an exclusive Scalzi section in the Guide. Georgetown has four more games to play.

But Scalzi Proves An In-and-Outer.

But there's another side to the Scalzi story. He's an in-and-outer, to use a frazzled term. He has too many off days or nights to win the complete favor of coaches and experts. Were he consistent he might be the recipient of All-America or All-Eastern honors.

When Scalzi goes bad, so goes the entire Georgetown team. Examples were the Western Maryland and West Virginia games. Johnny couldn't go places in those two games and neither could his mates. He was "right" in the West Virginia Wesleyan and

EVANS ONLY 1928 GAME VETERAN

Quarter Back Lone Old Liner in Last W. & L. Clash.

BILL EVANS, who plays quarter back and full back for the University of Maryland Football Team, will be the only man who faced Washington and Lee when the teams last met in 1928 who will start for the Old Liners in their homecoming day game with the Generals at College Park on Saturday.

Evans played quarter back in 1928 when the Old Liners won from Washington and Lee, 6-to-0, in a game staged at Griffith Stadium in Washington. There was no battle last season, as the teams could not agree on a date, but Washington and Lee won by close scores in the four previous meetings of the institutions.

Bill Fisher is the only other member of the Old Liners who was with the squad in the 1928 season. He did not perform against the Generals, his role then being substitute tackle. He, as well as Evans, is slated to begin Saturday's combat. All of the others slated to start against Washington and Lee Saturday will be juniors, except Al Woods, who is a sophomore.

Byrd Eases Team in Practice.

Coach Curley Byrd is going fairly easy with the Old Liners in getting them ready for the Generals, as the six games already played have left some of the boys in none too good trim and five more tests to follow is essential for him to conserve his resources as much as possible.

Maryland is anxious to get in a couple of afternoons of intensive work and is hoping that conditions today

On Eastern Gridirons

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—An almost flooded field cut Columbia's practice short today. Lou Little restricted the drill to two hours, most of which was devoted to a slow dummy scrimmage against freshmen who used Colgate plays. Little explained defensive tactics to the varsity. All the injured players except Hewitt and Stanczyk were in uniform.

Only One Army Quarter Back Available.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Army's casualty list attracted attention today. Bowman's injuries may keep him out of the Illinois game and this may be a serious loss, as Carver is the only other experienced quarter back. Miller and Carimark also are injured, while Letzeiter still is in the hospital.

Zundel Lost to Princeton For Season.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Bob Zundel, veteran full back, was reported lost to the Princeton Team for the season today as the Tigers went through an hour of wet-weather drill. A slip Zundel made today aggravated a knee injury received in the Brown game.

Harvard Coach Juggles His Back Field.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Arnold Horween, Harvard coach, again juggled his backfield today. Barry Wood went back to quarter, Huguley to half and Shreschewsky to full, sending Record to the second team. The doctor's report today said that Kuehn and Richards, regular line men, would not be able to play against Michigan.

Cornell Seeks to Bolster Defense.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Coach Doble speeded up Cornell's practice as he worked to develop a more powerful offense for the Dartmouth game, two weeks away. He kept his line intact, but tried out all his backs in a long scrimmage.

Many Penn Regulars Missing From Drill.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Coach Lud Wray was not optimistic today about the chances of his battered team against Notre Dame. Four regulars, three of them backs, missed today's hard drill because of injuries. They were Gentle, Graupner, Gette and Olsen.

Williams May Replace Reider As Pitt Back.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Paul Reider, 150-pound Pitt back, has not yet recovered from injuries received against Nebraska and may be replaced by Josh Williams in the Carnegie Tech game.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—A long workout with a wet ball, including a signal drill and much kicking, constituted Carnegie Tech's preparations for the Pitt game today. Ted Rosenzweig, end, was kept out by a boil on his arm.

Chicago Line Drilled Hard for Purdue Tilt

Chicago, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Chicago's Maroons spent two hours on defensive tactics calculated to break up Purdue's running plays Saturday. Coach Stagg spent the whole period with the line, but will resume work on his offense tomorrow.

Illini Make Shifts For Army Saturday

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Coach Bob Zuppke made two more changes in the Illinois line-up today in trying to build a team to give the Army a battle Saturday.

Tiny Huddlestun, 232-pound lineman, was tried at center, while Hunter Russell was at one of the half back posts. Gil Berry was on the field in civilian clothes after spending three days in the hospital.

Defensive Session For Michigan Eleven

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Coach Harry Kipke strung out a defensive drill to last the whole practice period today when the Michigan Varsity failed to top the Freshmen, who used Harvard forward and lateral passes.

An offensive drill was on the schedule but was deferred until tomorrow in favor of more work on defense. Eastman showed up with a bruised shoulder and probably will not play against the Crimson Saturday.

Tunney Suit Procedure Will Be Known Today

New York, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Hatting will decide tomorrow whether trial will proceed in the suit of Timothy J. Mara to take away from Gene Tunney $500,000 of the $1,742,282.04 he earned as heavyweight champion of the world.

After Mara had rested his case Monday the justice dismissed the complaint against Billy Gibson, Tunney's former manager and a codefendant, and took under advisement a motion to throw the whole case out on the ground that if the charges could not be proved against one defendant they could not be proved against the other. He will announce his decision when court convenes Wednesday afternoon.

$50,000 Bid Stribling For Sharkey Fight

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Journal says W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon heavyweight boxer, has received an offer of $50,000 to fight Jack Sharkey in a benefit bout for the unemployed in New York next month.

The paper says the offer was received today by Pa Stribling, manager of the Georgia boxer, from Joe Woodman on behalf of the New York Armory. The elder Stribling took the offer under advisement, the Journal added.

SPINACH TAKES $25,000 RIGGS IN GALLOP IN MUD

Ziegler Colt Victor Over Her Grace

Erin Finishes Third; Spinach Rated Off Early Pace.

By J. B. SONDGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 4.—William Zeigler's 3-year-old colt, Spinach, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, won the $25,000 added Riggs Handicap like a champion at the opening here today of the fall racing season of the Maryland Jockey Club. Ral Parr's filly, Her Grace, subduing the Wheatley Stable's Erin took the place, Erin holding the show money. Woodcraft was fourth. The race was a grueling mile and a half gallop in the mud and was run in 2:34 3-5.

George Ellis rode one of his best races on the winner. He laid off the pace for six furlongs, then moved up gradually behind Erin, Escutcheon and Her Grace, and began picking up these leaders one at a time and at the far turn went to the front.

Her Grace Holds Place Easily.

Her Grace had supplanted Erin as the pacemaker when Spinach took the lead and made a determined bid for the van at the eighth post, but Ellis shook up the son of Sir Martin and Sweet Thime and drew away to a lead of two and a half lengths at the wire. Her Grace was holding the place safely from Erin by three lengths, and Erin was going easily a length in front of Woodcraft. Yarn, the second choice, was away poorly.

The winner paid $8.20. Spinach's share of the purse was $21,900. To the second horse went $5,000, with $2,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth. The total value of the stake was $29,900.

This was the fifth running of the Riggs Memorial. Eight horses started. The day was cold, with rain falling intermittently. Still a crowd of about 12,000 was out for the first day, and form was shown throughout the running of the excellent program.

This victory puts Spinach high up among the 3-year-olds.

Workman started off the Pimlico season right by riding the winner of the first race which the Genesco Stable's Rubio, which, at home in the slow going, overcame early interference to score by two lengths. Cary T. Grayson's first-time starter, Pass By II, was second to length in front of Joseph E. Widener's Christmas. The time was 1:15 1-5 for 6 furlongs. The winner was heavily backed, paying $3.80.

Pass By II Leads All The Way.

The start was good. Pass By II was prominent all the way, but at the head of the stretch Christmas appeared to be the winner. When Rubio got into free running he drew away. Christmas tired. Ramus was fourth.

Jockey F. Slate has proved 100 per cent since he changed from flat races to riding in steeplechases. He has only ridden in two such races and won both, piloting home Joseph E. Widener's MacCarthy More in the Towson Steeplechase, second on the program. He won the Gov. Ogle cause at Laurel for Mr. Widener.

In the Towson he held his mount off the pace and, making his move in the stretch, easily passed Hoe Cake to win. Hoe Cake held the place, while Friar McGee was third. Myrthus, leader for more than a mile, was fourth.

Sally Weaver stumbled and went to his knees early in the race. The rider, M. Sims, suffered a bad fall. In the stretch Stoney Lonesome fell with J. Worrall, giving the jockey a shaking up but no apparent injury. The winner paid $6.80.

The Sagamore Stable's Rip Van Winkle won the third race for 2-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards, but he had to be much the best to do so, for he was carried out on the clubhouse turn and forced to the rear. Albazano was first around the troublesome turn and held on in front to the sixteenth, when Rip Van Winkle caught him to win by a neck. Albazano held the place, with the Seagram Stable's Chatty third, a length and a half back.

Jockey Morrison's Foul Claim Not Allowed.

Archy followed Albazano to the first turn. Chatty was pressing Albazano on the back stretch until Rip Van Winkle caught up with him and began a duel with the leader. Morrison went to the stand and registered a complaint against the winner, but the placing was upheld. The time was 1:47. The winner paid $3.70.

The Country Club Purse, fourth on program, at 6 furlongs, brought out eight speed horses, with Tuskegee the favorite. The parade of favorites past the judges was destined to end, for Hilaria, carrying the colors of the W. R. Coe Stable, outran Tuskegee soon after the start, took the lead and won by a length and a half, paying $48.20. Leishman up.

The Justa Farm's Mud was second and First Lady third. Pegg's Pride finishing fourth. Lady Capulet was scratched. The time was 1:14 3-5. Workman got Tuskegee off winging, but the son of Black Toney wilted before reaching the far turn. Rounding into the stretch Hilaria was leading with a safe margin on Mud and they finished in that order.

C. V. Carr's Vimont made a runaway of the sixth race, winning by six lengths. Upset Lad, showing improvement over his Laurel form, was second and Fair Dale third. My Scoop, one of the favorites, was fourth. Fair Dale set the pace, followed by Vimont. At the far turn, Quackenbush had Vimont in front and he cantered home in 1:48 2-5. The winner paid $10.20.

RUBIO, slow to begin, saved ground entering home stretch and finished full of courage under a drive. BY PASS II, hard ridden from the break, raced RAMUS into submission first half mile and then stood off a determined challenge from CHRISTMAS only to weaken at end. CHRISTMAS worked his way up on the outside and lost ground at the turns. He stopped after going to the front in stretch run. RAMUS quit after setting the pace for half a mile.

MACCARTHY MORE, restrained for the first turn of the field, entered contention midway of the back stretch, saved ground at all of his fences, came courageously under a drive and wore HOE CAKE down after the final fence. Latter, steadied along early, took command when ready and held on well in the final stages. FRIAR M'GEE, prominent throughout, held on well. MYRTHUS showed good jumping ability and continued gamely after being displaced. HORICON was outrun. STONEY LONESOME was messed about most of the trip and fell at the last fence. SALLY WAVER fell at the second jump.

THIRD RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:19. Off at 2:22. Winner, Sagamore Stable's b. c. RIP VAN WINKLE, allowed to settle fully in his stride before moving to the leaders, wore ALBAZANO down when rounding the far turn, but had to be kept under stiff pressure to make good. ALBAZANO, rushed into the lead, was rated in front, saved ground and held on stoutly when challenged. CHATTY was made too much use of early, dropped back, responded to punishment and came again at end. MAD CAREER tired in the final drive. OUTCRY and the others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The Country Club. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:53. Off at 2:56. Winner, W. R. HILARIA charged on the leader rounding the far turn and, easily disposing of FIRST LADY entering home stretch, held situation safe remainder of trip. MUD was taken to outside when he made his move. He finished strong when put to it to drive. FIRST LADY broke fast and drew away into an easy lead in first furlong. She collapsed after going half a mile. TUSKEGEE showed no speed at any stage, broke slow and raced on the outside all the way. PEGG'S PRIDE was only galloping.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $25,000 added. The Riggs Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:35. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPINACH, $8.20, $4.70, $3.80; HER GRACE, $5.20, $3.90; ERIN, $6.60.

SPINACH, moved to ERIN when straightened into the back stretch, opened up a commanding lead when approaching the final turn and was mildly ridden thereafter to make victory certain. HER GRACE, going along forwardly, continued stoutly when put to a drive, but could not menace the winner. ERIN saved ground while setting the pace and held on well in the closing test. WOODCRAFT, reserved early, closed gamely. YARN was unable to improve his position at any stage. CONCLAVE faltered badly after making her effort. ESCUTCHEON stopped utterly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:03. Off at 4:08½. Winner, C. V. VIMONT, assumed command with a rush when approaching the far turn, increased his margin at will and finished with plenty in reserve. UPSET LAD, away in a tangle and forced to work his way up on the outside, closed gamely, but was held perfectly safe. FAIR DALE, steadied along while making the pace, faltered steadily in the final furlong. MY SCOOP began slowly and closed full of fun through the final stages. AUCILLA went evenly. TOMBOY tired.

SYRIAC, outrun first half mile, moved up while on the outside in the run down the back stretch and, after making a wide turn into home stretch, finished fast to win going away at end. SOLACE went to the front when ready, saved ground, but faltered fast in the closing test. SCARED O' NOTHIN made repeated efforts and held on well. NICOTINE and DARK ABBOT were outrun.

PIMLICO NOW DATES BACK 100 YEARS

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 4.—This historic racing course, which opened today for the Maryland Jockey Club's annual 11-day fall meeting, is exactly 100 years old, according to records found recently in the United States Congressional Library. General Manager Daiger has issued a worthwhile booklet on the history of this track and copies of same be had by applying to him at 535 Equitable Building, Baltimore.

When this track first opened, the records show that the stewards always wore a white flower in their coats. That idea struck Secretary-General Manager Daiger's fancy and when Stewards Bryan, Weston and Brown ascended the stairs to their pagodas today they were all sporting white flowers. The custom will be carried out daily not only the rest of this meeting but as long as Daiger is in any way connected with the host organization.

The Mary Joe Stable's Follow Thru, one that cost $36,000 as a yearling, was an arrival from New York. Follow Thru is a 2-year-old chestnut son of Epinard—Mary Belle.

Trainer Max Hirsch had difficulty getting the Sage Stable's Captain Hook loaded on a car yesterday in New York, therefore he did not bring the 3-year-old bay son of Peter Pan—Stickling down for today's seventh race.

Jockey George Fields was an arrival from New York. He turned down an offer to ride in Europe before coming here.

The Nevada Stock Farm's Siskin sprained a foot in working for the Futurity and will be an absentee from that stake tomorrow.

John D. Slagle, one of the office staff here, is the proud possessor of a pair of white buckskin trousers that Jack Whyte used for 22 years while gunning in Canada. Slagle is leaving for New Orleans at the conclusion of this meeting and will wear them in his first venture on the bayou.

August (Sarge) Swenke, of Baltimore, who had great success on Illinois tracks the last summer with the horses of R. Gallet, of Chicago, has taken ten horses to New Orleans, to await the opening of Jefferson Park on November 27.

Herman P. Conkling, well known official on State tracks, will leave at the conclusion of this meeting for San Francisco, where he will remain until December 15 and then head for the Pair Grounds, New Orleans, where he will act as placing judge.

The Greentree Stable's Twenty Grand, a candidate for tomorrow's Futurity, went three-eighths this morning in 0:35.

TRINITY'S NOTICE.

Coach De Shields requests all Trinity players who hope to play in Sunday's game to report tonight at 7 o'clock at Georgetown Hollow.

STARS ADDED TO SOCCER TEAMS

Fashion Shop Signs Four in Drive for League Title.

SPURRED on by its victory over Army last Sunday, Fashion Shop Soccer Club has signed four well-known players of the District who no doubt will help the Ninth street kickers materially in their drive for the Capital City League championship.

Devlin Again to Play With Army.

SCHOOL TEAMS GAIN MATERIAL AS ADVISORY ENDS

Central Gains 3 Eligible Players

King, Back; Gibbons, Blaisdell, Linemen, Are Added.

Business Acquires 5; Marks Fail to Hurt Teams.

SCHOLASTIC advisory marks, which regularly exact their toll in star athletes with a sinister disregard for coaches' needs and prayers, assumed a strange role yesterday when their publication revealed that none of the high school football squads would be riddled with ineligibles, but in shining contrast, would gain a raft of material hitherto deficient academically.

The marks, made known at the end of the first six weeks of the school year, rendered ineligible only an insignificant few players, while three of the five schools shared noticeable gains.

Central Gains Several First Class Players.

Coach Rauber, of Central, has been most fortunate in the number and caliber of men gained. Outstanding of these is Henry Gibbons, a heavy but fast sophomore right guard, who threatens to make a name for himself at Central before he is through. George King, a back, is another. Jack Blaisdell probably will be seen at a tackle post before long, too.

Central could have used Gibbons against Tech. His weight in the line would have bolstered it and his booting compares favorably with that of Dick Nelson, heretofore unparalleled among the high school punters.

Coach Woodworth, of Business, lost nary a player and gained five whom he believes will strengthen his team so recently weakened by the loss of Full Back Bill Duryee. The acquisitions to the Orange include Howard Reeves, a back; Furr and Myers, ends, and Miller and Hanig, guards.

Business Can Use Furr And Myers.

While Business has been fortunate in men received, the batch of them will, probably not make up Duryee's loss. However, Furr and Myers will be turned into presentable ends before long, Coach Woodworth avers, thus being a position which Business can well afford to strengthen.

Coach Dan Ahern lost no men and gained "Big" Buscher, a regular of last year's Western High eleven. The big one will probably fill in at a tackle post, probably left.

Coaches Hardell, of Tech, and Kelley, of Eastern, lost no regular because of scholastic inaptitude, nor did they gain any.

Central-Business Game Rescheduled for Today

Rain forced a postponement until today of the scheduled high school series game between Central and Business yesterday at Central Stadium.

Both teams were held indoors yesterday and were put through blackboard practice by respective coaches.

Today's game, which starts at 3:45 will reveal a refurbished Central team facing a Business outfit whose lone star performer, Bill Duryee, full back, will not be present. Duryee's parents have removed him from the team fearing his yeoman service with Business would impair his health.

Michigan States games and Georgetown won both.

Virginia Gains 25 Yards Before Play Starts.

Virginia gained 25 yards against Maryland before the ball was put in play in the game between these ancient and honorable rivals last Saturday in Charlottesville. Here's one for John Hix.

It happened this way, just after the trumpets had been sounding Terrapin-Cavalier love songs: Maryland was not ready to play at the time scheduled for the start. Friendly Virginia then remembered the rule which gives a team the privilege of putting the ball in play on its opponents' 35 yard line for such delay. The referee forthwith was allowed to move the ball nearer Maryland's goal and it was Virginia's ball as play finally began.

Will Maryland remember that with love and kisses?

Hinterlanders Awake.

It is certainly surprising the way some of these football teams from the provinces can take your better-known teams and show them up. And it is more surprising just how they get that way.

Take for instance New River State and Atlantic University. The first mentioned, whose home is Montgomery, W. Va., where there are few homes and little attraction for football players as far as we can reason, played leap-frog over the backs of Catholic University last Saturday. It was a big, fast team; looked experienced—and not so youthful.

Atlantic U. sprouted from the sand of Virginia Beach two months ago to ask our own American University for a game which Coach Walter Young thought might prove of a practice nature. Well, it was a practice—for Atlantic. American came home 51 points in the red.

HARD DRILLS FOR V. P. I. GRIDMEN

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 4.—Disappointed at their scoreless effort to spike the guns of the Washington and Lee Generals, Virginia Tech's gridmen today set their sights for the decisive action against Virginia's Cavaliers in the annual Tech homecoming game. What the Gobblers did and did not do against Washington and Lee will have a lot to do with the preparations for the university eleven. Because the momentum of its attack ebbed at Lexington Saturday, the Tech team settled down Monday afternoon to lots of offensive work.

It matters little that the Tech forwards halted the drives of Jones and Mattox when these two hard-riding backs were rushed in as shock troops. The important thing is that the feet of the Tech ball toters were four times almost on the Washington and Lee goal line, but could never reach the far side of it. The General's line outcharged the Gobblers at critical stages.

No Outstanding Star in Tech Back Field.

The Tech backfield boasts no threat of the caliber of Bill Thomas, the Cavalier ace, so the Techmen know that if they ever needed coordination and team play, they will need it this week in Miles Stadium. Virginia's line is reputed to shade the Tech line a bit in weight and driving power, so the linemen will be called on for heavy work from whistle to whistle. This is the reason that both line and backfield are in for as hard a week as Tech gridmen have known in many moons.

Harry Stark, veteran lineman, was slightly hurt in Saturday's game, but was out in uniform again today. Phil Spear was slowed by injuries at Lexington, but is expected to be in better condition for the Cavaliers, who saw an early lead swept away by his great running on Lambeth Field a year ago. Frank Howard, sophomore fullback, was prancing about the field today, eager for another starting role after his finest performance. It was the former Christiansburg High School back who turned out to be the only real Gobbler threat. His consistent battering of the Blue and White line reminded spectators of the terrific drives of Pasco Gettle, Tech's big gun in the 1922 battle at Lynchburg.

Gene Brown again proved the outstanding lineman of the Gobblers. But Tech needs not two or three good men, but eleven, when the Cavaliers come to town eager for a win in Miles Stadium.

CENTENNIALS TO DRILL.

G. P. O. FEDERALS PLAY.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 4.—The Northern Virginia Officials Association will hold an important meeting at the Gazette office, 317 King street, Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be present. Dr. C. T. Dreifus, president, will preside.

Alexandria will stage its first major grappling carnival of the 1930 season Wednesday night at Elks Hall for the benefit of the charity fund. The bouts will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

Bobby Mainfort, former wrestling instructor at the University of Virginia, will tackle a worthy foe in Mario Gigio, Italian champ. This will be the fetaure bout and will be decided by two out of three falls.

On Friday afternoon, the Alexandria High School gridders will meet Fredericksburg High School in a crucial district game in Baggett's Stadium here. If the "Twins" defeat the Yellow Jackets, they will be in a triple tie for first place in the conference play. The Alexandrians are rated as the "under dogs" in the conference series.

The St. Mary's Celtic gridders will hold an important practice Thursday night at Baggett's Stadium in preparation for the game Sunday against the fast Frederick A. C.

Mrs. Theresa Haynes won the women's prize at the Health Center for the highest bowling mark for the past week with a score of 131. Bert Lynn's score of 167 took the men's honors.

Return of Lou Kirn Bolsters Navy Eleven

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Confident he at last has found the right combination with the return to form of Lou Kirn, Bill Ingram put his Navy Football Team through a strenuous scrimmage session this afternoon, stressing the passing game in preparation for the intersectional clash with Ohio State at Baltimore on Saturday.

Kirn returned to right half back, with Joe Taschirgi as his running mate. Dale Bauer was at quarter and Oscar Hagberg at full back. Ingram said this would be his starting backfield.

Shikat and Taylor In Feature on Mat

Joe Turner, wrestler, turned matchmaker, is arranging what he believes will be the greatest wrestling card the District mat fans have ever witnessed to be staged at the auditorium one week from tonight, Wednesday, November 12, beginning at 8:15.

In the feature grapple of the evening, Dick Shikat, former champion of the United States and a great local drawing card, will meet Jack Taylor, known as the champion of Canada.

In other events that have been lined up, Mike Romano will face Chief White Feather, Billy Bartush and Frank Wilcox will mix matters and Pama Zesselanaike, a newcomer to local ranks, will face the task of throwing Jim McMillen, former Illinois grid star.

It will be an all-heavyweight card.

Gaby, Great British Hurdler, Is to Retire

F. R. Gaby, the famous Polytechnic hurdler and rival of Lord Burghley, is to retire, says the London Express. Gaby is 35 years of age. A keen rivalry existed between him and Burghley after the latter had distinguished himself at Cambridge, and until he reached the veteran stage Gaby could generally beat Burghley by a narrow margin. Whereas Burghley's great asset is his speed between the jumps and on the run-in, Gaby held advantage by reason of his perfect hurdling.

Gaby won the A. A. A. 120-yard hurdle title on five occasions, his best championship time being 14.9, made in 1927. Gaby is in the British postoffice telephone service.

V. M. I. PLAYS AT NORFOLK SATURDAY

Cadets Hopeful of Gaining Verdict Over Clemson.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 4.—Back in the winning column at the expense of the Wildcats of Davidson College, the V. M. I. Flying Squadron is concentrating on the game at Norfolk Saturday with Josh Cody's Clemson Tigers. Coaches Bill Raftery and Ed Hess were pleased with the way the Cadets smeared Davidson's running and passing attack in the morning game on Alumni Field, but there is still much room for improvement in the scoring department.

The inexperienced Cadet eleven has won three and lost three games this season, and has tallied only five touchdowns in the six tilts. Every phase of attack is being stressed this week, and there is still hope that the Flying Squadron will break out in a rush of touchdowns against a major opponent.

Cadets to Have Full Strength Available.

Only minor injuries came in the wake of the Davidson clash, and the Cadets will be able to throw their full strength against Clemson, undefeated until the Tennessee game last week.

Local fans are looking forward to the freshman game on Alumni Field Saturday between the Cadets and William and Mary Papooses. Coach Sam Heflin and Virgil Grow have brought the young cadets along so that they were able to upset the Maryland yearling, 13 to 0, last week, though V. M. I. had previously lost to the Virginia freshmen, who in turn went down before Maryland. Watkins and McCullum in the line and Ward and Smith in the back field looked particularly good against the strong Old Line outfit.

V. M. I.'s cross-country squads will get their second test of the season Thursday against the V. P. I. varsity and freshman runners at Blacksburg. Last week the Cadets, with Capt. Ham Smith showing the way, won the varsity chase at Charlottesville and lost the freshman race to the Cavaliers by one point, though Noidengard and Turner, freshman leaders, placed one, two for the V. M. I. team.

Thinks Should Have Pinned Rose on Jimmy

What they should have done was to give three cheers and pin a rose on the Boston Irishman, says Alan Gould of the Associated Press.

EAST IS HOST TO MAJOR ELEVENS

Saturday's Program Marked by Invasion by South, West.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Out of the West or up from the South they come this week to give the Eastern football season what should be its most colorful and thrilling Saturday.

While Fordham, New York's own all-conquering eleven and leader in this sector, moves into the Mid West to show its stuff to Detroit in particular and to the hinterland in general, Notre Dame, Michigan and Illinois will pass the Rams en route to mingle with sturdy Eastern rivals on Eastern soil, and Georgia, vanquisher of Yale in its last Northern invasion, will arrive from the South at the same times.

Illinois and Georgia come to this very city for their displays, for the former has a Yankee Stadium engagement with Army and Georgia is to take its second fling at N. Y. U., at the Polo Grounds. Notre Dame journeys this way for a battle with Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, and Michigan treks to Boston for a return engagement with the Harvard team that went to Ann Arbor last fall.

Columbia Tangles With Colgate.

And, as if such promising frays as Army-Illinois and N. Y. U.-Georgia were not enough virile entertainment for the sons and daughter of Father Knickerbocker, Columbia—a Columbia team that dropped Cornell from the all-winning circle—has picked Saturday as the date of its Baker Field game with Colgate, while City College and St. John's are to stage their annual get-together at Lewisohn Stadium.

Three games of national importance and one of strong local appeal, all played within the 5-cent fare zone, is something new to the Metropolis, and presents a problem for the football patron in choosing which engagement is the one he should see. That problem is further complicated by the one and only visit of Notre Dame to a field within easy commuting distance of the city.

Man of Street Adopts Notre Dame.

Notre Dame, lacking any great number of alumni in this section, is not lacking in thousands of rabid rooters. The man of the street, often without college affiliations, has adopted Notre Dame as the school of his favor and Notre Dame's colorful and usually winning play has solidified its noncollege support and added to its throng of rooters. Consequently, there is a tugging on the will of many New Yorkers to make the trip to Philadelphia this week and see the all-conquering Rocknemen in action.

There is strong appeal to the Harvard-Michigan game also. Neither team rates as extraordinarily powerful—Harvard, in fact, has not won a game in three weeks—but all who viewed or read of the stirring battle in which the two elevens participated one year ago are expecting a repetition of that colorful fray, and certainly all New Yorkers of Harvard or Michigan allegiance will not care to miss the Harvard Stadium game.

Unlimited Title in Sight Of Scrappy Marion Eleven

Southeast Team, Which Has Been Hoping for City Title for Eight Years, Has Chance to Gain Objective This Season.

(The following is the eighth of a series of articles concerning the sixteen clubs entered in both sections of the Capital City Football League, which is sponsored as usual this fall by The Washington Post.)

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

TWO hundred years or so after Alexander Pope made the remark that "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," the 1930 Marions, who are entered in the unlimited section of The Post's Capital City Football League, come forward as a classic embodiment of the famous bard's saying. Hope that they will capture some sort of a city football championship has been springing annually in the breasts of the Marions for the last eight years.

The only title that the Southeasterners have ever earned, however, is that of being one of the gamest outfits ever to set foot on a District gridiron. They have been taking more defeats than victories since they were organized in 1921. And one can not help but admire the spirit of the club which, in spite of such discouraging results, always comes up for more and never ceases to try.

Trailed in 150-Pound Class Last Year.

Tail-enders in the 150-pound section of the 1929 league when they failed to win a single game, the Marions entered the unlimited division this fall with their first coach, most of last year's squad, a half-dozen promising newcomers, and their usual expressed determination to achieve one of the top berths in the circuit. Judging from their play so far, the Southeasters seem destined to accomplish their goal.

With the 1930 card half completed, the Marions are in fourth place, a single game behind the league-leading Mercurys and Brooklands, and only a half contest in the rear of the third position Seat Pleasants. The Green-jersied players will meet these three teams on succeeding Sundays and are confident they can take the measure of each and thereby, at the very least, go into a tie for first place in the circuit.

Aubrey Southworth, Rudolph Hughes and Charles Hughes founded the Marions in 1921. Later Thomas Moreland entered the fold and played on the first eleven the new club sponsored, a 100-pound outfit. All four men have been with the organization ever since, Southworth as manager and half back, Rudy Hughes as captain and tackle, Charlie Hughes as half back, and Moreland as guard.

Tied Mohawk Preps in 1923 Race.

Loose organization and lack of a coach handicapped the Marions for the first eight years of their existence. As a result, the Southeasters, after stepping from one higher weight class to another, never seemed to get anywhere in their quest for a city championship. The closest they ever came to a title was in 1923, when they tied the Mohawk Preps, 6-6. The Preps that year were city champions in the 115-pound class.

The Marions experienced one of the most disastrous years of their short history in the 150-pound section of the league last fall, losing by top-heavy scores to St. Stephen's, Mercurys and Brooklands, and dropping two games by the margin of a single touchdown to the Friendships and champion Mohawk Preps.

The 1930 Marions resemble last year's outfit in few respects, chief of which are the name and players. Securing the services of Walter Townsend, crack quarter back of the old Highland A. C. and former pilot of the old Quentins and Anacostia Eagles, as coach at the start of the present campaign, the club soon demonstrated that it was in the running for the section championship by taking the measure of St. Stephen's, 6-0, in its first league game.

Two weeks ago the Southeast team battled the strong Alpha Delta Omegas to a 6-to-6 draw, and last Sunday fell a 6-to-0 victim to the jinx which the Quentins have been exercising over them since they were founded. In a nonleague game the Marions ran roughshod over the Navy Yard Marine, 24 to 0.

Loss of Harper, Steele Prove Big Handicaps.

Coach Townsend's squad received a severe blow before the regular league season got under way when Harper, one of his best players, was put out for the season by receiving a broken collar bone in a practice scrimmage. Steele, capable tackle, sustained a broken leg in the Quentin battle, and also will be lost for the remainder of the schedule.

Outstanding among the new performers for the Marions this fall are "Ike" Licarione, former Winton end and son of "Josh" Licarione, old Vigilante and Mohawk star; Francis Grogan, former Winton tackle; Eddie Hoff, who starred in the back field for Eastern High School several years ago; Wilcox, of the 1929 Seamen Gunners; Joseph O'Brien, of the 1927 Carlisles; "Butch" Merriman, of Bolling Field, and Hary Porter, Smith and Ed Nolan, who are playing their first year of football with the club.

Besides the ones previously named, other veterans from last year include Mutchler and Ludon Norris, centers; Bergling, quarter back; "Huck" Beall, half back; Thomas Bridges and Philip Buhlen, ends; Cox, Francis Parlon and Thomas Wood, guards, and Ernie Borden and Edwin Thomas, tackles.

MARYLAND REGULARS GIVEN REST BY BYRD

However, the two days of comparative rest did not come amiss, as several of the Old Liners needed it badly. The Old Liners, though, have done so little hard work that their plays did not click up to the standard against Virginia last Saturday, and Curley Byrd wants to oil up the machine prior to tackling the Generals.

Interest is keen in Saturday's game, and tickets have been placed on sale at Spalding's, 1330 G street, for the accommodation of the Old Line followers.

SAINTS CHALLENGE.

The St. Paul's Boys Club wants a game for Saturday or Sunday with some eleven averaging between 100 and 115 pounds. The Saints have not been defeated, since 1928. Call Decatur 2208.

WYTHEVILLE STADIUM BEGUN

New Plant to Seat 1,000, to Have Pool, Playing Fields.

WYTHEVILLE, VA., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Work on a new and modern steel and concrete grand stand and grading a new athletic field has been started here and was expected by contractors to be completed by next June.

Besides the athletic field and the grand stand the new project will include a swimming pool. All of the new equipment is for the use of the Wytheville High School.

The field and the improvements are the gift of two former residents of Wytheville. The contract price for grading the field and erecting the grand stand and swimming pool was $28,720. The improvements to be made at the grounds will represent an outlay of approximately $37,000. Three additional pieces of real estate have been acquired by the school board during the past few weeks. This land will materially increase the area of the school grounds.

200 Lockers Underneath Grand Stand.

The field and other improvements are to be modern in every way, and fully equipped. The grand stand will have a seating capacity of 1,000, with dressing rooms and 200 lockers underneath. The swimming pool will be 45 feet long, and varying in depth from 3 to 8 feet. The property now owned by the school will permit the laying out of a regulation football field and baseball diamond.

The grand stand and swimming pool will be built on the south side of the high school grounds, with entrances from two streets. Work also is underway on improvements for the approaches. A concrete bridge will be built over the town branch.

The contract for construction work on the field was awarded to the Southwest Building Corporation, of Wytheville. The contractors say they are well started on the work and expect to have the project completed by next June.

Fishburne Tackles Staunton Saturday

Special to the Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 4.—Fishburne Military School's varsity football squad today opened its campaign of intensive drill for its hardest home game of the season—the one with Staunton Military Academy here Saturday.

Fishburne, without the services of Harry Martin, triple threat artist, succeeded in holding the strong Woodberry Forest Team to a 12 to 0 score last week in a contest which was much closer than the score indicated. Martin will be in the line-up this week, however. This, together with the improvement which is expected in the local squad this week, should enable F. M. S. to enter their crucial game Saturday on even terms with their opponents.

For the last 29 years there has existed the closest kind of athletic rivalry between these two prep schools. Although S. M. A. has won the greater number of these past contests, the annual meeting has always attracted State-wide attention and been featured by a large attendance. Fishburne has not been able to wrest a victory in football from Staunton since 1924.

Florida Again Blocks Way To Alabama in Dixie Title

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Back in 1923, a Florida team rose to its heights to stop the first Southern Conference championship surge of Alabama's Crimson tide under Wallace Wade. Seven years later, in his valedictory at Tuscaloosa, Wade finds this same determined Florida eleven blocking his path to another championship.

During the interim, Wade's Crimson Legs marched to Dixie Conference championships in 1926, 1925 and 1926 and represented the South in the California Rose Bowl in 1925 and 1926.

Florida First Conference Victor Over Alabama.

Florida was the first conference team to defeat Alabama in 1927 after the long string of victories. The past two years have seen Alabama drop from the top, but yet remain always a threat and 1930 finds the big red team challenging for the front position again.

In the five games played between the teams since the conference was organized in 1921, Florida has won three and lost two. Previous games have been played in Alabama, but Saturday the Crimson comes to Gainesville, Fla., to help the Alligators dedicate their new stadium.

Florida displayed great defensive strength by holding Georgia's ripping backs to a scoreless tie last week and it's no secret that Coach Charles Bachman plans to play the same defensive game against the tide.

The rugged Florida line probably will be stronger than any 'Bama's forwards have faced this year. The Alligator rush line is just as heavy and as experienced as that of Alabama. If the two front lines are as evenly matched as were Georgia and Florida last week, both teams probably will take to the air.

Tulane continued its preparations for Auburn today with a thorough workout. Although not taking the plainsmen lightly Coach Bernie Bierman admittedly is pointing his charges for the make-or-break affair with Georgia the following week. Scafide, a lineman, is suffering from a dislocated shoulder and will be out of the Auburn game.

Georgia Drills Against N. Y. U. Plays.

Georgia worked out against New York University formations today in the next-to-last practice before the Bulldogs entrain Thursday morning for the metropolis. Coach Mehre looks upon this game as even harder than the Yale engagement.

Both Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, and Dan McGugin, of Vanderbilt, have intimated they will present changed line-ups as these teams meet on Grant Field here Saturday. Quarter Back Dunlap is definitely out of the Tech line-up, while McGugin plans several shifts in the Vanderbilt line.

North Carolina will not have Underwood at tackle as the Tarheels engage North Carolina State. Underwood was badly spiked in the Tech game. Gorham, State half back, suffered a broken leg last week and will be out for the season.

Duke, with five straight victories since its early season defeat by South Carolina, hopes to continue its winning ways against Kentucky at Durham. Coach Jimmy Dehart regards the Kentucky game as the hardest on his schedule and is working overtime preparing his men for the Wildcats.

EARNINGS REPORTS SHOWING DECLINES

191 COMPANIES REPORT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Sufficient statements of third quarter earnings have now been issued to present a fair cross section of aggregate experienced during the first nine months of the year, states a current survey of Standard Statistics Co., of New York. For the 191 companies reporting for this full period, aggregate income in excess of $830,000,000 is shown, equal to 73 per cent of the total reported by these same organizations in the corresponding months of 1929.

Rails as a group have shown the most drastic deflation, 27 roads reporting a total but 63 per cent of that for the 1929 period. The 153 industrials experienced income equal to 70 per cent of the 1929 period and the 11 utilities were at a level nearly equal to that of a year ago. The only individual concerns reporting gains were a paper company and three theaters. A radio firm reported a $57,000 deficit.

Businesses Showing Declines.

Declines from the 1929 period were reported by firms representing the following businesses; advertising and printing, autos, auto parts, building and real estate, chemicals, coal, copper, electrical equipment, food except meat, household products, machinery, miscellaneous manufacturing and service, office equipment, petroleum, radio, railroad equipment, retail trade, silk, steel and tobacco.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co., in their November review, state the business situation has taken no broad turn for the better, but here and there improvement is being shown and the outlook for sustained improvement is becoming more clearly defined.

Shell Union Oil Report.

The report of Shell Union Oil Corporation and subsidiaries for the third quarter of the current year shows gross income, including a half interest in the income of Comar Oil Co., of $14,255,279, against $22,323,064 for the same period of last year; total deductions, including depletion, depreciation, drilling expenses and abandonments and interest on funded debt, of $13,147,619, against $13,-155,318, and net profit before providing for Federal income tax of $1,107,-659, against a balance of $9,172,746 a year ago. Surplus on September 30 last stood at $25,293,458, against $41,-488,129 on the same date last year.

Thomas J. Mangan, jr., manager of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., Shoreham Building, has returned to Washington after spending a few days at the main office of the firm in New York City.

Arthur C. Ketcham, of the local office, attended the Yale-Dartmouth game at New Haven Saturday. Mr. Ketcham is a graduate of Yale.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Paris, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Prices were steady on the bourse today. Three per cent rentes, 85 francs 80 centimes; 5 per cent loan, 100 francs 65 centimes. Exchange on London, 123 francs 76½ centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 48½ centimes.

London, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—Bar silver, 16⅛d per ounce. Money, 1½ per cent. Discount rates—Short bills, 2⅛ per cent; 3 months, 2⅛@2⅛ per cent.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

American Home Products Corporation.

G. N. J.—Please give me some information regarding American Home Products Corporation.

Answer—Estimates place earnings for the year at $5, which would be sufficient for the $4.20 dividend. The high yield now obtainable—8 per cent—is attributed to the fact that the company is paying out a larger percentage of net income than many other companies. The company is in a strong financial position, with $4,-500,000 cash and marketable securities.

Total current assets are in excess of $7,000,000, as against total current liabilities of $1,371,214. The stock, considering the nature of the company's business, may be considered an attractive speculative investment.

Anchor Cap.

G. B.—I am a stockholder in Anchor Cap and desire some information and an opinion regarding it.

Answer—Estimates place earnings for the stock this year at $4 per share, which would be more than sufficient to cover the $2.40 a share annual dividend requirements. As a matter of fact, the year's dividend was earned in the first nine months.

The management of the company is making considerable headway in diversifying its business, particularly along pharmaceutical lines. The stock may be classed as a desirable speculative investment holding for the long term.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

T. V. G.—Please give me some facts and an opinion of Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

Answer—Net operating income for September declined 48.7 per cent. Estimates indicate that earnings for the year 1930 will be less than $5 as against $7.90 per share actually earned in 1929. The $6 annual dividend, therefore, is not expected to be covered in the current 12 months. Incentive to buy the stock around current prices, as a result, is lacking despite the sharp decline in price. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, however, has always been classed as a good investment issue.

United States Distributing.

H. N.—I am writing for some information and an opinion of United States Distributing.

Answer—Smaller truck shipments of goods and a decline in coal sales, &c., have resulted so far this year in a deficit for the company after preferred dividends. While there may be some improvement from now on in earnings, the common must be considered as highly speculative and not suitable for investment purposes.

Last year only 95 cents was earned on the junior stock, which has paid no dividends since 1921. The stock is not recommended for the investor.

Davison Chemical.

W. N. H.—I am thinking of buying Davison Chemical providing you think the company is in sound condition. I am one of those willing to buy a cheap stock and hold, if, however, earnings justify. What is your opinion?

Answer—Judging by the balance sheet as of June 30 last, the company is in good shape. Earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, were equivalent to $4.04 a share as against $3.34 for the preceding fiscal period. Davison has a book value of $62.65. This compares with $61.49 the year previous. Considering that the outlook for this line of business—fertilizers—has been improved, as shown by the increase of nearly $5,000,000 in the company's gross sales for 1930, and official intimations that dividends will be restored, the stock would appear to be worth buying and holding.

Trico Products.

H. L. T.—Please give me some information and an opinion of Trico Products stock for long-term holding.

Answer—Trico Products Co., which has contracts with all of the big automobile companies, including General Motors, is a large manufacturer and seller of windshield wipers of the vacuum type, on which it holds the basic patents, and a complete line of rear vision mirrors. Earnings for the nine months ended September 30 equaled $4.19 a share, or nearly twice the $2.50 annual dividend. Because of the satisfactory profits, the possibility exists of an extra dividend payment. With prospects of a revival in the automobile business next year, the earnings outlook of Trico Products may be considered good.

Profits this year reflect the greater diversification of sales despite the temporary slump in the automobile industry. Greater efforts are being made by the company to deal with the large replacement market, which has shown steady annual growth. Plans are under way to increase the field of operations by new patented parts, which have already passed the experimental stage, and sales have been started with railway companies for equipping electric lines with air pressure devices.

Trico Products recently closed a contract with Lucas, Ltd., largest manufacturer of motor car parts in England, under which the manufacture of windshield cleaners will be carried on under a license or royalty basis, which should add to income of Trico Products. The stock may be considered an attractive speculative investment.

3% on Savings

Guarded Assets
TWO great institutions typifying American prudence—life insurance companies and savings banks—guard the safety of their assets closely...investing the billions of dollars placed in their custody with the utmost care and regard for security. And what is their choice for a sound and stable investment which assures maximum safety...First Mortgages.
Charged with the great responsibility in paying in full all policies, the leading life insurance companies of the nation this year have placed about fifty per cent of their funds or more than six billions of dollars in First Mortgages. More than five billion dollars, also half of their resources, was invested last year by the 611 mutual savings banks, located in 17 States of the country, in mortgage loans. These investments were made scientifically and painstakingly, solely on the basis of safety of principal and income yield.
The selection of insurance companies and savings banks should also be YOURS. U. S. RAIL POLICIES CRITICIZED IN TALK BY B. & O. PRESIDENT

Board of Trade Speech by Willard Urges Union of All Lines.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS ARE AMONG GUESTS

Post Bulletins on Election Enliven Dinner Which 1,500 Attend.

An address by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in which he criticized certain policies of the Government in connection with transportation and advocated consolidation of all railroads, featured a meeting of the Washington Board of Trade at the Willard Hotel last night.

The meeting was attended by approximately 1,500 men, including District officials, members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, presidents of street railway companies of the Capital and members of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co.

Prior to the address by Mr. Willard, the organization adopted a report approving continuation of the movement to establish a stadium at East Capital street and Kingman Lake in memory of Theodore Roosevelt. A plan for the stadium which has been approved will be submitted to the Roosevelt Memorial Association, it was announced. The stadium can be built by 1932, the year of the George Washington Bicentennial, at a cost of $1,500,000, it was reported.

Post Bulletins Enjoyed.

The meeting was enlivened with reading of election returns, furnished through cooperation of The Washington Post, and songs from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Glee Club, under the direction of George Castelle. A railroad atmosphere was imparted through duplication of the rear of a Pullman car at the entrance to the ballroom. Tickets were taken by conductors in uniform.

Mr. Willard criticized the Government for entering into subsidized operation of boat lines on inland waterways for the carrying of freight that could be, he said, economically moved by railroads. He also opposed unregulated use of highways without charge by individuals or corporations engaged in carrying freight and passengers as common carriers in competition with Government regulated railroads. This, he charged, is unfair.

Mr. Willard said that he had no fear as to the ability of railroads to continue performing increasing transportation service, regardless of competition from other agencies, provided the conditions surrounding the contest are equitable to all concerned.

Possible Economies Cited.

Substantial economies in transportation by rail would be gained if railroads were consolidated in the spirit of the transportation act, Mr. Willard predicted. The present situation presents a challenge to Congress in mapping out a national policy in regard to transportation, the speaker said.

Mr. Willard introduced his address with a history of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, describing how it was established just 100 years ago. Cooperation with the National Capital is essential to the success of the railroad, he told his large audience, as the larger percentage of passenger business of the railroad is brought throough bringing visitors to Washington.

Lack of national representation for residents of Washington was brought home to the Board of Trade members not only through election reports but also through a talk from George J. Adams, president of the Junior Citizens Alliance. The alliance is advocating national representation for the District and Mr. Adams told of the campaign and how residents of the District may aid in making the drive a success.

British Botanist Speaks in Capital

The wild white clover is the greatest plant to British agriculture, declared Dr. D. B. Johnstone-Wallace, research superintendent of the Brotex Cellulose Fibres, Ltd., of London, speaking before the regular meeting of the Botanical Society of Washington last evening at the Cosmos Club.

Due to its great utility as a forage plant and hay crop when grown in conjunction with other legumes and grasses and as an improver of the soil for other following plants, Dr. Johnstone-Wallace reported that the white clover had found great favor among English farmers.

Increased yields of hay, stated Dr. Johnstone-Wallace, can not be relied upon as an accurate index of the desirability of a given seed mixture for a pasture. Many high yielding mixtures, he said, were deficient in feeding value.

Dr. E. C. Auchter, of the Department of Agriculture, spoke briefly on horticultural phases of the Fifth International Botanical Congress, held last summer at Cambridge, England. Drs. C. L. Shear, A. S. Hitchcock and N. E. Stevens, of the same department, presented other phases of the botanists's convention.

WIFE'S INJUNCTION APPEAL IS GRANTED

DIVORCE ACTION PENDING

Marital difficulties of George M. Evans, local real estate operator, and Mrs. Anne S. Evans, daughter of Countess Festetics de Tolna, yesterday resulted in the issuance of an injunction restraining him from molesting his wife and their two children, according to Associated Press dispatches from Reno, Nev., where Mrs. Evans has maintained a residence for the last three months.

Mr. Evans, familiarly known as "Bud," is the son of Mrs. Morris Evans, 2440 Sixteenth street northwest. He married in Paris on June 8, 1921. His two children are Hawley Nye, 8 years old, and Sylvia Anne, aged 4.

In her petition for an injunction Mrs. Evans alleged that her husband has harassed her for the last week, and threatened to do her bodily harm. The restraining order was issued in conjunction with a divorce suit filed by Mrs. Evans.

Examination Ordered On Body of Man, 72

George F. Murray, 72 years old, of 300 Ninth street southeast, was found dead in bed yesterday by Constina Spanolo, of the same address. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered the body removed to the District Morgue for an examination.

Fifth Precinct police said last night that little was known about the man. It was thought that he had relatives living in Baltimore, and neighbors said that he was an insurance man in former years.

Court Exonerates Policeman Burke

Charges of drunkenness against Private William F. Burke, suspended policeman attached to the Sixth Precinct, were dismissed in Police Court yesterday.

"In this case I don't believe the testimony of witnesses bears out the allegation against the officer," Judge Schuldt said. "Several witnesses say that Burke was not drunk, but 'intoxicated,' and the intoxication was satisfactorily explained by physicians in the fact that Burke took a nerve sedative to relieve illness."

However, dismissal of the charge in Police Court will not affect Burke's appearance before the Trial Board, where he is scheduled for hearing today.

The policeman was placed under arrest by his precinct commander, Capt. William G. Stott, following a call to the precinct that the man was in an intoxicated condition in a car near the intersection of Fourth and G streets. He was immediately suspended, and posted collateral at the precinct for his appearance in court. The collateral was returned to him yesterday following his acquital.

Government to Conduct Experiments With Fish

Technological experiments dealing with improved methods of handling fresh fish are to be conducted by the United States Bureau of Fisheries at the Municipal Fish Wharf, Henry O'Mally, commissioner of the bureau, announced yesterday.

Two electric refrigerators capable of holding foods at temperatures as low as 10 degrees below zero Fahrenheit will be installed in the space allotted by the District Commissioners.

Mounted Policeman Files Suit for $50,000

William R. Sheets, a policeman attached to the Sixth Precinct, who was seriously injured on the night of June 2, 1929, when an automobile collided with the horse he was riding on Riggs road, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $50,000 for his injuries.

Stewart K. Hill, of 3206 M street northwest, and the Mount Pleasant Motor Co., Inc., of 1410 H street northwest, are named defendants, the policeman alleging that the automobile was driven by Hill and owned by the motor company. Sheets explains that he was thrown forcibly from the horse, which was so badly hurt it had to be killed. Attorneys Charles C. Collins and Albert E. Brault appear for the plaintiff.

FLIGHTS TO CAPITAL SEE RECORDS FALL

Trip From Baltimore Takes 9 Minutes; That From Philadelphia, 40.

TAIL WINDS AID PLANES

Aided by a strong tail wind yesterday morning, a tri-motored transport plane set an unofficial speed record between Philadelphia and Washington in 40 minutes at an average speed of 192 miles an hour.

Almost simultaneously, Pilot C. C. Taliaferro, flying an Eastern Air Transport shuttle plane between New York and Washington, flew at a speed of 231.1 miles an hour between Baltimore and the Capital, making the trip in 9 minutes, a record.

The transport plane, piloted by Lloyd Juelson, veteran mail and passenger plane flier, averaged 178 miles an hour from New York to this city. His flying time was 72 minutes for the trip, or just a minute more than the record established by Capt. Frank Hawks with his Mystery S racing plane recently over the same course.

Taliaferro, the youngest pilot of the Eastern Air Transport, made the trip from New York to the Capital in 84 minutes flying time.

T. P. ARTAUD NAMED TO APPRAISAL POST

Grant Announces Selection for Capital Park Planning Commission.

LAND VALUATION EXPERT

Appointment of Theodore P. Artaud, land valuation expert, to the newly-created post of appraisal engineer for the National Capital Park & Planning Commission was announced yesterday by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the commission.

Several members of the Interstate Commerce Commission recommended to Col. Grant that Mr. Artaud, long a resident of the District, be assigned to the position which was created in connection with enlarged land purchasing activities under the program of the Capper-Cramton park and playground development act. He will enter upon his new duties today.

With I. C. C. Bureau.

Mr. Artaud was assistant general manager of the Hudson & Manhattan R. R. Co. of New York from 1902 to 1914, when he became research director of the Washington office of the National Association of Railroad & Public Security Owners. From 1914 to 1927 he was also executive assistant of the Bureau of Valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and from 1921 to 1927 he was supervisor of land appraisals for that body.

Col. Grant announced also that he will request the board of supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., to nominate a member to serve on the board of appraisal which will purchase land in Virginia for the new George Washington Memorial Parkway which is being developed along both sides of the Potomac River from Mount Vernon to Great Falls.

On Virginia Board.

Land for the parkway north of Alexandria, Va., will be purchased by the board of appraisal which will include Keith A. Brumback, nominee of the Arlington County board of supervisors; whoever is appointed for Fairfax County; and Capt. E. N. Chisholm, jr., engineer of the National Capital park and planning committee.

All land for this parkway, as well as all other land proposed for park and playground development in the District and nearby Virginia and Maryland, will be appraised by Mr. Artaud.

Slaying of Gas Station Man Nets 40 Years

Forty years in the penitentiary was the sentence meted out yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court to Joseph Hardy, Negro, for his part in the slaying of Philbert "Jack" Bittner, filling station operator, almost two years ago at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. Bittner was fatally wounded during an attempted holdup of the station.

Hardy fled, but recently was apprehended in Baltimore. He was permitted to plead guilty to second degree murder although indicted on a capital charge. Two of his companions, who pleaded guilty, are now serving sentences. Joseph E. Crawford, Negro, who is alleged to have fired the fatal shot and who was sentenced to be electrocuted was sentenced to life imprisonment after the Court of Appeals granted him a new trial, while Benjamin Branson, Negro, turned State's evidence at the trial of Crawford and was given a 20-year sentence.

CROSBY TO INQUIRE INTO MOTIVE BACK OF RAID ON WRITER

Intends to Find Out if Police Are Using Informer Against Orders.

COMMISSIONER WAITS FINAL REPORTS ON CASE

With the grand jury scheduled to investigate tomorrow morning the "liquor" raid on the home of William P. Flythe, widely known newspaperman, at 1806 G street northwest, last Saturday afternoon, the investigation launched by Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby into the part played by the police in the affair marked time pending receipt of final reports asked of police officials by the Commissioner.

The raid was made on a John Doe warrant issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on the oath of J. M. Burke, who is said to have been an informer for Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman when the latter was a sergeant in command of the police vice squad.

At that time informers were paid $2.50 for each person they swore to a warrant against. Such use of informers has been prohibited by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and it is said by police now that Burke no longer is a paid informer.

Swore He Saw Still.

Burke swore that he saw a man whose acquaintance he had made, but whose name or address he does not know, buy one-half gallon of white whisky from "John Doe" in the cellar of the Flythe residence, where, he added, there was a still in operation tended by three men. Neither still nor liquor was found by the police when they were admitted Saturday afternoon by Mr. Flythe. The warrant was returned with the notations, "No seizures" and "No arrest."

Commissioner Crosby yesterday said that he wanted to ascertain just what was the prompting motive of the informer, Burke, in swearing to a warrant against a reputable citizen. If Burke is being paid as an informer against written orders of the department, he intended to find out why, the general said.

Criticism is being leveled at the police for raiding a private home without first making any effort to ascertain the name or character of the occupant or whether the description of John Doe given in the search warrant fits the resident.

Another Police Violation Seen.

Another violation of the department rules by the raiding squad may be involved in the fact that the warrant was sought and used on the word of an informer whose alleged purchase had not been "covered."

But on the major question involved Gen. Crosby believes that the police stand in the clear. Responsibility for the warrant must lie on the shoulders of Commissioner Turnage and the informer, who is said by police to have volunteered the information that he saw liquor sold in the basement of the Flythe residence last Thursday, Gen. Crosby believes.

He pointed out that the warrant directs the police to do a certain thing and does not leave it to their discretion whether or not they shall execute the command.

Flythe Says Pistol Was Drawn.

Mr. Flythe, when protesting against the raid on his home, gave all but one member of the raiding squad a clean bill of health and said that Sergt. N. O. Holmes, commander of the raiders, was courteous. One man thrust a pistol at him and threatened to shoot his small dog, Mr. Flythe said. What the outcome will be is not certain. Maj. Pratt was away yesterday on a duck hunting trip and will not be back for a few days, it was said.

Meanwhile, United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover is prepared to present the facts in the case to the grand jury, which body will determine whether in its opinion there is ground for charging perjury in connection with issuance of the warrant.

Justice Gordon to Enter Hospital for Operation

Justice Peyton Gordon, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, will enter Emergency Hospital this morning for an operation on the thyroid gland. The operation is not regarded as serious and he is expected to return to the bench within a week or ten days.

Justice Gordon is presiding in Criminal Division No. 1, but despite his absence cases which ordinarily would be tried before him will be calendared for his division as usual. These cases will be taken care of when possible by the justices who are presiding in the other criminal divisions.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE UNSUNG HERO.

WHEN the pop-eyed crowds are roaring,
And the pigskin heros clash,
And the boys, hell-bent for scoring,
Let their heads and bodies crash,
Who's the fellow out there taking
Punishment so carelessly,
And whose every bone is aching?—
It's the football referee!

When the punts afar go bounding,
Who must chase 'em, one and all?
When the scrimmage lines are pounding,
Who must dig and get the ball?
When the pigskin then is fumbled,
Who must drive in fearlessly
And beneath the pack be humbled?
Why, the football referee.

When a penalty is posted,
Who's the guy put "on the spot?"
Who's the fellow who gets roasted
In a case when it is not?
Who's the wonder man expected
Each and every play to see?
(Who by both sides is suspected?)
Why, the football referee.

WHO must wear white linen knickers
When the field's a sea of mud
And endure the laughs and snickers
When he slips with quite a thud?
Who gets nothing but derision
When he's tossed upon his ear?
Who gets panned for each decision?
It's the referee, old dear.

Who must stay in there and take it
'Til the final whistle's blown,
And when feeling groggy, shake it
And emit no squawk or groan?
Who no substitute may call for
Though he's fading rapidly,
And no rest may ever stall for?—
Mister Football Referee!

Who discovers very early
In the game that he is far
From the youngster, strong and burly,
That he once was, when a star?
Who discovers that his bellows
Aren't what they used to be
And that age has got him, fellows?
Why, the football referee.

WHO hears no one sing his praises
And just never takes a bow,
Though in football's hottest phases
He gets smacked about—and how!
When the stirring contest's ended,
Who's the guy who wearily
It's the football referee.

When the players take to heaving
Forward passes all about,
Who gets exercise most grieving
To a man who's somewhat stout?
Who appears to be so weary
He would like to climb a tree?
Whose "dogs" burn and pain him, dearie?
Just the football referee!

Who's supposed to know what's doing
Each split second of the game?
Who's supposed to take the booing
And know nothing of acclaim?
Who's supposed to keep quite cool, boys,
And in each emergency
Why, that "goat"—the referee.

POLICE COURT SEES FINES FALLING OFF

Only $35,591.88 Collected During October, Says Financial Clerk.

TRAFFIC TOLL FOREMOST

This was the total announced yesterday by A. J. Sanford, financial clerk at Police Court. He stated, however, that this was considerably less than the fines paid for the corresponding month of last year, when $43,774.28 was collected in forfeited collateral or fines.

Mr. Sanford added that as a business proposition Police Court had not yielded the returns this year it did in 1929, although the figure for the year will not be known until January 1.

Marked Decline Shown.

Each month in 1930 is running considerably below the average for 1929. The only reason he gave for this was that people are behaving better this year, not fighting as much nor violating as many traffic signals as last year.

For example, July of last year was the largest month, in returns, of any in the history of the court. From the three divisions of Police Court—traffic, United States and District jury court—$65,810.45 in fines was collected. For no known reason, only about $39,000 was collected in July, 1930.

The lowest amount collected this year was during August, when only $29,767.49 found its way into the financial clerk's office. The lowest month last year was February, with $34,307.43, collected and added to the District's bank account. The largest amount this year was taken in during January, when fines amounting to $39,767.71 were paid.

Traffic Court Leads.

Traffic Court brings in the most money with its fines, the amount for October being $14,875.17. The District Court was second, with $11,617.37, and the United States branch trailed with $9,099.34. Their respective ratings have been this way since 1912, going back to the days when persons were fined for driving their horses recklessly down Pennsylvania avenue and splashing mud on pedestrians, who seem to have been in about as much danger then as they are now.

C. B. Sherwood, assistant clerk in the financial office, who has charge of the liquor fines, announced yesterday that $41,909.62 had been collected from prohibition cases since January 1.

Doctor Is Exonerated Of Narcotic Charge

Dr. Frederick Yates, of 929 M street northwest, who was arrested several weeks ago by narcotic agents and charged with violating the Harrison narcotic act, has been exonerated by the District grand jury.

Dr. Yates was alleged to have sold narcotics to an undercover agent brought to Washington from New York City. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Turnage immediately after his arrest and held under $500 bond for grand jury action. The grand jury ignored the charge.

HALF-HOLIDAY PLAN BACKED BY CITIZENS

URGE ALL-NIGHT PARKING

Advocating enforcement of a law providing half holidays on Saturdays throughout the year in Government offices in the Capital, the Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution in which it pictured the United States of the future as a Utopia in which industry will be ruled by the five-day week.

The resolution, introduced by Mrs. Margaret H. Worrell, third vice president of the association, provided that President Hoover be formally petitioned to order noontime closing of departments on Saturdays "until such time as the five-day week becomes a reality in all parts of our beloved country."

Copies of the resolution were directed to be sent to the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade.

Parking Ban Criticized.

Mrs. Worrell introduced a resolution which was unanimously adopted protesting against the movement to bar all-night parking of automobiles on streets. Such an order would prevent many women citizens from owning automobiles because of the hazards of passing through dark alleys to store machines in garages, the resolution set forth.

New Members Accepted.

The following names were accepted for membership in the association:

Miss O. V. King, Charles H. Jerman, B. W. Wilson, Mrs. L. R. Maddox, Herbert Kosendorfer, Joseph A. Jordan, Ida B. Moore, S. E. Reed and John Kaliveretenos.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner of the District, made a brief address. He told of the duties devolving upon his office in connection with the city beautification program.

Police Search for Man Who Fled From Hospital

Washington police and guards from St. Elizabeths Hospital are conducting a city-wide search for Wilbur Richardson, 20 years old, a colored man, who escaped from the institution yesterday morning.

Richardson took with him about 100 one-eighth grain morphine tablets, according to hospital attaches, and more than $40 which he took from other patients just before making his escape, police say. The drugs were taken from the strong box of the ward supervisor in charge of the section where the man was quartered.

THREE ARE INDICTED AS BUSH KILLERS IN GRAND JURY REPORT

Arson Suspect Also Named Along With 54 Others in True Bills.

INQUISITORIAL BODY IGNORES 24 COUNTS

Fourteen Are Cited for Violation of Prohibition Act in District.

Indictments charging three white men with the fatal shooting of Louis Bush, bus magnate, and a Negro with arson in connection with the incendiary fires at three apartment houses and another structure feature the report of the District grand jury made yesterday to Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court.

Fifty-four indictments were returned, while charges in 29 cases were ignored. In addition to the murder and arson indictments the true bills contain charges of bigamy, grand larceny, housebreaking and larceny, falsifying civil service application, violation of the national prohibition act, assault, nonsupport, and joyriding.

Twelve indictments naming fourteen persons charge violation of the prohibition act, but this is offset to a degree by the fact that the grand jury ignored nine cases charging liquor violations and involving eleven persons.

Trio Named in Slaying.

William J. Carnell, Frank Mahoney and William C. McKay are charged with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Mr. Bush, who was operator of the Gray Line Sightseeing Tours. Mr. Bush was attacked and shot twice on the night of October 6 when he drove his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home at 3534 Fulton street northwest. Mr. Bush successfully repelled his assailants, but received two pistol wounds which caused his death two days later.

The assailants escaped. Capt. Edward J. Kelly, chief of the homicide squad, conducted the investigation, which is said to have revealed that Mahoney and Carnell were the actual assailants, but that they had used a gun belonging to McKay.

The grand jury considered similar charges against Mrs. Mary Sullivan, mother of Carnell, who was reported to have harbored the alleged slayers, but made no report concerning her. Mahoney and McKay are now in custody, but Carnell, who police say is a desperate character, still is at liberty.

Arson Suspect Cited.

James Hickson Williams, alias Jesse H. Williams, is named in four indictments charging arson. He is accused of having fired the Denver Apartments, at 1419 Chapin street northwest, in which Miss Jessie Camack lost her life October 3. The grand jury has considered a first degree murder charge against Williams in connection with the death of Miss Camack, but has made no report.

The Negro, in the other three indictments returned against him, is charged as follows: With setting fire to the store and dwelling at 2204 Fourteenth street northwest, with setting fire to gasoline in the basement of the apartment at 1840 Vernon place northwest and with igniting a pile of trash in the basement of the Balfour Apartments at 2000 Sixteenth street northwest. He was apprehended in the latter apartments while allegedly racing through the halls screaming "Fire."

Oley William Jackson, Howard Vernon Goding and his brother, Marshall Bryant Goding, who are alleged to have operated an automobile theft "ring" which collected seventeen stolen automobiles, were charged with grand larceny. All were named in two indictments containing the charge, while the two Godings were indicted separately. The three men are alleged to have driven or hauled automobiles from Washington streets to nearby Virginia, where identification marks were removed. Jackson, according to police, admitted he was employed to change automobile motor numbers.

Other Indictments Filed.

Thomas Edward Smoot, 24 years old, of Ballston, Va., was indicted on a charge of assault with intent to kill in connection with an attack alleged to have been made more than a year ago on Policeman B. F. Howze in an apartment on Belmont road northwest near Thirteenth street. Howze, according to police reports, went to the apartment to quell an alleged disturbance and after being admitted is said to have been attacked by Smoot and William Douglas, and to have been beaten with his baton.

Howze, in self-defense, pulled his revolver and fatally wounded Douglas. The policeman spent several weeks in the hospital recovering from his wounds and was exonerated in connection with the shooting.

Orville Staples, former policeman, was exonerated by the grand jury on a charge of violating the national prohibition act. Two others, Edward J. McIntyre, of Thirty-third street northwest near O street, and Thomas J. White, of O street northwest near Thirty-fifth street, also were exonerated. Staples came into the limelight several years ago when he was discharged from the police force and Representative Blanton, of Texas, came to his defense.

Suspects Are Exonerated.

Other cases in which defendants were exonerated include: James V. Clatterbuck, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Raymond Wentzel; John Quill, who was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of George Pearson; Louis Golden, who was charged with homicide following the death of John B. Johnson, and Mary Wood, who was charged with homicide after the death of Thomas Dyson.

Mark Wingate, a former clerk in the office of the supervising architect of the Treasury Department, was charged in a true bill with falsifying his civil service application. He is accused of falsely stating his educatoinal qualifications.

Two Negroes, Willie Mae Montague Fletcher and James Henry Smith, were charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of Oriental tapestries and bedspreads from the home of Ulysses Grant Smith, widely known diplomat, of 1721 H street northwest. The Negress was a former maid, it was said.

Barbers' Tools Reported Stolen.

John Carter, proprietor of a barber shop at 1616 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday told police that barbers' tools valued at more than $26 had been taken from his shop at that address. The stolen loot consisted of five clippers, one razor, and two pairs of barbers' shears.

Man Shot in Row Carries Slug in Head Back to Work

There's one person in the city who is glad he is thick-headed. He is John Smith, 30-year-old colored man employed on a construction job at Florida avenue and W street northwest.

Police say that Smith and the watchman at the building which is under construction, Calvin Chattman, also colored, quarreled on the morning of October 21. Chattman is alleged to have shot Smith in the head with a .32-caliber revolver, the bullet striking him just over the left ear.

He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where attending physicians found that the bullet had flattened out on the man's head, part of it entering the skull and the rest of it spreading over the outside of the scalp. Doctors found that, as matters stood at that time, Smith's life was not in danger, but that if the bullet were removed it would be, so the bullet is still there, and Smith is back on the job.

Chattman was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, and sent to jail, pending action of the grand jury, in default of $5,000 bond. He was arrested by Private G. F. Titrington, of the Eighth Precinct.

Dead Letter Office Parcels Auctioned Off Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be bargain day in the Postoffice Department, and everything must be sold.

The Government has not gone into the hands of receivers, however. The division of dead letters and parcels is merely disposing of an accumulation of unclaimed articles by public auction.

A large variety of stamps will also be available to collectors. In keeping with the modern trend most of them are air mail stamps that were carried on first flights hither and yonder as new lines have been developed.

Nine hundred articles, exclusive of the stamps, are catelogued for the auction. They range from wearing apparel of divers sorts to jewelry—cheap and expensive—toilet articles, books, garden tools, baggage, furniture and house furnishings, phonographs, typewriters, milk cans, watches, and what you will.

The Postoffice Department cautiously states: "No guarantee as to quantity or quality. All articles sold 'as is.' Goods purchased must be removed on day of sale."

The sale opens at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and will continue until all articles are sold.
